FORM REVERSALS

Form reversals are frequent in all forms of sport. When they occur, past performances count for nothing.
 Form has been shot to pieces this year in both leagues.
 Any critic at the opening of the season with the tenacity to suggest that the New York Yankees would be ten games in front at the half-way mark, would have been adjudged the "prize nut" of the year.
 Yet that is just where the Yanks are.

McGraw's Team

When I looked the teams over in the spring, the New York Giants looked like the class of the National league, the Pittsburgh Pirates excepted.
 It was much the same team that had won four straight pennants for McGraw, with far better reserve strength. Incidentally, it seemed as if Manager McGraw was certain to get much better pitching.
 When I talked with the leader of the Giants he stressed that fact. I am sure he felt that he had a great chance to win.
 Don't get the impression that the Giants are out of it. The team is only a few games out of first place and coming fast.
 However, in the early stages of the race the pitching failed the club and pennant hopes were badly shaken.

THRILLING RACE

The early season setbacks encountered by Pittsburgh and New York have done much to provide the National league with a thrilling race.
 In like manner, the sensational winning streak of the Cincinnati Reds and the unexpected strength shown by the Chicago Cubs have also helped to "jazz up" the situation.
 With the teams at the half-way mark, six clubs in the National league still have a chance. Only Boston and Philadelphia appear to be out of it at this writing.
 And, strangely enough, during the spring training games in the south the Boston Braves provided all the fireworks. Baneroff's club apparently left its winning habits in Florida.
 If Cincinnati played anywhere as good on the road as at home that club would now be enjoying a comfortable lead. On the home lot the Reds have been practically invincible.

ANENT YANKEES

While two clubs, the Pirates and the Giants, stood out in the National league, making it appear as if the race would be a toped### affair, just the reverse proved true.

On the other hand, the American league which appeared to have no outstanding club, and four or five of nearly equal strength, has been a runaway race for the Yankees so far.
 For several weeks the Yankees have been from 20 to 25 games better than the .500 mark. It is a rather interesting fact that the margin now held by the club can be traced to two winning streaks.
 On one occasion the Yankees won eight straight before being stopped while the next winning streak didn't end until 14 victories had been recorded.
 Those two winning streaks, totaling 24 games, are responsible for the lead now held by the New York club. The rest of the time it has merely played .500 ball.

AVERAGE BALL

A margin of, say, 20 games better than the .500 mark with the race half over, makes a ball club feel mighty comfortable.
 Pennant figures give up the information that a club winning 30 or more ball games is in line for the championship.
 All the Yankees need to do from now until the close of the season to reach that mark is to split even on the rest of the schedule.
 A brand of .500 baseball will assure the club that figure. And, unless the Yankees should suffer some terrible calamity it is very reasonable to suppose they will turn the trick.

MINISTERS BACK GRAND JURY MOVE BY MAYOR BAKER

PORTLAND, Ore., July 2. (AP)—The Portland Ministerial association has approved a letter to be sent to Mayor George Baker, commending him in calling a grand jury to investigate charges by the Rev. Clement G. Clarke, of the First Congregational church, that city officials were "participating in corruption."
 While the association approved Clarke's campaign against gambling and vice, it refused to endorse his charges against the city officials. A committee was appointed to follow the grand jury sessions and keep in touch with its progress.

BAWLS BRINGS COIN

SAN FRANCISCO—Edith Foster, 8, not $2.25 for a broken 14-cent bottle of milk. Edith entered the store with the bottle safely enough but when she started home, her feet wouldn't behave. A passerby heard her wails and gave her a quarter. Other passerby did likewise. When she stopped crying she had enough to start a Christmas fund.

Railroad President Denies Deal Rumors

CHICAGO, July 2. (AP)—Ralph Budd, of the Great Northern railway, said there was nothing to rumors that his company was negotiating for control of the Northern Pacific company's holdings in the M. P. and S. the Oregon Trunk and the Oregon Electric. President Budd said there had been some talk of a deal of this sort, but that there were no developments.

Seeks Tennis Laurels

LIONEL OGDEN

Lionel Ogden is captain of the Stanford University tennis team this season and expects to lead his men against the pick of the country in the annual eastern intercollegiate tournament during the summer. Ogden is a brilliant player himself, and many concede him a good chance of coping the singles championship at the big get-together.

Commission May Demand Rehearing in Rail Case

SALEM, Ore., July 2. (AP)—Unless the railroads involved in the interstate commerce commission's Eastern Oregon railroad development decision promptly carry out the determinations of the commission the Oregon public service commission will demand a rehearing of the entire case, according to a message sent the I. C. C. yesterday. The message declares that the railroads have not manifested any inclination to act, notwithstanding the lapse of 60 days.

Catherine Creek Rain Continued All Night
 TELOCASET, July 2. (Special)—Yesterday morning's showers were not particularly heavy in the section between here and Medical Springs. Though east of the summit on Catherine creek the precipitation was very marked. A number of campers in the Walla Walla mountains say it rained hard a good portion of the night. The moisture was much needed though not enough fell in this section.
