Seeks Another Title

Bobby Jones is one of the few amateurs who have topped national open honors. Jones came through in 1923 after a thrilling play-off with Bobby Cruikshank. Last year the Atlanta artist tied Willie MacFarlane, only to lose out in extra rounds. A short time later Jones went on to win the national amateur at Oakmont. This year he hopes to grab another title in the open at Scioto.

Billy Evans Says:

THE WAIVER ROUTE

Going the way of the waiver route is a rather tough experience for a big league star.

Recently, within a week, two of the outstanding pitchers of the majors, Grover Cleveland Alexander and Joe Bush, have experienced that known.

One club in the National league, the St. Louis Cardinals, claimed Alexander. All the American league clubs as well as the National, waded on Bush. Bush later signed with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The former star of the Athletics, being a 10-year man in the majors, was entitled to his unconditional release when no longer claimed by a club in the big show. He got it. I am of the opinion that Bush will be helpful to the Pirates, who have been losing many games of late.

ARRIVED SAME TIME

Alexander and Bush came to the majors about the same time, in the same city, Philadelphia.

The great Alexander made his National league debut in 1911 with the Phillies, while Bush joined the Athletics the following season, but worked in only a few games.

For years Alexander has occupied much the same position in the National league as Walter Johnson has in the American, the outstanding right-handers in their respective organizations.

The record of Alexander is more imposing than that of Bush, although Joe has done some great work during his 15 years of service.

On eight occasions Alexander has won 20 or more games during the season. His three best years were 1915-16-17, when he won 21, 23 and 30 games, respectively.

DISCOVERED BY MACK

Joe Bush was discovered by Connie Mack out at Missoula, Mont., and made good from the start. He did fine work for Mack for five seasons.

When Connie started to clean house with his all-star ball club, Bush was one of the players he parted with.

At the close of the 1917 chase he was traded to the Boston club, with Amos Strunk and Wally Schang for players Gregg, Thomas, Kopp and cash reported at $40,000.

After one season with Boston, in which he broke even with 15 victories and defeats, he suffered arm trouble that kept him out of the game practically the entire 1919 season. He appeared in three games, working nine innings.

The consensus of the ball players was that Bush was through.

BUSH'S "TORK" BALL
During the 1919 campaign, while Bush was undergoing various treatments in an effort to bring back his arm, he began a series of experiments with freak deliveries.

At the close of the season he had developed what was generally called the "tork" ball. Bush held it between the fingers of his pitching hand and so released the ball that it broke not unlike a splitter. Instead of being through, as supposed, he startled the baseball world in 1921 by his sensational comeback, winning 14 and losing nine.

Traded to New York, he had the best year of his entire career in 1922, helping the Yankees to a second pennant by winning 24 games

BILL MEHLHORN LEADING FIELD

COLUMBUS, O., July 9. (AP)—

All but sixty leading golfers will be eliminated from the national open championship competition by the second round of play at the Scioto Country Club today, while the same three score who led at the end of the first round yesterday had no assurance of surviving after the second session, their scores indicated that those who had totals higher than 158 for 36 holes would be in the discard.

As play started today the leader for the first 18 holes was Bill Mehlhorn, of Chicago, who forewore his nickname of "Wild Bill" by threading the narrow fairways and finding the treacherous greens with only 68 strokes, a record for the course.

Jones Second.
Close at his heels were Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, seeking to add to his titles of national amateur and British open that of American open champion, and John H. Junger, of Portland, Ore., northwest open title holder. They scored one under par on each nine for totals of 70.

One stroke farther back came Al Espinosa, of Chicago, and Joe Turnesa, of New York, while five men including the defending champion, Willie MacFarlane had par 72 to their credit. Three were three with 73 including Walter Hagen and a half dozen with good 74s.

Bill Mehlhorn slipped badly on the last seven holes taking 39 for the homeward trip, which gave him a total of 75 for today and 143 for 36 holes. He still led the field by two strokes at that time.

couldn't get going. All reports to the contrary, there is considerable sentiment in baseball. I, for one, hate to see outstanding stars like Alexander and Bush reach the end of their string.

O those haunting, taunting, hot-pipe blues!

THE HOT-PIPE BLUES is now a back number... a dirge of days gone-by. Modern pipes no longer moan, "What'll I do?"... They've changed their tune to "Sweet and Cool," and "Always!"

So if your pipe still gets red-hot, it's a safe bet you're still smoking tobacco that's cut too fine—for finely cut tobacco naturally burns fast and smokes hot... Pipe tobacco should be cut in large, slow-burning flakes.

Try this on your pipe: First, ream it clean, then fill it full of Granger Rough Cut... It'll never get hot again! Notice how slow Granger's large flakes burn... how cool it smokes. Cool as a sea breeze... from morning till night.

Granger ends all your pipe discord. For it's neither sharp nor flat—but smooth and "mel-lodious"!... Keep your pipe packed with Granger and life'll be one long, sweet song!
