TOTS GUESTS AT HOSPITAL

One coo or a soft-lipped smile, and they had the audience at their feet once more.

One almost thought that Hospital day was planned for their entertainment.

"This is where you were, Catherine," a mother explained fondly to a three-year-old who held as the door of a little white room where milk and white baskets stood in a row.

"Remember when we came here to have your tennis out, Big Boy?" a blue-suited toddler was questioned.

And so it went on. The cheerful wards remodeled to insure more of those neat-folded beds, the refurnished floors and the soft gray walls and ceilings—sufficient proof of their improvement offered in a not-yet-painted door or two on the third floor—the mahogany finished metal furniture with beds that humped to accommodate aching frames, the shiny new instruments just added to one of the best-equipped surgery departments in the northwest—all the patients pointed out to the babies, who giggled and agreed that it was a very fine hospital, to be sure.

Nor was it only the proud parents and admiring friends who capitulated. Nurses and attendants, for all their cool and immune looking uniforms, were equally as devoted. In fact, they seemed to have known beforehand that they would be. Just off the first-floor lobby they had arranged a cunning nursery, with a low-canopied bed that lurched with fluttering birds and Mother Goose children. And even in the drawingroom, where wives of the physicians served tea, the table had a nursery centerpiece, with neat doll nurses tending cradled dolls under the trees.

At 10 o'clock, the babies were gathered with their mothers on the hospital lawn, for a group picture. And before they went away, Miss Loggren gave each tiny guest a box in which were soap and talcum powder.

The gift had a special significance to Mildred Goss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Goss. Mildred had been hospitalized here on Hospital day four years ago.

P. E. Os of Chapter I were assistant hostesses for the afternoon. Under direction of Mrs. A. L. Richardson, chairman of the chapter's hospital committee, music was furnished throughout the three hours of open house. Talking part were Mrs. Ray Fuller, Ray Williams, Mrs. Ed. Robinson, Mrs. Sam Harris, Richard Dykhus, Mrs. Lester Stoddard, Miss Adelaide Ruth Clark, vocal soloists; Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Holpenkamp, Mrs. Williams and Mr. Dykhus, mixed quartet; Miss Dorothy Brown and Mrs. E. L. Holmes, pianists; Mrs. A. McKinnan, accompanist.

agencies, which claim that the government is master of the situation, no direct news has been received from Warsaw, either owing to the unusual habit in Poland of putting on a censorship when grave events are in progress or because one or the other of the contending parties has cut the wires and put the radio out of commission.

Unopposed Entry
 The Haxas agency quotes a dispatch received by the Ceteka agency in Prague yesterday to the effect that Pilsudski's armed forces were allowed to enter Warsaw without opposition.

When the news of the movement reached the government, the cabinet was called into session under the chairmanship of President Wojciechowski, and decided upon measures to spare the city from civil warfare.

Consequently government troops were withdrawn from the bridge uniting the suburb of Praga to Warsaw proper, and the Pilsudski troops entered the city at

SEWAGE MOVE IS PROMISED

Portland, Ore., May 13. (AP)—All cities and towns in the state dumping untreated sewage and other waste material into streams will be called into court to show what steps are being taken to alleviate the condition if the request made today by a committee representing the state board of health, the game and fish commissions, the State Sportsmen's association and the Valley City Engineers association is carried out. The action was requested of the attorney general.

It was also requested that steps toward enjoining the cities of Milwaukie and West Linn from constructing open mounded sewers be expedited.

Several paper mills, woolen mills and other plants dumping chemicals into streams will be asked to be represented at the second meeting of the committee next Thursday at 11 a. m., to see what can be done to make such waste harmless.

The plans for the Milwaukie sewer now being constructed had not been approved by the board of health Dr. D. F. Stricker, reported. Such permission is required by law. Plans for west Linn's sewer system were approved on condition that a disposal plant would be installed later if the board of health found the present system unsatisfactory.

Dr. J. J. Smith of the board of health was made chairman of the board. State game warden E. F. Averill is secretary.

UNION MEN IN ENGLAND STILL OUT

tram cars were functioning, and the subway service was about the same as yesterday.

Will Take Time
 The authorities predicted that things would begin to right themselves forthwith, although it would take considerable time before conditions approached anything like normal.

As far as the miners are concerned their strike against lower wages and longer hours continues and nothing is expected to develop before their national meeting of delegates here tomorrow.

Such agitation was shown at Trades Union congress headquarters this morning on account of the men not returning to work and it was admitted the situation was serious though not alarming.

Leaders Confer
 Ramsay MacDonald, J. H. Thomas, Arthur Pugh, Ernest Bevan and other leaders were at the headquarters early and after a conference hurried away in different directions.

A trades union congress spokesman told The Associated Press: "The situation confronting the country at this time is not brought about so much by unwillingness of the men to return to work as by the obstinate defiant attitude of the employers who in so many instances according to our reports this morning, have refused point blank to take them back."

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the home secretary, broadcast a message saying:

"The government feels sure that all the employers who have been assisting in meeting the requirements of the emergency by volunteer labor will recognize the great civic service those men performed and will desire to deal generously with them."

"It is suggested that employers dispensing without notice with the service of any paid voluntary workers should follow the practice which the government proposes to pursue, and grant a gratuity of at least two days pay."

Expect "Black Friday"
 There is a feeling in labor circles that the happenings since the calling off of the general strike may cause a split between the Trades Union congress and the miners, and that when the miners delegates meet in Kingsway hall tomorrow it will be another "black Friday." Similar to that in 1921 when the railway and transport workers agreed to back the miners, but the rail men suddenly withdrew.
