TRAGIC TALE OF THE NORTH TOLD

Eskimo Woman Saves Mad Husband to Save Lives of Children

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Oct. 8. (AP)—How a little Eskimo woman fought to the death with her demented husband on a lonely Labrador island to save herself and her two children from being killed by him was tragically related in supreme court here yesterday. The wife, Julienne Tutin, was acquitted. Julienne and her husband and their children were the sole inhabitants of the island. She told how, when put to the supreme test with her body broken and bruised by blows from her husband's gun during the struggle, she did not hesitate to stab him time after time with a sheath knife and then rid his body with bullets from one of his rifles. Pled for Hours. Her eyes swelling with tears, Julienne, through a Moravian missionary acting as interpreter, told the court how her husband, Ephraim, came home on the evening of June 11, and said he was going to kill the baby. Stricken with fear, she spent hours pleading with him to wait until morning, hoping that someone one would call at the island or that she might be able to attract the attention of persons on the mainland. Her stratagem succeeded for a time, but during the night Ephraim rushed out of doors with his two rifles and started firing them. He told Julienne he would shoot the dogs first so that they might not eat the bodies of his children, when he killed them. Julienne asked that she be given a rifle to join in the killing of the dogs and in this way got possession of one of the guns. Wife Cruelly Beaten. A moment later she testified, Ephraim beat her down with his rifle. With her head crushed, an arm broken and bleeding from numerous wounds, Julienne retreated into the one-room shack. Seizing a Bible given them by a missionary she sought to stop her husband by calling his attention to what he had been taught from it. Again she was beaten down, and when it seemed her husband was ready to kill her infant, after Natilus, their 11-year-old boy had cowered from terror, she grasped a sheath knife and plunged it again and again into her husband's wounds. Then she seized a rifle and shot its contents into his body. When her strength returned Julienne made the body secure with a seal tallow, dragged it out of doors and signalled for aid from the mainland. Health may be wealth, but never swap. College has started and many are taking steps toward turning the new fall days.

The Garden

CROCUSES FOR LAWN PLANTING

Crocuses spangling the lawn before the grass is fairly green in the spring have become a standard planting because of their unusual and gay effect from late March through April. Buying crocuses by the thousand and tucking in from one to six bulbs in any vacancy in the garden is an effective method of producing a show weeks before the garden usually is giving anything in the way of display. Crocuses should not be planted too deeply, two inches of soil over the largest bulbs being plenty, and less than that with bulbs of the smaller sizes. In the lawn, a sharp stiffened knife to lift a small piece of sod, dropping in the bulb and tramping the sod firm again is the easiest way to do the trick. They are best planted haphazardly in the lawn, throwing them carelessly about and planting where they fall. This is much more effective than in planting in straight lines or geometrical patterns. The crocus is often short-lived in the lawn because the early mowing which is needed does not give it time to ripen its foliage, which is necessary for the formation of next year's bulb. However, crocuses are cheap enough to justify an annual planting and there is no more cheerful sight during the first bright days of spring than to see the golden bulbs of the yellow crocuses, usually the first to bloom, blowing up through the sod.

DR. C. G. DONEY ADDRESSES EDUCATORS

Obedience Stressed. "I would first put obedience into him. It is not a chaotic world. Teach the boy that results are achieved in accordance with certain principles. "I would put truth into him, since this is a working world. Not much is done through genius and luck. Let him be prepared to work. For when we work enough, we somehow redeem ourselves. "I would put truth into him. Let him understand that by no alchemy, by no trickery, is it possible to make two and two equal five, or three and a half. Truth is the only principle by which he can make the forces of the world become his own. We can't deceive the boy—he can see through grindstones. The best way to put truth into him is to have truth in himself. He can tell whether the teacher is four-square or cater-cornered. "Then I should put into the boy reverence for all that is good; for his country, his God, for law, for opportunity, for himself, and for womanhood. Let him be kingly in his protection of the weak. "Let us remember, teachers, that the most unimproving creature may become the finest if they have a chance; that we all have possibilities for infinite greatness." Speaks Second Time. Dr. Doney spoke a second time on the institute program when he addressed the high school department meeting this afternoon. The address followed one on

Labor Federation Faces New Dilemma

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 8. (AP)—The American Federation of Labor convention faced a new dilemma today in a swelling tide of sentiment against favoring action disavowing the address of a convention guest, publicly charged by a number of delegates with having violated the courtesy of the floor. Members of the executive committee of the federation deliberated upon a possible course of action repudiating the remarks of Sherwood Eddy, who was introduced at yesterday's session by President William Green as secretary for Asia of the International Y. M. C. A. Mr. Eddy was cordially greeted by the delegates as he took the platform but soon after adjournment labor officers publicly expressed astonishment at the nature and tone of his remarks and last night blocs of delegates gathered informally to outline a program looking to emphatic denial that the address in any manner reflected the sentiments of the convention.

Eaton Lane Plans To Be Drawn Up

S. B. Morgan, county engineer, was authorized to prepare plans and specifications for the improvement of the Eaton lane road, out of Union to the Ed Miller farm, in response to the petition of Ernest Kohler, by the county court, which adjourned its October session yesterday. The report is to be filed at the next regular meet. Nothing was done in regard to the vacation of Connersdale lane, since a petition of that nature must be filed 20 days before any action can be taken. Judge E. G. Couch explained.
