OUT PRICE OF CHRYSLERS

Substantial reductions in prices of all models of the Chrysler Imperial "80" car, ranging from $900 to $1400, have been announced by the Chrysler Corporation, according to L. W. Weeks, local manager.

reductions, said: "These savings announced, for the Imperial '80' constitute the third bit of evidence of the working out of our policy of quality standardization in the four great motor car markets—the four cylinder field, the two great lower priced six cylinder markets and the field of the finest motor car that money can build. This important reduction in the Imperial '80' follows within three weeks substantial reductions ranging from $50 to $200, on the Chrysler '70' models, and the exceptionally low prices at which we were able to announce the new Chrysler '60', brought out five weeks ago and already selling at the rate of 2,500 a week. "Substantial reductions in costs through this policy have made these new lower prices possible, as there has been absolutely no change in the quality, workmanship or material entering into any of our cars. "The announcement comes coincident with one of the most successful periods we have ever enjoyed. Our shipments and retail sales during May were the largest of any corresponding month in our history, with orders on hand indicating a larger demand than ever before during the coming months."

French Women Take to Automobile with Zeal

PARIS, June 26. (AP)—Driving an automobile is a new diversion for French women, who have taken to it with zeal. It is noted, however, that the number of women to be seen at the wheel in the streets of Paris has dropped off considerably. Driving through the capital has proved too much for French women's nerves. Many men avoid driving into the city, however, preferring to leave their cars just outside. The road to the police court is paved with good pedestrians. Sign on Back of Ford. "Churning—just for you."

HEALTH

BEWARE OF THE "DANGERS OF THE DIP"
(By Harold Bailey, M. D., Springfield, Mo.)
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Every summer the practice of the eye, ear and nose specialist is materially increased by an influx of patients calling for treatment of diseases contracted in the public swimming pools and bathing resorts.

Acute infections of the ears and sinuses of the nose comprise the majority of these ailments, while infections of the eyes and lids are less frequently met.

How are these diseases contracted and what can be done to prevent them?

The use of chemicals in the water and the frequent changing of the water are helpful, but are entirely inadequate in themselves to safeguard the patrons against infection.

A bather with a discharging ear, an infection in the nose or eye, can take one dive and scatter enough germs throughout the pool to infect any number of his fellow bathers. Their ears, eyes and noses become filled with this contaminated water.

As they emerge from the pool one will work a finger in his ear in an effort to remove the water. This rubbing of the finger against tender skin, already softened by water, may scratch the surface deep enough to permit of infection from the dirty water. Soon he has a series of boils in the canal of the ear.

Another promptly blows his nose vigorously and as promptly forces the contaminated water through the eustachian tube into the middle ear; or through the nose into the sinuses. In a few days he may have earache or an acute sinus infection.

Bathers in rivers and streams are surrounded by certain natural safeguards that are not afforded patrons of inland resorts. Running water will rapidly purify itself and is being constantly changed. The bather in the open air, exposed to the warming rays of the sun, is not so readily chilled and his resistance to infection is greater.

It is to the patron of the indoor resort that a timely word of warning is pertinent because his protection lies largely with himself.

A shower bath before entering the pool is essential. What does it profit a man to wash the dirt from his body if he pours it back into his nose and ears?

Keep fingers out of ears. The water in them may be uncomfortable but it will soon drain out.

Do not blow your nose on emerging from the pool. It is bad enough to have dirty water in your nose without blowing it up into your ears and sinuses.

Inflamed eyes or eyelids are usually made worse by bathing and the infection also may be transmitted to others.

Those with an infection or discharge from any part of the body should stay out of swimming pools, lest they do injury to themselves and endanger the health of others.

Really, the best car for the money is the one you read about in the advertisements.

There are 15 million motor cars in the United States. And yet some folks can't understand where all the money goes.
