STANFIELD MAY ENTER FALL RACE

ward to an independent candidacy until I could fully investigate the conduct of the primary campaign. The fact that I was in Washington attending to the business of the people of Oregon during the whole of the campaign made it impossible for me to accept myself thoroughly with the political maneuvering that was used to help bring about my defeat. My investigation has progressed to a point to where I can state my decision will be made, either for or against accepting an independent nomination not later than the next Tuesday. Scores Oregonian.

"At the present time I desire to call attention to a leading editorial which appeared in the Oregonian yesterday, entitled, 'At Whom Are They Hinting?' In this editorial the question is asked, 'Will Mr. Stanfield now turn upon Calvin Coolidge in response to the plottings of the democratic press and organization?' Also the editorial declares, 'They are goading him (Stanfield) to make it more nearly possible for the president's bitterest antagonist (Bert E. Haney) to sit in the United States senate, whether by becoming an independent candidate or by engaging in active opposition of the election of Mr. Stetson.'

gonian yesterday, entitled, 'At Whom Are They Hinting?' In this editorial the question is asked, 'Will Mr. Stanfield now turn upon Calvin Coolidge in response to the plottings of the democratic press and organization?' Also the editorial declares, 'They are goading him (Stanfield) to make it more nearly possible for the president's bitterest antagonist (Bert E. Haney) to sit in the United States senate, whether by becoming an independent candidate or by engaging in active opposition of the election of Mr. Stetson.'

Stanfield Confident
 "I can assure the voters of Oregon that if the trend of events should finally result in my becoming a candidate for the senatorship, I would go with the perfectly obvious intention and in the confident belief of winning the election by defeating both Mr. Haney and Mr. Stetson at the polls November 2. In its editorial, also quoted, the Oregonian expresses the fear that 'Mr. Haney's election would be heralded throughout this wide country as a rebuke by republican Oregon of Calvin Coolidge.'

Believes Henshaw
 "As regards the investigation that followed the perpetration of the 'yellow helmet' outrage, I believe Mr. Henshaw's sworn statements of account to be true and correct as filed July 17 with the secretary of state. Mr. Stetson and his treasurer Mr. Latourette were informed of Mr. Henshaw's account as early as July 24. Both men are lawyers. Either or both of them could have sued Mr. Henshaw for libel and in addition have had him indicted for criminal libel and Henshaw would have been obliged to prove the truth of his charge or be convicted. At least some of the four resulting suits could have been tried before the present date and Henshaw's conviction would have been a complete vindication for both Stetson and Latourette. Neither of the latter made any denial or explanation until after Mr. Henshaw filed his complaint with the secretary of state. Their failure to sue Henshaw and thereby speedily obtain a judicial investigation and decision added to the evidence I have seen corroborating Mr. Henshaw's conviction beyond a reasonable doubt that his statement above mentioned is true."

Trade of Contrasts
 "Speaking as the Oregonian candidate Mr. Stetson, on April 6 delivered an address over the Oregonian radio wherein he said: 'It becomes my duty to state adequate reasons why Senator Stanfield should not be nominated.' These alleged reasons comprised a trade of innuendos, a mass of prevarication such as has probably never been paralleled in any senatorial campaign of recent years."
