"Lady Robinhood" Showing at Sherrys Today only

"Lady Robinhood," at Sherrys today Evelyn Brent's latest starring vehicle, will prove something of a surprise to her many ardent admirers when it is shown here; but it will be anything but a disappointment, if the enthusiasts of motion picture critics who have seen the production can be taken as a criterion. The story departs entirely from the paths of brook types, which have lately provided Miss Brent with most of her parts; but of melodramas, of color, and of thrill there is plenty, as well as a wealth of old world romance which centers around the girlish leader of a band of Patriots in the Pyrenees, the kidnapping of a wealthy young American from the yacht, and the eventual overthrow of a corrupt local Alcalde, or ruler, who has been tyrannically oppressing the people. Miss Brent is superb in her delineation of "Lady Robinhood," who proves a kind of Spanish Joan of Arc, and she is given excellent support.

Clifford Howard and Burke Jennings, who wrote the original story, are to be congratulated on the originality and brilliance of the plot, and the direction given Miss Brent is at all times excellent. Comedy showing "Dr. Pyelike and Mr. Fride."

"Dancing Mothers" At Arcade Shows Fast Set

If you're just a little tired of comedy; if "Westons" bore you the least bit; if spectacles no longer make you leave your comfortable seat by the fireside; if you are one of that large army who have bachelor, and ended by falling in love with him herself, Alice Joyce gives the finest performance of her career. And Conway Tearle in his role as the bachelor who is to be new heights. Clara Bow, known as the screen's perfect dapper, does her stuff as the child, and does it well. "Dancing Mothers" has been characterized by those who have seen it as "perfect entertainment." "The Gang" in their newest comedy is also a part of the program.

Glenn Hunter Finds Charleston Dance Quite a Chore

Have you found it hard to do the Charleston, that latest and most strenuous dancing craze? You have the country in its shuffling coils and is taxing the ability as well as the feet of the best of dancers? If you have found it difficult or even impossible to master its intricate steps you might be consoled to learn that you have a celebrated companion in your trouble in the person of Glenn Hunter, popular stage and screen star of both the stage and the screen.

Glenn, he it understood, has no good reputation as a dancer, as he has acquired an actor, and he met his Waterloo for a while in attempting to do the Charleston. And he just had to learn it. In order to do one of the big scenes in his latest screen play, "The Broadway Boob," which comes to the Star Theatre on Thursday, he had to learn it. In the story of this comedy drama, Glenn comes to New York, a green yoked from the country and gets a job by accident as an actor. This job all depends on his ability to do the Charleston, so in consequence Glenn had to hurry out and learn the dance before making the scene. "I'll jump up to Ned Wayburn's studio and get it down fine tonight and be ready to do the scene tomorrow," Glenn said confidently to the director one day as he hurried away from the studio. But he never turned up at the studio next day or by three days thereafter. They went searching one morning and they finally located him at Wayburn's dance studio, almost sweating blood as well as perspiration from every pore as he tried to perfect himself in the tricky turns and shuffles of this latest jazz dance.

But his determination to do a great act—carried him through triumphantly, and although the scene was delayed nearly a week he does a Charleston in "The Broadway Boob" that would make a gentleman of color envious.

On the same program will also be seen Charlie Chaplin in "The Dog's Life," one of the greatest comedies this comedian ever made.
