

ARMY PILOTS SAFE FLYERS

FAIRFIELD, O., June 25. (AP)—The Model Airways of the Army for five years have maintained, without a fatality, a regular schedule of flights for passengers and freight.

Since April, 1921, this group has covered more than a million miles in the air over four thousand miles of routes which are accurately mapped and organized throughfares. The system is operated under the chief of air service through an airway control officer, Lieutenant L. J. Matland of Wright Field, here.

Ships Start Simultaneously. Airways trips have averaged two thousand miles for each army pilot, all of whom take turns in making the flights, and usually cover two days. Ships start simultaneously from certain flying fields such as Holling, Langley, Selfridge, Scott and Mitchell fields, and move over charted lines on schedule. Sometimes the flyers cross en route; sometimes their ways coincide in part.

They fly over all kinds of ground, in all seasons, and tabulate with the most minute accuracy every point regarding ground and air conditions. It is by means of these repeated first-hand reports that information governing selection of routes, speeds, altitudes, length of hops and other vital details has been brought to the point

Secretary Work Gets "Hanged" Again.

Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work, recently hanged in effigy by Nebraska farmers, underwent a "petition" of the experience when a big crowd of demonstrators on the Verde river irrigation district, near Phoenix, Ariz., gathered, to protest against his ruling that the district organization could not develop the project. of usefulness for virtually all of the United States. Night flights over the army airways arranged for the technical equipment necessary to keep the mails going.

A Passenger's Diary. A service passenger, on his first long "trip" over the airways, described the experience as follows: "A longing look at the ground near St. Louis, a big bump, and on the ground again outside Louisville. Up again and smoothly down again at Dayton. Average speed 115 miles per hour. Average height 2000 feet. Dayton to Washington, practically no difference. D. C. to Mitchell Field, much the same, except fewer bumps over the water."

Scheduled army flights heretofore have run on a weekly basis, but on June 1 they were restricted to one per month from each starting point. It is hoped that in the fall, funds and equipment will be available to put Douglas Transports on the airways, permitting the carrying of seven passengers on each trip.
