AT THE THEATERS

Death-Defying Leap By Acrobats in Star Film

Partners Boss and Artinell, World's greatest acrobatic duo, Partners—yet deadly enemies, Fort Artinell has enticed the soft, dark-eyed dancing girl away from giant Boss who is infatuated with her.
Boss and Artinell, Whirling through their famous trapeze act at the mammoth Winter Garden, one hundred feet above the audience. Suddenly a hush falls on the thousand below. The climax of the great acrobats' performance—the starting three-fold death-defying leap has come.
Boss glances down for an instant at the sea of fascinated eyes far below. Through his leantousy-maddened brain a thought flashes. If Artinell should fall—if he, (Boss), should miss by a fraction of an inch his partner's wrists as they come flying toward him—the girl!—the girl!

There, in a few words you have one of the big "punch" scenes which take place in Paramount's latest production, "Variety," which is the feature attraction today and Wednesday, at the Star Theater. The film was made in Germany by the Ufa Company. Emil Jannings and Lya de Pazzi are the featured players.
A comedy is also being shown.

Valentino in True Form in Play

Yesterday at the Arcade theater, the audience who viewed Rudolph Valentino's newest film, "The Son of the Sheik," demonstrated anew that the screen's greatest lover had made no mistake in giving his public again a thrilling desert film, in which he plays the sheik role that fits him so snugly.
It was like Babe Ruth hitting a home run,—doing that thing which people like best to see him do.

Agnes Ayres, charming lady of "The Sheik," returns to the screen in "The Son of the Sheik" for "flash-backs" to that earlier picture. Her acting proves anew that she is sensitive and intelligent performer. Karl Dane, the gun-chewing Slim of "The Big Parade" goes further along the highway to success by his rendition of the role of Ramolan, giant friend of Ahmed, Montague Love is as villainous a Moor as ever buried a knife, and thoroughly satisfies the exacting demands of his role. And, believe it or no, Bull Montana appears in turban and owning-striped robes!
"The Son of the Sheik" will continue its run at the Arcade theater today and Wednesday.

John Barrymore's Latest on at Sherrys

"The Sea Hawk," the Warner picture that marks John Barrymore's return to the screen, is described as "an epic of the golden age of American sea-faring adventure." It deals with the 1840 whalers.
Barrymore appears as Ahab Cooley, the New England sailor who falls in love with a missionary's daughter whom he meets on a voyage to Java. His brother, Derek, burns with jealous hate at the success of Ahab as a lover, and when the brothers are off on a hunt for an enormous white whale, known as Moby Dick, his chance for vengeance comes. Out on a little boat, Ahab is the first to plunge the harpoon into the whale. He is glowing with pride at victory when Derek pushes him overboard into the churning waters.
But in the end, Ahab's story is the story of an unconquerable soul. Barrymore, who loved so beautifully through the pretty romances of "Heau Brummel" and with such blood-curdling power through the horrors of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," at last found a pic-

"The Steak Hasn't Come, Mother"

"Very well, ring up and see about it."—It was an oversight. Accidents will happen in the best regulated markets. But it's all right now, the steak is on its way and the dinner is saved . . . thanks to the telephone.
"I'll ring up and see."—That's the formula for getting you out of life's little emergencies. Yes, and often life's big ones.
You must have a telephone. It is a household need; as necessary as note paper and envelopes.
Why aren't you on the 'phone?
