AT THE THEATERS

Doug MacLean Featured in "Hold That Lion"

Daniel in the lions' den had nothing on Douglas MacLean, judging from the funmaker's laughable predicament in his new Paramount comedy, "Hold That Lion," which is the feature attraction at the Arcade theatre today and Saturday.
 In a laudable endeavor to prove himself a hero in the eyes of the one and only girl, the redoubtable MacLean joins what he mistakenly believes is a "cat" hunting expedition. When he discovers that the "cats" are not the familiar and harmless household pets but wild, man-eating lions, it is too late to withdraw.
 As matters turn out, instead of MacLean hunting lions, the lions hunt MacLean. The results are just as funny and exciting as one would imagine. In the end, the comedian has the last laugh on the animals, for he succeeds in capturing a live lion, though in a decidedly unorthodox manner.
 The lion hunt is merely the climax of a long series of mirth-provoking adventures, which begin in New York when MacLean falls in love with a charming blonde. Unfortunately, the girl starts on a round-the-world trip before he can

Outdoor Film Bristles With Thrills

As clean and wholesome and inspiring as the vast outdoors it pictures so realistically, "Fortorn River," latest of the Zane Grey classics, swept into the Star theatre last night to stir the sluggish blood of an eager first night audience.
 Here is a swift, exciting romance-drama that has much of interest to moviegoers quite apart from its entertainment values. It recreates one of the most colorful and violent periods in the up-building of the West—that rip-roaring era when the forces of law and order clashed in a desperate struggle for supremacy with the forces of outlawry. Those were the days when a quick trigger and a fast horse were a man's best friends. Because of this historic significance, "Fortorn River" has an heroic flavor usually lacking in the average so-called western.
 George C. Hull, the scenarist, and John Waters, the director, have done full justice to Mr. Grey's original story, both in the matter of adaptation and staging. The picture is a thing of speed and suspense, bristling with dramatic action, which has been skillfully balanced with some excellent comedy moments. In addition, it has the advantage of extraordinary scenic settings, for it was filmed against the rugged background of Zion National park, Utah.
 Jack Holt heads a competent cast in the picturesque role of a "good-bad-man." He first appears as an outlaw and fugitive from justice, but later turns against the cattle rustlers in his efforts to re-

Last Showing Of "Compromise" Is Tonight

When lovely woman stoops to compromising her ideals to match the standards of a less sensitive world, she stands a greater chance for happiness. At least so it would seem after seeing charming Irene Rich in "Compromise," the Warner Bros. Classic of the screen which opened yesterday at the Sherry Theatre.
 While beautiful Joan Trevor fought against compromise, setting her ideals above the lax standards of her friends, she suffered and was constantly humiliated. It was only after she had forgiven her erring husband, and realized the weakness of human nature, that she faced understanding and peace. The supporting cast of "Compromise" includes Clive Brook, Louise Fazenda, Pauline Garon and Raymond McKee; as brilliant a group of players as has been assembled for one production in a long time.
 With Jay Geizer's dramatic story, deftly adapted to the screen by E. T. Lewis, Jr. and perfectly

When the Receiver Hook Is Down Your "Voice Track" Is Clear

Just as a lowered semaphore signal tells the engineer that he may speed ahead, a telephone receiver hook that is all the way down signals the operator that your telephone line is clear for calls.
 But when the receiver is accidentally left off the hook, or held up by books, papers, or other objects left under it, the operator gets a signal which indicates that your line is either in use or out of order. Then your people cannot call you.
 You will help in our effort to give you the best possible service by always making sure that your receiver hook is all the way down.
