SENATORS WIN FROM CHICAGO

Billy Evans Says:

GREAT ROOKIE YEAR
Stars at various positions in major league ball seem to run in cycles. This appears to be the year for promising young infielders.

Perhaps a dozen infield recruits, who in the spring were just possibilities, have made the grade. They are a rather astounding group when you consider the qualities necessary to win a regular job on a big league infield.

Tony Lazzeri, of the New York Americans, is, I think, outstanding among the recruits. His ability to step into the Yankee lineup and deliver, rounded out the team as much as Ruth's comeback or Bob Moseley's all-around brilliant work.

HUNNEFIELD LOOKS GOOD
Ranking with Lazzeri is another Pacific coast recruit, Bill Hunnefield of the Chicago White Sox. Little regarded in the spring, Hunnefield, by his enthusiasm plus real ability in the field and at the bat, has won a regular berth at shortstop.

In the spring, Hunnefield worked at third, short and second. An injury to Bill Kamm gave him a chance to break in at third. He did very well. When warm weather slowed up the veteran, Everett Scott, he stepped in the breach at short.

He was to fill in until Moe Berg reported. Moe being busy getting his law degree at Columbia university. It would have been better for Moe from a baseball standpoint had he arrived on the scene earlier for Hunnefield has never relinquished the job.

A FEW MORE
Oscar Melillo, after getting away to a poor start at St. Louis, because of injuries, has struck his stride and in the main spring of the team's remarkable comeback after a most disappointing start. He is now playing second after making his debut at third.

While Freddie Spurgeon of Cleveland, is just one of the recruit class, he arrived this year as a star and no player has done more to keep Cleveland in the race than the Indians' classy second-sacker. Washington has a fine prospect in Buddy Meyer. He is being used at both third and short. Connie Mack has a great-looking kid shortstop in Engle, Gehringer of Detroit has done well at second, as has Wagner of the same club at third.

The Boston Red Sox bank on Billy Hogan to deliver at second. Mark Koning at short for the Yankees has slumped a trifle after a great start.

REDS HAVE GEMMER
The National league has been equally fortunate in picking up some brilliant youngsters for infield work.

While Frank Gemmer of the Cincinnati Reds is not a youngster in years, he is, in point of big league service. His ability to hold down the shortstop job helped make the Reds. Regarded as work at the bat, he has surprised lately in this feature of play.

There is Red Rhyme of Pittsburgh who has helped the Pirates greatly in the pinch. Also Gaitner of Boston and Butler of Brooklyn, who, while they have disappointed at the highest, worked well in the field. Eddie Farrell of the Giants is another.

HERMAN GETS CHANCE
Outstanding among the National league rookies is Babe Herman of Brooklyn.

For years this player has been buffeted around by various big league clubs and invariably sent back to the minors without getting a chance.

Two American league clubs, Detroit and Boston at various times had him on their payroll.

It might have been the same this year had not Jack Fournier suffered an injury that gave Herman his chance.

All he is now doing is standing near the top of the National league in batting and playing a bang-up game in the field. When Fournier returns to the lineup, it looks as if a place might be found in the Brooklyn outfield for Herman. Such fitting as he cannot be wanted on the bench.

If you never have any troubles you never know what it means not to have any troubles.

NORTH TO SOUTH AIRMAIL SERVICE TO BEGIN SOON

PORTLAND, Ore., July 25. (AP)—Air mail service on the Pacific coast between Seattle and Los Angeles will start within two or three weeks. Keith E. Gorst, president of the Pacific Air transportation, which has the contract for carrying the air mail made the announcement today.

Eight planes and twelve pilots are ready. All that remains is installation of beacons 5,000,000 candle power for guiding the planes, which the government requires. Establishment of beacons between Portland and Seattle started yesterday. They will be set every 25 miles, with smaller light markers between each pair.

Six pilots will be on active duty and six in reserve. Ryan monoplane of metal type with whitewind motors will be used.

STATE CHIEFS CLOSE SESSION

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 28 (AP)—The first governors' conference ever held in the west came to a close here today after three days of discussion of the problems facing the state executives. State finances, state rights, prohibition and uniform state legislation were the principal subjects of discussion.

Uniform state laws and a debate on prison-made goods and their relation to the industrial market formed the subject of the closing session this morning with George B. Young, of Montpelier, Vt., president of the national conference of commissioners on uniform state laws, and Governor Franklin S. Hillier, of Vermont, as the speakers.

An executive session concluded the conference with the selection of an executive committee for 1927 and an announcement of the state capitols seeking the conference next year.

ing a heavy train rack. The rack had been propped up and a new hoister was being placed on the wagon. Walnhart was putting the hoister through the bolster when the heavy rack fell on his hand. All the flesh was mashed off the first finger of his right hand. The injured hand was dressed but it is feared he may lose the finger.
