CALIFORNIANS COMING NORTH

The tide of summer recreation touring from California north to Oregon, Washington and British Columbia has already become a fact and promises much to exceed that of any former year. Tourists who cross the continent from California are more and more turning that a motor trip along the entire Pacific coast offers more enjoyment and scenic beauties than are found along any of the routes across the continent.

This knowledge is increasing and up and down the coast by motor tourists. Californians are turning to the enjoyment of such a trip, and the number of Californians who motor north in the summer time is increasing. Also those who live in the Pacific northwest are using the great connecting artery of the Pacific highway to enjoy the beauties and comforts of California.

Census Taken.
The Oregon highway commission made a traffic census June 16 at the key point at Grants Pass, where the Pacific highway is joined by the Redwood highway. This census showed a total of 4419 cars passing that point that day, of which 3870 were on the Pacific highway and 549 on the Redwood highway. Of these cars, 728 bore licenses of states other than Oregon, 542 of them on the Pacific highway and 186 on the Redwood highway. Of the total of 728 foreign cars 542 bore California licenses, showing the importance of California travel to the states of the north. This north and south travel along the whole Pacific coast will undoubtedly be stimulated by the new movement for joint publicity of all the coast states.

Compared With Winter.
How this summer traffic compares with winter travel is shown by the census taken by the California highway commission January 18 and 19 last where the two highways cross the state line between California and Oregon. This showed for the two days a total of 658 cars, of which 61 were on the Redwood and 595 on the Pacific, which is the only real winter route. Much of this winter travel is of northern cars going and returning from California.

Then He Went South.
Hear about the lad in the car who called to a sweet young thing on the curb, "Want a ride, sister?"

"Are you going north?" she asked. "Sure," "Well, then bring me back some Eskimo pies," she said sweetly.

Standard Equipment.
Speaking of practical gifts a road map and a flashlight should be very acceptable to the careful girl who likes motoring.

It is a wise motorist who carries a can of gasoline in his car, even if it is only one gallon. Although it may be possible to secure gasoline in an emergency by sending after it, it may be difficult to find a telephone. If this reserve supply is not used some one less fortunate will welcome it.

Do not have a dirty camp. It should be cleaner than your home. Crumbs dropped on the ground don't show like they do on the floor, but flies and insects find them. Destroy all refuse from the table in the fire. Don't pollute the woods.

A section of an old inner tube makes a good funnel when pouring gasoline from a can into the tank.

"Mileage Under Cover"

CTC tires are giving the best service any tire ever gave. They're built that way.

On every highway on the West Coast more and more cars are flashing the CTC from the tire cover on the spare.

There are Two Sound Reasons:

1. Motorists are getting more mileage from CTC's than they ever expected from any tire.
2. CTC's, by their extra mileage, are proving themselves to be the cheapest tire you can put on your car.

Prove the facts for yourself. Make this road test. Put one or two CTC tires on your car opposite the tires that have given you satisfaction, and then check the mileage.
