CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Apr. 7, (AP).—Douglas Robinson, son of assistant secretary of the navy, was at classes at Harvard university, unaware that his family had started a search for him on a report that he was missing.

While his father prepared to make an airplane flight from Washington to aid in the search for his son, and his mother, the former Helen Astor, who came to Boston last night, was making frantic efforts to find him, young Robinson was going about his daily routine after recovering from a slight illness.

OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE — By Condo

"White Panther" Laid in Kipling's Country

"For there is neither East nor West, nor border nor breed no birth,
When two strong men stand face to face, though they come from the ends of the earth"—

Of course you remember the lines, the poem, and such other great barrack-room ballads as "The Wheel-Guns," "The Widow of Windsor," and "Danny Deever"—all songs of the British army in the most fascinating and adventurous land ever held by white troops, the hill country of India. There live the Pathan, the Afridi, the Ghilzai; swarthy, muscular mountaineers all of them, proud, treacherous and fearless, the only natives on earth who ever broke a British square. There, isolated from the world, women turn to flirtation and men to adventure to escape the dull monotony of garrison life. There the tropical sun peels the polished veneer from humanity, exposing the elemental stuff beneath; life is lived in the raw. Romantic comedy or tragic romance is the stuff of everyday living. The courage and honor of men, the faith and sweetness of women, are tested constantly on the anvil of the granite hills.

In this fascinating region is laid "The White Panther," Phil Goldstone's current production showing at Sherrys tonight only starring Rex (Snowy) Baker, the world-famous Australian sportsman. The story, one of love and adventure, gives him many opportunities to justify his undisputed title as the greatest living horseman and fencer. High lights of the production include a lance tournament on horseback, a sword duel on the dizzy verge of a sheer cliff, and a harem scene photographed in one of California's most famous Persian gardens.

Critic of Life Likes "Grass," Now at Arcade

Robert Sherwood, nationally known critic of Life, saw "Grass" and advised his readers as follows:

"On rare occasions, the moving picture thrusts its head from the primeval muck of mediocrity and proclaims, in loud, clear tones—'I have an honorable place in the scheme of artistic creation. I can do great things!'

One of these great things is a picture called "Grass," which was made by three Americans in Persia without the aid of greasepaint, expensive sets, Klieg lights or a scenario. The trio in question are Merian C. Cooper, Marguerite E. Harrison and Ernest B. Schoedsack.

"It may be said that "Grass" is a travelogue; actually it is more moving, more impressive, more vitally dramatic than the finest fiction that could ever be written. In this respect it deserves rank with Robert Flaherty's great picture, "Nanook of the North."

"It is impossible for me to do justice to "Grass" with the meagre words that are at my command. It is above and beyond criticism. You will have to see it for yourself.

"Incidentally, having seen "Grass", I feel heartily ashamed when I think how I complained while moving my few household belongings from 88th to 52d Street last October."

"Grass" a Paramount picture is being shown at the Arcade theater tonight with a special matinee on Thursday at 2 o'clock.

Spring is when the closed car owners quits bragging and the open car owner starts bragging.

Royal coal and Kemmerer coal seem to be the best coal that we can get hold of. Our coal business was a new feature for the new lumber yard and we tried [illegible] different kinds and also tried the [illegible] of our customers as we didn't know just what coal to buy—but both our customers and ourselves have tried out the Kemmerer and Royal and found them to be the very best on the market. The Royal coal is mined in the Castle Gate, Utah, district and it comes from a great depth that is very hard. The Kemmerer No. 5 speaks for itself. It is the leading Utah coal. Whenever you need a ton or a carload just remember this little story: A boy wanted to buy a bucket full of coal. He was asked why he didn't get a sack full. He said, "This will last till after dark." But we are training a vicious dog for the winter coal business. If someone loses the bosom of his pants, he is to blame.
