POTATO MARKETS
GROW STRONGER

Creates Bullish Feeling Over State

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 26 (AP).—Continuous wet weather has done much to strengthen the Northwest primary potato market.

With the growers hardly able to get in the fields to dig and only about half of the crop harvested at this time, offerings are becoming scarce and stocks available are being held higher.

Several big operators are out in the local territory trying to buy potatoes. Offers are being made of $1.50 for U. S. No. 1 grade or $1.10 to $1.15 paid for field run stocks, sacks furnished in both cases.

Naturally this is creating a bullish feeling among the growers and some are actually trying to dig in the mud. Others who have a few sacks already dug are in no hurry to sell but prefer to hold for higher prices.

Daily List Steady
The local dairy list remains steady and unchanged with bids on the dairy board posted at former levels.

Country dressed veal is holding steady with prices fractionally higher at 15 1/2c. Choice light hogs are unchanged at 19c generally. Receipts are only moderate.

Demand for poultry is light and the market quiet. Receipts are plenty sufficient for the meager call. Prices are unchanged. Medium hens are moving good.
