OREGON PIONEER DIES

PORTLAND, Ore., July 2. (AP)—Daniel Gaby, 83-year-old pioneer of the Pacific northwest, and one of the first graduates of the University of Oregon, died in Olympia Tuesday night. Gaby graduated from public schools of Oregon City and the university law school. He was an attorney and practiced law in Oregon for a number of years.

She was only a fishmongers daughter, but she had a whale of a line.

Mad and Merry Chase Is Climax In MacLean Comedy

For synopsized action for high-pressure thrills and for riotous laughs, "That's My Baby," Douglas MacLean's new Paramount comedy, which is playing at the Arcade theater today and Saturday, deserves the blue-ribbon award as the week's finest entertainment. It is uproarious fun from the hilarious beginning to the delicious finish.

Fred Thompson And Silver King At Sherrys

"Ridin' the Wind," the new Fred Thompson production made for F. B. O., which will have its local premier at the Sherry theater might well be called "Riding the Gale of Mirth," for its laugh-producing qualities are such that a pessimist might safely be defined as one who had seen this picture and failed to gurgit over it. As vivid as its title, and with the most adroit and amusing situations, the action of "Ridin' the Wind" is as speedy as its name would attest. Del Andrews has done a corking job of direction, and has got most out of the very comical "houder" incidents in which Fred is caught in the window's room and has to hide for fear of detection. As usual, Silver King, Thompson's wonder Horace, is a bright particular co-star with his master. Silver does two remarkable things in the latest production featuring these favorites:—he jumps from a moving baggage car with Fred on his back, and he returns repeatedly into a burning barn, where the heroine is lying unconscious, eventually leading his master to the girl. It is authoritatively stated that no horse has ever been taught to do this before. Marion Jackson wrote both the original story and the

"Still Alarm," A Blazing, Exciting Film, Now at Star

A deft and skillful combination of melodrama, pathos, comedy and realism, told in scenes both colorful and thrilling make "The Still Alarm," the Universal Jewel which opened last night at the Star theater for a three day run, one of the most entertaining photoplays of the season.

The entire picture is a glorification of the fireman. He is shown at work, at home, in the midst of smoke and falling timbers, and the picture brings home vividly the dangers and hardships to which the fire-fighters are subjected.

Some of the most thrilling fire scenes provide the elemental climaxes of the picture, with two highly dramatic scenes with Holme Chadwick as the unselfish wife, and William Russell as the forgiving husband, to add to the intensity of the story.

Both Miss Chadwick and Mr. Russell give excellent performances. Russell as the fireman who loses his wife because of his inability to provide her with luxuries, and Miss Chadwick as the girl goes after after happiness only to find it in the modest surroundings she had left.

Richard C. Travers, formerly one of the most famous of screen stars, is seen in "The Still Alarm" as the polished villain who lures the wife from her husband and brings his wide experience on stage and screen to his aid in giving a capable performance.

Edna Marian, formerly seen in Century comedies, proves a real "find" for feature production in the role of William Russell's daughter, Edward Hearn is another new face on the screen which should prove popular. He plays the youthful fire fighter who wins
