principal band followed by the national guard members, the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, Sons of Veterans, Oliver P. Morton Relief Corps, Daughters of the American Revolution, the Salvation Army, Spanish American War Veterans, American Legion drums and blue corps and legion members.

The American Legion drum and bugle corps presented a brilliant spectacle in their blue uniforms. Many who viewed the parade, however, remarked that the members of the La Grande municipal band were poorly uniformed, some even lacking complete uniforms. Red, white and blue bunting and flags decorated the cars, in which the women's organizations and G. A. R.'s rode.

Parade Leads to Church
 The parade ended at the First Presbyterian church, where a Memorial day program, with the American Legion in charge, was given. A fifteen minute band concert was given by the La Grande band. Those present sang one verse of "America," and Chaplain Oliver gave the opening prayer. Raymond O. Williams sang "Tenting Tonight," accompanied by Mrs. E. L. Holmes at the piano.

Hugh B. Brady gave the Memorial day address. He said "what we are striving for is a world of peace." He told of the various gram, introduced the participants, lowering each war and closed his address by saying that the time would come when peace would reign throughout the world.

GOLD DUG UP IN ALABAMA

MIDDLESBORO, Ky. June 1. (AP)—Gustav Whitfield said today that reports from Demopolis (correct) Ala., that a large sum of gold has been unearthed at the Whitfield farm near there were exaggerated. He declined to say how much had been found other than to say it was a "few thousand dollars."

DEMOLIS, Ala. June 1. (AP)—Tales of treasure trove are rivaled in the field of buried gold estimated at more than $200,000 on the Whitfield farm near here. The cache believed to have been hidden from union armies during the civil war by C. Boaz Whitfield, was discovered by means of a key left to his son, C. Gayton Whitfield, Middlesboro, Ky. The treasure consisted of twenty dollar gold pieces, minted in 1850 and before. It was found in an old powder can that crumpled on touch. Gold pieces had been found on the farm from time to time but search for buried caches was not made by Whitfield family until the location of the key in Kentucky.

A gang of negroes digging for a "buried stake" unearthed the treasure yesterday. The negroes dug for a whole week without success. They then stumbled on the powder can and its contents.

Nine heirs may bid for the gold. Some of them are descendants of brothers of C. Boaz Whitfield who was the son of General Nathan Boyan Whitfield, pioneer.

Many of the south's aristocratic and wealthy families buried money and gold and silver plate during the civil war to prevent seizure by union forces. Old timers here however cannot recall where such large amounts have been involved.

When the tarpaulin was removed, they found that Marx was seriously wounded and brought to Denver where examination showed that he had seven cuts, evidently made by a small axe, in the rear of his head. His skull was fractured in several places, and although he was still alive early today, physicians held out no hope for his recovery.
