CHICAGO. (AP)—Johnny Griggs' three-base hit started a battling rally in the ninth inning which gave Chicago a 5 to 4 victory over Washington in the final game of the series. The White Sox played an uphill game, driving Covelack off the hill in the eighth inning only to have the rally checked by Marberry. Griggs' home run with a man on in the eighth inning had given the visitors a three-run lead. H. H. Washington 4 12 1

Billy Evans Says:

HOW FABER STARTED
In sport, opportunity often knocks at the door in a most unexpected manner. Getting a chance to make good in the big leagues is the ambition of every ball player. The careers of many of the stars reveal unusual circumstances in connection with their big league debuts. However, I seriously doubt if any major league player got his opportunity to make the grade through as peculiar a chain of happenings as did "Fido" Faber of the Chicago White Sox. Faber is one of the few remaining spitball pitchers in the American League. He is one of the best twirlers in the history of the game. During the last 12 years he has played a prominent part in the success that has come to the White Sox. Incidentally, he is one of the few pitchers to win three games in a world series. He turned the trick in 1917 against the New York Giants.

PURCHASED BY CHICAGO
Getting back to Faber's baseball days and his rise to fame and fortune, as Horatio Alger would put it— Back in 1913, Faber's fine showing with the Des Moines club of Western League, then managed by Frank Isbell, former White Sox star, caused him to be purchased by the White Sox. At the close of the 1913 season the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox made a world tour. Just before the start of the tour it was discovered more pitchers were needed. Frank was invited to make the trip for two reasons. First, to help out in the pitching, and second to give the Chicago club a chance to get a line on him. On the way to the coast, from where the clubs sailed, Faber worked in several exhibition games and met with only fair success. At the last moment it was decided not to take him on the trip as a member of the White Sox. Also it was about decided to turn him back to the minors.

THEN CAME CHANCE
Then came the break that shaped Faber's future career. John McGraw of the New York Giants supplied it. He was "Old Man Opportunity" in Faber's case. After Chicago had decided it couldn't use Faber, McGraw believed he might be of value to the Giants and secured permission from Chicago to take him on the trip. Before the boat sailed for the far east, Faber turned in his Chicago uniform for one of the New York Giants'. On the trip McGraw sent him against the Sox in four games and he won them all in a most impressive manner. In fact, the manager of the Giants liked him so well as a prospect he made a flattering offer to Chicago for his services. McGraw's opinion of Faber caused a change of mind on the part of the Chicago management. The offer was turned down and he was ordered to report for spring training, which was close at hand. He did and made good.

HE WHIPPED GIANTS
Faber managed to break even in his first season, winning and losing eight. Most of his victories were scored over the Detroit club a team which he has always found easy to beat. His best year was in 1921 when he won 23 games. It was the irony of fate that McGraw, responsible for Faber's chance in the majors, should suffer most for having provided the big opportunity. In 1917 New York and Chicago for the first time met in a world series and Chicago won, because Faber scored three victories over the Giants.

Suicide's Body Found At Kelso Court House
KILSO, Wash., July 21. (AP)—The body of an unidentified man was found early today on the court house grounds here, within 20 yards of the county jail and officers expressed the belief that it was a case of suicide. A revolver with one cartridge fired was found partly under the body. No one heard the shot. The man had been dead less than three hours when the body was found, physicians said. The dead man was about 40 years old and had dark hair streaked with gray. He was neatly dressed, was five feet nine inches tall and weighed about 130 pounds. More millions for prohibition. Our coast line is a coast line.

HE'S A REAL CHAMPION

FIDO LA BARBA

Since the sensational victory of Fido La Barba, flyweight king, over the tough Georgia Diver, experts are fouting the Pacific coast as a real champion—one of the best the division ever has had. La Barba, you may remember, came into the title by whipping the shorter Frankie Genaro last year (the crown going to the winner following the untimely death of Champion Pancho Villa). La Barba now plans to invade the east and show his wares to critical New Yorkers.

FILES ACTION AGAINST BOUT

DENVER, Colo., July 31. (AP)—Another chapter was written in the tangled state of affairs surrounding the projected Dempsey-Tunney championship bout in Sept. here yesterday when Grandtly Hillier, former U. S. district attorney here, acted for R. C. Clements, of the Chicago Coliseum Athletic association, filed in federal district court an application for an injunction restraining the champion from engaging in any bout before meeting Harry Willis, negro challenger. Citing the contract that he claims to hold, requiring the champion to meet the negro challenger, Clements asks that Dempsey be restrained from engaging in any bouts involving his title before squaring off in the ring with Willis.

CHICAGO, July 31. (AP)—The filing in Denver of R. C. Clements' plea for an injunction restraining Jack Dempsey from fighting anybody, anywhere, until he meets Harry Willis, caused only a ripple of excitement here. John "Doc" Krone, however, matchmaker for a group of Chicagoans, who hopes to stage the contest, proclaimed that Clements' move put an end to Tex Rickard's plans for staging a Dempsey-Tunney fight in New York September 15. "There isn't a way in the world that the contract can be got around," Krone declared, "and Dempsey, knowing that, will do the reasonable thing."

Wilbur to Inspect Aerial Mapping Group

SEATTLE, July 31. (AP)— Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the United States navy, left Seattle early today on the destroyer Decatur of the battle fleet for Southeastern Alaska to inspect activities of a naval aerial mapping expedition, with headquarters at Ketchikan. Secretary Wilbur went at the invitation of Admiral C. F. Hughes, commander of the battle fleet on the Decatur. They were midshipman classmates at Annapolis. The Decatur was accompanied by the destroyer Doyen.

Secretary Wilbur and Admiral Hughes plan to return Wednesday to Port Angeles, Wash., where the battle fleet has been making its rendezvous on Puget Sound. Rumors of experiments with a baby airplane were confirmed yesterday when the famous industrialist, on the occasion of his 63rd birthday, gave a successful demonstration of the tiny monoplane a product of his laboratories.

The demonstration, Ford officials were careful to point out, does not as yet herald entrance of the company into mass production in the light plane field. Although admitting enthusiasm over the prospects of the plane, they declared the project is still in the experimental stage. Designed by Otto Kappen, young German engineer employed in the Ford experimental laboratories, the little plane is powered by a three-cylinder air-cooled motor. The pilot sits about midway of the wing which is placed along the top of the fuselage. It has a wing spread of 22 feet 15 inches long and weighs 350 pounds. It is planned to replace the motor with a three-cylinder engine which will bring the weight down to about 310 pounds. The fuselage and wing construction is of metal with fabric covering. The motor turning over at 1600 revolutions a minute gives a top speed of about 85 miles an hour. The plane lands at 20 miles an hour and has a stalling speed of a little over 20 miles an hour.

Stars for Reds

One of the most important cogs in the machinery of the Cincinnati Reds this season is Fred Lucas, star right-handed hurler. Lucas has been doing his share to keep the Hendersons team in the running. Not only has he won a bunch of games through fine work in the box, but his timely hitting has turned in more than one victory.
