COULDN'T FACE COP

OAKLAND, Cal. (AP)—Arthur Loeb, who police say is an escaped convict from the Missouri state penitentiary, is held by authorities because he couldn't face a policeman. He hid behind a door when an officer entered the revolving hospital where he was being treated for a slight ailment. Suspicious hospital attendants turned him over to the police.

DOES IT PAY

BERLIN—About the only compensation Otto Klein and Max Kramer have received for breaking the fasting record in a meal of oatmeal, crackers and coffee. Herr Jolly, who made the previous record by fasting 44 days, one day less than they did, took in $20,000 net but their receipts barely covered expenses.

OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE

By Condo

EVERETT, I WANT TO SHOW YOU SOME RARE STAMPS THAT I ACQUIRED LATELY. AS YOU KNOW, STAMP COLLECTING IS MY HOBBY, AND THESE—

derworld of the city and will not marry him because she years for a change in the country where she can have chickens and perhaps some kiddies to love. He smiles when he sacrifices his funds to send her there. And after a term in prison he comes back smiling to find Kitty in love with a bank cashier. He can also smile as he tells her the which permits the girl to find happiness, for he knows that the cashier has made away with a large sum of money from the bank for which they themselves plan to take blame.

But there is no smile at all when he discovers that the woman who has taken the girl into her heart and loves her as her daughter is the mother of his pal who had died in his arms, shot by the police in an attempt to loot a warehouse. But he can make this mother smile when he tells her that her son died at the Marine heroically fighting for his country. And when he gives her the croak, do quack which he himself had won, as her son's, it is the happiest day of his life.

After the tinted range of the underworld is washed away, Kitty, the girl Tom loves, realizes she has loved him from the first—and the rainbow appears at the end of which is there a pot of gold, just the opportunity to go straight.

Fay Lanphier Coming In "American Venus" To Arcade

Picturogers, who visit the Arcade theater Wednesday and Thursday to see Paramount's gorgeous comedy-spectacle, "The American Venus," are certain to find the feminine members of the cast quite soothing to the eye. Not only are the principal players plentifully endowed with good looks, but the supporting cast includes seven of the prize-winning beauties in the Atlantic City pugnant.

The woman's side of this spectacular story by Townsend Martin is acted by Esther Halston, the fetching blonde screen star; Louise Brooks, a diminutive brunette charmer from Ziegfeld's Follies; and Fay Lanphier, who was designated the most beautiful girl in America at the Atlantic City bathing beauty contest and was awarded the title of "Miss America."

To this array, the Misses Bronx, Newark, San Francisco, Bay Ridge, Birmingham and Seattle, all leading contestants in the recent seashore frolic, add their charm, grace and shapeliness.

In addition to the bathing beauty show, the picture boasts a magnificent fashion display in which some of New York's loveliest mannequins wear the latest modes before the camera. The fashion show as well as the bathing beauty show is one of the picture's main attractions.

La Grande Theatres

"The Gorilla" Coming to La Grande April 27

Local theater-goers will soon be afforded an opportunity to see the contemporary sensation at the Plymouth theater, Boston, the Oxford theater, London, England, and the cities played by the company coming to this city which has just closed a six months run in Chicago, made the greatest appeal to the public achieved by any theatrical production of the last decade. The original long run Chicago cast that will interpret Ralph Spence's "Gorilla" at the Plymouth theater, New York, includes Lon Hosenel, Harry T. Shannon, Eliza Caruthers, John Stokes, Wilbur Cox, Bert Kay, Julian Noy, Thomas Bell, John Gray, Carl Rosa and Ralph Theadore.

Herbert Lyell appears opposite Miss Rich in the role of the Baron, and others in the cast are Clara Bow, as a gorgeous little dame, and William Louis in the role of "Dabbler," cast as a treacherous business agent of the Baron, in spite of his villainous, is not without his ludicrously funny side.

The picture was directed by Carl Luth and adapted to the screen by Harry Francis Zanuck. "Comedy showing 'Too For Two.'"

Tom Moore Is Loveable Crook in "Under the Rouge"

Tom Moore's quizzical smile, so typically Irish, has endeared him to millions of screen fans. Tom always strives to please and indeed he seldom fails. Tom still wears the smile in "Under the Rouge," the feature photoplay at the Star theater, today and Wednesday and although he plays the part of a young crook and many times risks death and injury.

Tom is really a loveable crook. You'll like him because he tries to be a "square" character even when he is as crooked as a corkscrew.

He finds that the girl he loves has grown tired of life in the un-

Irene Rich in Role of Modern Eve at Sherrys

Irene Rich, in her latest picture, "Eve's Lover," at Sherrys, appears as a millionaire business woman. Eve Hursdale, Her proud independence and her powerful personality have made her, at thirty, a dominating influence in the steel industry.

The story, by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, tells of how romance, in the shape of the handsome Baron Gerardo Maddox, batters down the
