A strainer or trap installed in the gasoline line of the car will keep the water and sediment out of the carburetor and vacuum tank, as they are heavier than gasoline and settle at the lowest point.

Avoid overloading your tires, and when it is absolutely unavoidable, help the tire to handle the extra load by putting in more air.

The vacuum tank on the car should be cleaned out every three months to eliminate sediment. Remove the top of the tank and take out the inner shell. This will permit access to the lower chamber, from which rust and dirt can be removed. Also check the screen to see that the tank head is clean.

Steers Stampede In Buster Keaton's Latest Comedy

Buster Keaton's latest comedy, "Go West," which comes to the Sherry Theatre Sunday, is his first western picture and is called the most elaborate laugh-provoker he has made. The frolicsome star spent several months filming the fun spectacle of the great open spaces, which was produced by Joseph M. Schneck of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release.

A Jersey coat that was insured for $100,000 during the making of the comedy has an important part in the development of the plot in Buster's newest laugh riot. "Go West" is an amusing, funny start to fantasy. As a matter of fact, lack of personality prevents him from landing jobs in the southern cotton fields, the Canadian timber country, the feeding of the eastern seaboard and other sections of the United States. The youth finally lands in the proverbial region where men are men.

During his migrations via the boxcar route Buster always is just one jump ahead of the train crew's shoes. His wanderings are crisscrossed with hilarious adventures. When he is kicked off his side-door pullman on the desert he tries conclusions with a wild mustang, but finds that kind of transportation is even riskier than rough-riding freight trains. So finding a pair of discarded chairs and spurs, he waits to a nearby ranch—and is hired as cowboy!

The plot then begins to thicken with a succession of screwing funny situations.

The supporting cast in "Go West" includes Howard Truesdale, Kathleen Myers, Buster's new leading lady, and Ray Thompson. Keaton personally directed and wrote the picture.

Comedy showing "Framed." Pola to Sparkle As "Woman of World" At Star Sunday

Picturocrs may expect something markedly different in the way of a Pola Nord production when "A Woman of the World" begins its local engagement at the Star theatre Sunday. The new Nord vehicle is a dramatic romance of today in which most of the action takes place in a small, mid-western American community. Advance interest in the picture is furthered by the fact that the story is based on a novel by Charles Collins. The picture is a European countess, and has its beginning in Paris, where she discovers that her lover has been unfaithful to her. Broken-hearted, she seeks for America to forget her sorrows, and in time arrives at Maple Valley, Iowa, to visit her cousins. Needless to say, her presence in this small town gives the men something to talk about, and the women something to gossip fast and furious.

to the fact that he is none other than the even assistant. The rivalry between the two takes an unexpected turn when the district attorney publicly accuses Pola of carrying on an affair with his assistant. Sensational developments follow. The local council meets to decide whether the countess is to be permitted to remain in town. Pola, aroused by the untrue accusation, horsewhips the district attorney. To tell what happens after that would be to rob the picture of its elements of surprise; suffice to say that it is stirring and emotionally beautiful.

Charles Chase, Bull Montana, and Katherine Grant provide a lot of fun in their two-act comedy, "The Unhappy Three."

Doctors' Right to Tell Secrets Queried In Film at Arcade

Physicians may find something to interest them in "The Home Maker," a Universal-Jewel King Hargot production featuring Alice Joyce and Olive Brook and directed by King Hargot. It will be screened at the Arcade theatre Monday and Tuesday.

The point of particular interest to the medical profession has to do with the age-old question, "Should a doctor tell?" There is scarcely a physician in the country who at some time has not been called upon to answer just that question and had to find the answer to it in his own conscience.

However, it is doubtful if more than a few have been called upon to answer the question under the same circumstances as was Dr. Merritt in "The Home Maker." This part is played by George Fawcett, one of the screen's foremost character actors. Dr. Merritt has been the Knapp family physician for years and has peered deep into their troubles. Lester Knapp, the character impersonated by Brook, is suffering from paralysis, paralyzed from the hips down. Then one day his wife, Eva Knapp (Alice Joyce) discovered a change in his condition unknown to Lester. She summons the doctor. Later Lester too has become aware of the change.

Dr. Merritt arrives at the house and learns that Eva's suspicions are correct, having interviewed Knapp alone. Knapp pleads with the doctor to tell Eva. Dr. Merritt says that he must tell Mrs. Knapp. The doctor struggles with his own conscience, and finally wins the doctor to his way of thinking. Dr. Merritt keeps the secret. Doctors may disagree on whether Dr. Merritt did the right thing.

The cast supporting Miss Joyce and Brook includes Frank Newberg, Margaret Campbell, Mary Astor, Fred Fisher, and others.

Headline Caliber Promised in Vaudeville Program

A program of exceptional merit including several features of headline caliber is promised at the Arcade theatre on Sunday. Nick Cogley and Co., present "Old Reliable" in "The Striped Man." The character of "Old Reliable" is played by Nick Cogley, an exceptional cast of players, and a unique setting gives a realistic atmosphere to the sketch. May and Lewis in "A Yoke of Fun," are comedy acrobats, barrel jumpers, and trick cyclists, whose sensational exploits have given them a reputation second to none. Doc Joy appears as "The Jovial Jester" in "What's It All About?" Doc is an ideal punnier, and vocalist endowed with a magnetic personality. Williams and Helene present
