"PLAY THE MAN"—Be of good courage, and let us pray the men for our people, and for the ethics of our God.—2 Sam. 10:12

Pretty soon dogs will have to carry tail lights at night.

Yes, motorists are pretty careless and arrogant. But the motor casualties would be far greater if drivers didn't observe the traffic rules better than pedestrians do.

"British Concerned as Famine Conditions Attack Warring China." They'd better be concerned before famine conditions attack England, with coal up to a cent a pound and the mines about to be flooded.

Dean Inge says the British Empire is tottering to its fall. Maybe so. But a scientific fellow-countryman of his once explained that man walks by a succession of falling motions, and we've noticed that Britain usually totters forward.

MORE LIFE RAYS.

Next year is going to be a great year for sunburn, says Dr. Pettit of the Mount Wilson Observatory, in California. Also for health. The sun is going to give off more ultra-violet rays—two and one-half times as many as it did in 1923 and considerably more than this year's supply.

It is these rays, "beyond violet" in spectroscopy or rainbow, and therefore invisible to the human eye, which are the health-giving element of sunlight. They cure rickets, stimulate the growth of red blood corpuscles, help tuberculosis cases and promote health and life generally.

The heat rays are something else. They merely give a pleasant sensation of warmth. It is the ultra-violet rays, which cannot be felt at all, that have electrical, life-giving power. Sunspots are held responsible for the whole business. There is going to be an increase of sunspots next year, resulting in less heat from the sun but more radiant stimulation. A race tending toward anemia can afford to endure a lower temperature for the sake of "pep" on the other side of the rainbow.

THE MALARIA CURE.

German chemists announce a new and effective cure for malaria. Quinine serves the purpose now pretty well, but the new drug is said to be 10 times as strong as quinine, with the additional merit of being tasteless, so that it is easily taken in any form. The discoverers, after extensive experiments in various countries, say that it quickly destroys the micro-organism which causes the malarial infection, and may be regarded as a sure cure.

That will be an enormous blessing to humanity, if it has no collateral bad effects on the patients. Malarial fever is one of the oldest and most disastrous diseases in the world. It is regarded by some historians as the main cause of the death of the great ancient civilizations, and it is today one of the chief obstacles to human conquest of vast, fertile areas. Any drug that enables man to defy the malarial mosquito should be worth billions to civilization. It is the next thing to getting entirely rid of the mosquitoes themselves, which is an almost hopeless task.

There is still a great deal for medical science to do, however, along this line. Most of the mosquitoes that infest forests and marshy areas are not malarial carriers, but nevertheless discourage human occupation by the pain and irritation of their bites. Who will find a way to make human beings immune to this petty annoyance? There are some persons now who are never bitten, or never poisoned by mosquitoes. Can this immunity be extended to all?

HARTLEY FACES RECALL ACTION

Political Opponents to Strive to Oust Washington Governor

SEATTLE, Oct. 19 (AP)—The quarrel between Governor Roland H. Hartley, of Washington, and his political opponents has come to a showdown.

The showdown is in the form of an attempt to recall the state's chief executive. A recall petition seeking to oust the governor was filed with the secretary of state yesterday and committees of representative citizens and representatives of labor unions prepared today to circulate petitions to obtain 57,576 signatures the number required to bring about a special election.

Need 25 Per Cent Voters. This number is required by law which provides that 25 per cent of the number of persons who voted for the governor must sign petitions for his removal before an election for that purpose can be held.

The charges against the governor in substance are that he "violated his oath of office, committed wrong acts in office and committed right acts in wrong ways."

The principal bone of contention between the governor and his opponents is education. Governor Hartley, those who seek his removal allege, has been an enemy to education in the state and has as a result crippled state education institutions and removed regents and other officials of institutions who opposed his designs. The resignation of the trustees came with the recent resignation of President Henry Suzzallo, of the University of Washington, at Seattle. The action though taken by the board of regents is blamed on the governor who, it is alleged, sought Suzzallo's board of replacement by removing regents favorable to Suzzallo and appointing in their places officials who would vote to oust him.

Governor Denies Charges. All this the governor denies and declares that he did not dictate to the regents in their action in removing Suzzallo. The governor also insists that he intends to carry out a program of economy and good government without fear or favor.

The petition filed yesterday also charges the governor unjustly removed from office three trustees of the University of Washington and a trustee of the Cheney Normal school in order that he might fill the vacancies with his own appointees.

The recall movement was initiated at a Seattle meeting last Wednesday.

UNION PERSONALS

UNION. (Special)—Mrs. W. A. Feiser and daughter, Vertie, spent last week visiting in Boise, Ida. Lloyd Bailey, who was recently in partnership with his brother in a second hand store and sold out to local people, is leaving for Enterprise where he has taken over a similar establishment.

The local yards of the Grande Rondo Lumber company has just completed another row of sheds on the east side of the building they have here.

Three new cars made their appearance on the streets of Union last week. County Commissioner W. W. Stevens having purchased a sedan, Arnold Kohler a coupe, and O. I. Foreman a coupe.

W. V. Gamble, a bachelor residing in North Union, was agreeably surprised last Wednesday evening when a delegation of members of the Neighbors of Woodcraft gathered at his home for a social visit. They brought well filled baskets and after a pleasant time spent in social games, music, and dancing, they all enjoyed a tap lunch.

David Stills and John Miller were candidates for the initiatory degree in the local Odd Fellows lodge last Friday night. After the degree work was over the candidates and members enjoyed lunch in the lodge kitchen. H. H. Little and Bert DeVore, of Cove, attended the meeting.

Dr. Leonard Davis and his family are moving into the Harry McClay cottage on Main street.

M. S. Levy was host to the past masters of the Grande Rondo Valley Masonic lodge at the Union hotel last Thursday evening. The dinner was followed by a meeting at the Masonic hall where the past masters perfected an organization.

N. B. Chisham left last Wednesday for Kansas and probably Texas. He has a daughter living in the latter state. Mr. Chisham will remain in the midwest during the winter.

The commercial club will be host to the teachers of the high school and grades of the city at the Union hotel Monday night, Oct. 18. This is an annual event for the club and will take the form of a dinner and social hour following.

Several business changes are being made this week. G. P. DeLap is planning to move his bakery from its present location which back from the street to the K. P. building. Scott and Blacher will move their second hand store from the Odd Fellows building into the store room recently vacated by the Webster Variety store. Louis Biederer, who has a plumbing shop in the Union Hardware building will move his shop and go to Hot Lake where he has accepted a position at the sanatorium.

Students and faculty of the Union high school enjoyed their annual rally Friday night even though the weather was rainy. The freshman class prepared the bonfire near the south building and in the glare of the blaze from the pile of boxes, etc., speeches were made by several students and teachers on good sportsmanship, teamwork, and support of the football team in the game with Baker scheduled for the next day. Then, after serenading up Main street, the rally was over.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Caster made a trip to Baker Sunday to see his brother who is in a hospital there.

W. B. Ledbetter and Frank McKennon were among the out of town visitors who witnessed the Baker-Union football game here last Saturday.

While coming from his work near Telocast, Pete Hogenesen, who is superintending the construction work on the spur from the railroad at Telocast, had a breakdown a few miles from Union. He managed to get into town and leaving the car in a garage for repairs, he went on to La Grande on the stage.

Arlington, Home of Washington Visited by Marie

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—Marie, of Rumania, paid quietly tribute to the past and present glories of American democracy as she passed for a while today on the threshold of her trip across the continent.

Attracted by the emotions of a sovereign who had seen her own Balkan kingdom overrun by the swelling tide of the great war, she first went in state to Arlington and in the name of her government and people, offered up a silent prayer at the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Then her royal motorcade rolled away across the Virginia hills to Mount Vernon the home and tomb of Washington, 20 miles down the Potomac.

Late in the day she was to receive her official welcome at the white house. Following the code of sovereigns from time immemorial, she was to call formally upon the president, and he and Mrs. Coolidge were to make a return visit immediately afterward to the queen's temporary palace at the Rumanian legation. Tonight the royal visitors will be guest at a white house dinner.

First Official Act. The trip to Arlington was Queen Marie's first official act on American soil. Although she had been welcomed as a queen from the time she arrived in New York harbor yesterday, and had been ushered into the city last night by ranking officials of the state department, she reserved until today the formal round of visits that are to mark the official beginning of her American tour.

Leaving the legation at mid-afternoon the queen by her own request rode into Virginia in an open touring car, at the head of the

UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

Winnshoro Mills, Winnshoro, S. C.

These cotton mills, controlled by the United States Rubber Company, specialize in cord for United States Tires.

Answering some Questions about the Cord in United States Tires

Q—How important is cord in a tire?
A—Cord provides the strength for the tire. It is the framework and the reinforcement which gives to the tire its form and structure. Rubber saturates, insulates and webs the cords together and supplies the tire with its wear-resisting surface.

Q—Who makes the cord for United States Tires?
A—The superior cord used in United States Tires is made in the Winnshoro Mills at Winnshoro, South Carolina. These mills are controlled by the United States Rubber Company and have been, since 1917.

Q—Why does the United States Rubber Company consider it advantageous to operate its own cord mills?
A—This is in keeping with the Company's policy of ensuring absolute uniformity and high quality in all the materials which go into its tires. For the same reason, the Company grows its own rubber on its great plantations in the Far East.

Q—Then, this cord from the Winnshoro Mills is uniform and of high quality?
A—Yes. These one-product mills use machinery especially adapted to making cord for United States Tires. The operators are specialists in their work and the entire energy of the mills is devoted to making the best tire cord that can be made.

Q—How is the quality of the cord assured?
A—Tests are made at each step in manufacture at the mills. Further tests are made of each carload received at the tire factories. A third series of control tests are made periodically at the Central Textile Development Department, the Company's technical organization specializing in the development of cotton goods for the United States Rubber Company.

Vote The Republican Ticket

ELECT Frederick STEIWER U. S. SENATOR
ELECT I. L. PATTERSON GOVERNOR
ELECT N. J. SINNOTT CONGRESSMAN

The election of Steiwer as U. S. Senator from Oregon is of national importance. By virtue of republican control of the senate Senator McNary holds the chairmanship of the important irrigation and agriculture committees. If the voters of this state should go so far as to elect a democrat it might mean a loss of republican control of the senate and a consequent surrender of Senator McNary's vital committee chairmanships.

A vote for Steiwer, the regular republican primary nominee is a vote for republican control of national affairs.

Patterson is familiar with the problems that would confront him as Governor of Oregon. A farmer, he understands the problems of the farmer. A business man he knows the needs of business. He promises fair and just treatment for all. He will seek to lower taxes through a reduction of the cost of state government. He will not follow established precedent and spend most of his time away from the state capitol.

Patterson will be your Governor, on the job, attending to the business of the state as it accrues.

Few men in public life have more faithfully served their district and their state than has Congressman N. J. Sinnott, during his many years that he has been a member of the lower national legislative body. He is a member of the rules committee, commonly known as the "steering" committee, of the house. He is also chairman of the public lands committee and occupies a prominent place on the irrigation committee.

You have used good judgment in the past, you will use good judgment again, by sending N. J. Sinnott back to congress.
