EGG PRICES CLIMB TODAY

PORTLAND, Ore., June 2. (AP)—Fresh egg values here are following the upward trend in the eastern markets as other coast centers are tending lower. The demand for top grade eggs is firm and the offerings somewhat smaller.

Extras and firsts are up a cent on the dairy exchange at 29 and 28 cents respectively. Mediums and current receipts held at former levels. Buyers are offering shippers 25 cents for receipt eggs delivered Portland with the exchange quotation at 26 cents. Mediums are still listed at 24 cents.

Pacific coast white extras have reached the 40 cent level on the New York market with trading on a strong basis. On the other the Chicago market is easier. At San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle prices range from ½ to 1½ cent lower.

Storage holdings are gradually increasing all over the country.

Butter Unchanged.

The local butter market is unchanged. With the arrival of warm weather the usual amount of off quality butter is being passed on to the consumer at the ruling prices on best grade stock. Storage operations also continue brisk with 4710 pounds more added to local holdings yesterday.

Little change is shown in the live poultry market. A shipment of young white pekin ducks is being held at 29 cents on the street. Receipts of other lines of poultry are about sufficient to fill local requirements. Arrivals of country dressed calves were liberal on Front street today and the market was depressed. Commission men were quoting 15 to 15½ cents on choice light veal but the buyers were indifferent as usual when a few calves arrived on the street. Hogs remain scarce and firm at 20 @21½ cents for the best.

Berries were again in liberal supply on the early growers market today and prices easy. Best improved Oregon strawberries brought $2 to $2.25 a crate. Raspberries went at $2.25 to $2.50 and logans at $1.50 to $1.75 a crate.

Cherries here hard to move at five cents on black varieties and pie cherries with Royal Annes up to 7c a pound.

Oregon Cranberry Men Announce Market Plans

ASTORIA, Ore., June 2. (AP)—J. S. Dellinger, president of the Pacific Cranberry Exchange cooperative, with headquarters at Astoria, announced today the Oregon cranberry growers are going to market their crop alone this year instead of joining with the Washington growers, as in the past. The Washington growers have withdrawn from the exchange and will sell through two jobbing concerns.

The Oregon growers will market their product through the exchange and they expect to produce approximately forty cars. It is estimated that the Pacific coast crop this year will be about the same as last, 125 cars.

Where Roads Are Really Bad

Roads almost unbelievably bad exist in the Larbon oil field area, in southern Arkansas. Richard C. Craven, agent for the American Humane Association, has filed a special report dealing with the hardships endured by the mules who have to pull wagons over them. This picture shows one team bogged in the soft mud of the roadway. Craven declares he saw 30 scenes like this in a short time.

SEARCHERS TO USE DYNAMITE

LOS ANGELES, June 2. (AP)—Followers of Aimee Semple McPherson, firm in the belief of the death of their leader and undaunted by 15 days of weary and vain search of the beach where the Angelus Temple evangelist was last seen swimming, today for the first time appealed to dynamite as an aid in finding the body which they believe is held by the sea. Captain Fred Henderson, deep sea diver, acting under the direction of Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of Mrs. McPherson, made preparations to blast heavy beds of kelp today at Castle Rock, five miles north of the point where the religious worker vanished.

The dynamiting plans differ from the frenzied attempts of Mrs. McPherson's followers to use explosives in the first few hours following here disappearance when police were forced to interfere to protect beach and pier property. Captain Henderson is of the opinion that dynamite would not usually be effective in bringing a body to the surface in the surf but that it would aid if a body had been carried by the current into the heavy kelp beds of Castle Rock.

Son to Arrive at Scene

Another of Mrs. McPherson's family is due to arrive here today with the coming of Rolph McPherson, the evangelist's 11-year-old son, who will join his half sister in the vigil that awaits the solution of his mother's disappearance. The boy has been taken from the Pleasant's ranch, near Winters, Cal., to avoid the investigators who have been keeping watch there, Mrs. Kennedy said.

Commenting on reports that Mrs. Kennedy was bringing Rolph here to institute adoption proceedings to forestall a move on the part of the boy's father, Harold McPherson, of Ocala, Fla., Mrs. Kennedy said she anticipated no such action by the father. She said that if he should make a move in that direction she will act to offset it. The father's motives for such action would be based on the belief that Rolph would inherit considerable money and property if his mother's death is established, Mrs. Kennedy said. She declared that neither of the two children "will receive very much, but will always be well cared for."

Divorce Agreement Cited

At the time Mrs. McPherson was sued for divorce, she agreed not to contest it if she were allowed to keep the child, Mrs. Kennedy said.

REFORMED CHURCH GOES ON RECORD FOR PROHIBITION

PHILADELPHIA, June 2. (AP)—The general synod of the Reformed church in the U. S. stood in favor of prohibition today and against any attempt to modify the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act even to the extent of permitting the manufacture and sale of wines and beers of slightly greater alcoholic content than at present allowed by law.

In a resolution adopted last night, it was declared that even partial enforcement of the eighteenth amendment has proved a great blessing to thousands of individuals. At the same time the synod expressed disapproval of the stand recently taken by two classes of the 58 in the general synod which declared that prohibition was contrary to the spirit of the Bible.

Daughter of Portland Judge in Elopement

PORTLAND, June 2. (AP)—Freida Stadter, fourteen-year-old daughter of Fred W. Stadter, municipal judge of Portland, who eloped yesterday with Theodore C. Riggs, Portland boy, is being sought by her father today.

The couple obtained a marriage license in Hillsboro yesterday afternoon and were married by a justice of the peace.

The girl gave her age as eighteen in the license application. They left on their honeymoon immediately after the ceremony and were reported to have started for Gales Creek, near Hillsboro.
