ROUGH MATCH IS EXPECTED

Final arrangements for the scheduled title match between Billy Edwards, present light heavyweight wrestling champion, and Frank Miller, of Bendleton, were made today by members of the American Legion committee. They announce that O. D. Scott, of La Grande, will be referee.

Indications are that the match tonight, which will begin at 8:30 o'clock, will draw the largest crowd that ever witnessed a grappling contest here — and conflict is likely to develop into.

Edwards, with his chiropractic headlock and his reputation of taking advantage of an adversary regardless of rules, is sure to rough things up, and Miller, aggressive and with considerable ability, isn't likely to let Edwards have all the fun, fans believe.

It will be remembered that Edwards won his championship from Mersko, Australian, with a knee kick, which was allowed by the referee.

Gustavo and Noregaard, who will meet in a preliminary special event, are both near the top in the light heavyweight class and promise to give the fans excitement and action aplenty.

The match will be staged at Eagles hall.

Starkey was floored twice before the knockout.

LIKES HIS BOOZE

NEW YORK—Major Chester P. Mills, U. S. A. retired, New York's new prohibition chief, likes his booze. General Andrews drinks no more. When did he stop? Well, he laughed that question off.

Released

Harry Hooper, veteran major leaguer, who has been given his unconditional release by the Chicago White Sox. Hooper broke into the big show as an outfielder with the Boston Red Sox in 1909. After serving 15 seasons with the Beantown gang, he was traded to Chicago. Hooper was a good hitter and clever fielder, being a member of the famous trio of Hooper, Speaker and Lewis that brought much fame to Boston years ago.

Billy Evans Says:

The retort courteous is usually an excellent weapon to settle a dispute on the ball field, but occasionally it reacts.

Some years ago the New York Yankees had a pitcher on the payroll by the name of Cy Pieh, which sounds like something new in the dessert line.

The first game that he worked for the New York club the opposing batters discovered his delivery and name were closely related. He was given a good trimming. I was the umpire.

As a rule recruit pitchers don't argue with the umpires. Most of them feel they must become established before taking issue with the arbitrator as to his judgment on balls and strikes.

Cy Pieh, however, was a decided exception to the rule as most American league umpires who tried to satisfy him on balls and strikes, soon learned.

THE LAST LAUGH

Pieh began kicking on almost the first ball pitched. He continued to object while he remained on the rubber. Since only a few balls managed to get by the batter, I paid no attention to his protests, being more interested in the ball being more interested in the ball the opposition was hitting the ball.

He was finally taken out and as he walked past me on his way to the bench, I couldn't refrain from remarking:

"Well I won't be bothered with you after the Fourth of July." In baseball a player able to stick after that date is considered as having won a prize.

Most of the other umpires on the staff also reminded Pieh in much the same manner. July 4th of that year brought me one of the biggest laughs I ever had, simply because I didn't think Pieh had a sense of humor.

In my mail of July 5th was a postal card with these words: "Note the date and the fact that I am still in the league. What are you going to do about it?" Four other umpires got similar postals.

WORDS WITH A STING

Baseball has any number of rather stereotyped expressions such as the one, "you won't be around to bother anyone after the Fourth of July." Well do I recall the number of times it was hurled at me back in 1904 when I broke into the American league. Also many others equally sarcastic and uncompilimentary.

"If that is the way you call them you won't be long in this league."

"And whom, may I ask, recommended you to President Johnson?"

These as well as scores of other reverse English compliments were slipped me when I made my debut.

It may seem rather strange, yet of all the remarks made to me in the early years of my big league career, two words uttered often by Manager Fielder Jones of the White Sox used to get under my skin more than anything else I know of.

"Guessing again," was the only way Jones would object to the way I was calling them.

SHORT SPEECH

If I happened to call a ball on him, he might turn around to the catcher and say: "It was a perfect strike, right through the heart."

"Guessing again," however, was his favorite speech to me. Late in the game he would vary it a trifle by saying:

"Still guessing?"

Until I became established these two words, guessing again or still guessing, was the length of my speech with Fielder Jones, then the famous manager of the Chicago White Sox.

HURLED SIXTY FEET IN AIR

SALEM, Ore., Mar. 3. (AP)—To be hurled sixty feet by an explosion of three sticks of dynamite and receive no apparently serious injuries was the experience yesterday of P. C. Baker of Turner, a chaser for the Silver Falls Lumber company at Silverton. Baker and Gus Larson, a fellow worker, had gone to inspect a "plant" that had failed to explode when the delayed shot suddenly went off. Baker received injuries about the face and chest and some broken bones in his hands that necessitated the amputation of a finger. Larson was uninjured.

SALEM, Ore., Mar. 3. (AP)—Jacob Wachter, who is doing time in the Multnomah county jail for violation of the prohibition law, was yesterday granted a four months reprieve by Governor Pierce so that Wachter may provide for his family.

Indoor Champ

Meet the newly-crowned indoor tennis king—Rene Lacoste, youthful French star. He won the honor after sweeping through a field which included such prominent racketeers as Bill Tilden and Vincent Richards, finally whipping his compatriot, Jean Borotra in the final. Lacoste stands out as a most threatening menace to America's long regime in the court pastime.

Balloon Has Right Of Way Over Airplanes In New Rules

DAYTON, Ohio. (AP)—New traffic rules for flyers and balloonsists devised and compiled by the Aeronautic Safety Code sectional committee and the American Engineering Standards committee are being studied by McCook and Wilbur Wright field officers here. The code represents five years work.

Under the rules, balloons receive the right of way in the air over airplanes and dirigibles. The balloon corresponds to the air to the sailing vessel at sea. Dirigibles, like auxiliary water craft, have the right of way over planes, which correspond to steam craft.

Aircraft meeting head on shall pass to the right and an overtaking craft shall pass to the right.

Dangerous proximity when approaching is set at 1500 feet.

The code is the work of fifty experts representing twenty organizations.

The remainder of the fight was clearly a victory for the Portland fighter.

Female of Species More Agreeable Than Male Sex

SEATTLE (AP)—Feminine disposition have won a scientific decision over the masculine variety at the University of Washington.

Compilation of answers to a questionnaire circulated among sociology students by Read Bain, lecturer, disclosed that the female of the species is more agreeable than the male, Bain said. "This is not because the girl has a better disposition than the boy originally but she has had so much training in making herself agreeable that she develops positive adaptation toward ordinary annoyances."
