KENT SEITZ DIES HERE OF INJURIES

4-Year-Old Boy Crushed Under Wheel of Auto Stage Yesterday

INQUEST WILL BE HELD LATE TODAY

Accident Occurred Near Five Points Filling Station, Eight Miles from La Grande.

An inquest over the crushed little body of Kent Seitz, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Vern E. Seitz, who died on the operating table at the Grande Ronde hospital at 5 p. m. Monday—three hours after he was run over by a passenger stage turning around in the vacant lot where he was playing near his father's filling station, eight miles west of La Grande—was to be conducted at the Hohenzollern chapel at 2:30 p. m. today. ...

Howard Burnett, 21, driver of the stage, has not been held, but is remaining in the city to await the verdict of the coroner's jury. The bus was operated as an extra by the Motor Transit company.

Driving Extra Staged. Burnett had been called from La Grande to pick up three passengers that the regular eastbound stage from Pendleton had not been able to accommodate.

The young man said at the undertaking parlors last night that he had arrived at the Five Points filling station at about 2 o'clock. Taking on the waiting passengers, he had swung into the campgrounds west of the building, thinking to back into the highway in order to head back toward town.

Boy Playing in Gravel. Kent was lying on his stomach near a gravel pile, into which he was digging little caves with his hands.

'History of School District Nine'

How fascinating can be the pioneer history within a single school district is shown in the essay by Maud Johnson, a sixth grade girl of the Pleasant Grove district, who won second prize in the fifth and sixth grade division of the local history essay contest. She has made her pictures of the little old school-rooms so realistic that the reader feels himself a sharer in the experience of "the first pupils in the first public school ever taught in Union county."

This is the history of school district No. 9, of Union county, as told to me by Mrs. Ellen Kuhn Ficklen, a pioneer of 1862 and one of the first pupils of the first public school ever taught in Union county, and as learned from Union and Wallawa county history.

The first settlers in this district were John Lewis, E. Kuhn, William Glenn (known as Uncle Billy), L. L. Glenn and Jack Morrison. Jack Morrison's place was the first place taken up. He later traded it to E. Kuhn. Mr. Kuhn lived on the place till his death, which occurred 11 years ago. The L. L. Glenn and John Lewis places still are in the hands of their descendants. The Billy Glenn place is owned by Elias Johnston.

COOPERATION FORUM THEME

H. E. Coolidge Delivers Main Address at Chamber of Commerce Luncheon Today.

"There is no more reason for lack of cooperation in the Grande Ronde valley than in our families. If we cannot achieve cooperation we had better go where we can," said Coolidge, speaking on "Community Cooperation" at the weekly meeting of the chamber of commerce at the Foley grill today at noon.

No foundation for petty differences among Union county communities exists, the speaker declared, adding that "our relations are as inevitably close to permit jealousy and lack of cooperation."

He spoke of the mail order business, pointing out that one phase of cooperation is the patronizing of home industry. "Buy home products as far as possible and keep our money at home," he said. "Let's buy in Oregon but first in the Grande Ronde valley."

Following Mr. Coolidge, the Rev. Murray Bradner, of Cove, spoke of group thinking, asserting that this is closely allied with community cooperation. "Our differences are valuable," he said. "All contributions are beneficial to the whole."

"We all need a common objective to work toward," he said, during his talk he praised the local chamber of commerce for its furtherance of this spirit.

Several members of the Cove commercial club were present today, guests of the local organization. Jim Morlock presided and the Rev. Oliver Hilley returned thanks.

Ray Williams, accompanied by Mrs. E. L. Holmer, sang two numbers during the luncheon, which were well received.

Bruce Dennis, now en route east as a representative of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, presided.

BROOKHART IS CHOICE OF IOWANS

Republicans Give Former Senator Great Vote of Confidence

FARM RELIEF LACK PROTEST IS SEEN

Victory Regarded by Insurgent's Supporters Setback for Administration.

LATEST COUNT 1800 precincts out of 2442 reported: Brookhart—120,261. Cummings—118,000. Clark—50,012. Reed—43,511. Eisenhower—3,410. Brookhart plurality—41,261.

WASHINGTON, Iowa, June 8 (AP)—Colonel Smith W. Brookhart, nominated over Senator Albert B. Cummins in yesterday's senatorial primary on a platform that included farm relief, was the principal plank in the republican voters' mandates on that issue, he announced here today, and will leave for Washington tonight in an effort to obtain farm legislation during the session of congress if possible.

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 8 (AP)—Iowa republicans want Col. Smith W. Brookhart in the U. S. senate and since he asked for it in the seat for which they nominated him in 1924, he will receive the support of the party machine. Albert B. Cummins, senate veteran of 14 years service.

By a vote of 100,000 to 90,000, his opponents' Brookhart was returned to prominence by his party yesterday's scant two months after his deposition from the senate in favor of Dan P. Cook, democrat who contested his election in 1924.

Entering for third time as the nominee of the party which both in Iowa and in the rest of his senate activities has discovered. Brookhart's opponent, however, cast across the capital a shadowed symbol of displeasure in Iowa at congressional defiance with farm relief, or reinforcement for the senate insurgent group of which he became, in less than four years, a vociferous and valued member.

Vote Equals Advance Claims. Read out of his party in 1924 by the state central committee of Iowa and in 1925 by the republican caucus assembled by colleagues after his disavowal in the 1924 campaign of Charles C. Dawes as the party vice presidential nominee and his support of LaFollette for the presidency Brookhart won yesterday by a vote

Pendleton Man Killed In Auto Wreck Near Arlington, Oregon

PENDLETON, June 8 (AP)—Elden F. Harvey, of Pendleton, was instantly killed last night at 10:30 o'clock when the coupe he was driving to Portland failed to negotiate a reverse curve two miles west of Arlington and crashed into the banked roadside. Impact of the collision was so terrific that he was thrown against the top of the car, crushing his skull.

He was picked up a few feet from the car by George Coppinger, also of Pendleton, riding with him, who was thrown from the rig, escaping with a bruised chest and leg. Death was instantaneous, according to physicians at Arlington, called to the wreck, the end of the top of the head being crushed to such an extent that the face was almost beyond recognition. Mr. Coppinger and Mr. Harvey left Pendleton last night about 8:30 for Portland. They reached Arlington about 10:30 o'clock, where they filled the tank with gasoline and started for Portland on the Columbia River highway.

As they started the reverse curve, Mr. Coppinger said, both he and Mr. Harvey realized they could not make the turn. As they struck the bank the door on the driver's side flew open. Mr. Harvey struck the top of the car and was thrown through the doorway. Mr. Harvey was known in Pendleton as an excellent driver and had never had an accident before. He has lived in Pendleton for several years.
