"FAT" PRIMA DONNAS GONE
PAIN (AP). Fat prima-donnas with temperamental throats have had their day, asserts Madame Cecil Arden, whose European debut in Paris was a marked success.

"Proper care of the body will keep any one from becoming fat and a singer's sore throat is usually a state of mind," Madame Arden is quoted as saying by "Commedia." "They used to say: 'As hard to handle as a prima-donna.' This generally came from inefficient managers."

Mme. Arden "manages" herself. She has just arranged 52 concerts in the United States, closing with appearances at the Metropolitan opera in New York.

"The modern singer is not content merely to sing beautifully," she says. "She must interest herself in the allied arts, and especially in what modern artists are doing."

Born in New York, Madame Arden studied in the public schools and did not begin to play the piano or sing until sixteen. She made her debut at the Metropolitan, singing with Geraldine Farrar and Curcio.

The new balloon pants have sure satisfied man's craving for the wide open spaces.

What are your two highest ambitions?
Blondes and brunettes!

Two elderly spinsters were spending the night together. Composed for sleep, one suddenly nudged the other violently in the ribs. "Did you hear that noise?" she demanded in a searful whisper. "It sounded as if a man were under the bed."

"You bet I heard it," replied her companion, "and I want it distinctly understood that I heard it first."

Travel broadens one mentally and flattens him financially.

The house-to-house canvasser had talked for an hour.

"This car-bearer," he said, "speaks for itself."

"Then," interrupted the housewife, "suppose you keep quiet for a moment and give it a chance?"

Union Attempting To Organize Band

UNION, Nov. 25 (Special)—A meeting of the band boys was held at the city hall recently to see what could be done toward organizing the Union band and securing the services of a director. It is hoped that the band will be able to secure some financial aid from the city, as Baker and La Grande have been doing for a long time. A committee will attend the next meeting of the council to present their petition. If such aid can be secured it is believed that the organization can secure about 20 members to begin with.

THE "W" NECK

The "W" neck is the latest example of alphabetical style in English evening frocks. It is an amusing variation of the V-shape and U-shape necks and is being used on a large number of this season's dinner dresses, particularly those made from black velvet.

AT THE THEATERS

"Ace of Cads" At Arcade Is Menjou's Trump

Adolphe Menjou, that ace of actors, comes to the Arcade theater in a film version of Michael Arlen's "The Ace of Cads." Menjou portrays "Beard" Martin as no other player could possibly have done. The dissolute young Guards lieutenant who reforms for love of a woman, is betrayed by a false friend, loses her and comes back twenty years later only to kill a second love so that the first may live—becomes an intensely real person in Menjou's skillful hands.

Those who have read Arlen's story (and who hasn't?) know that it concerns Beau's love for Eleanor, a beautiful English girl. Beau de Gramercy "frames" Martin and compromises him in such a way that his sweetheart thinks him unfaithful. Her lack of faith makes the youth forget everything and he soon receives a dishonorable discharge from the regiment. Eleanor marries the other man and Beau goes to Paris—and forgetfulness.

Years later, thinking time and the war have healed all scars, he returns. Then what? Director Luther Reed has endowed "The Ace of Cads" with one of the most amazing twists ever seen. You'll never guess what happens so why spoil your pleasure by divulging the finale?

Suffice it to say that Menjou has trumped "The King on Main Street" and "A Social Celebrity" with "The Ace of Cads." Alice Joyce and Norman Trevor are featured.

"Partners Again" Showing at Sherry's Tonight

If any argument were needed to convince the public of the astonishing versatility of Henry King as a director it may be found in his interpretation of the Montague Glass stage success, "Partners Again" with Potash & Perlmutter at Sherry's.

Henry King has given to the screen many of its most notable productions, among which might be mentioned the gold medal photoplay, "Tolable David," "The White Sister," "23 1/2 Hours Leave" and "Stella Dallas." To this widely dissimilar list is now added "Partners Again," featuring George Sidney and Alexander Carr as the world-famous 50-50 partners.

Few directors, indeed, find it possible to adjust themselves to such a wide range of stories, but King does it most successfully. In "Partners Again" with Potash & Perlmutter, he plots the pair of argumentative business associates through the intricacies of the automobile business than which there are few with more comedy possibilities.

They deal in the "Schneekmann Six." There have possibly been worse automobiles manufactured, but they do not appear for sale on any legitimate "automobile row." The complications which result from their distribution and demonstration are indeed gloom-defying.

Others in the cast, in addition to Sidney and Carr, are Allan Forrest, Betty Jewel, Robert N. Schable, Lillian Elliot, Lew Brice, Earl Metcalfe, Gilbert Clayton and Anna Gilbert.

The scenario is from the pen of Frances Marion, whose trusty scripts are in great measure responsible for the regular success. This picture is released by United Artists corporation. Comedy showing "Hot Cakes For Two."

Hoot Here In Humorous Movie At The Star

The trials and woes of a motion picture "extra" are humorously depicted in the opening scenes of "The Texas Streak," the Universal-Lasker starring Hoot Gibson, which opens at the Star theater today for a three-day run.

The opening of the story finds Gibson as a mournful extra, stranded by his unsympathetic movie troupe in the wilds of Arizona because he has foolishly lost his railroad ticket home in a dice game.

From there the story develops into all manner of excitement and scores of humorous things happen to the clever and popular star. "The Texas Streak" was written and directed by Lynn Reynolds, who made Gibson's "Chip of the Flying U" and "Combat" and "Prisoners of the Storm," with House Peters.

The supporting cast includes Blanche McWhorter, Alan Roscoe, James Marcus, Jack Curtis, George "Slim" Summerville, Jack Murphy, William H. Turner and others. "A Harem Knight" or a night in a harem is the title of Ben Turpin's latest Mack Sennett comedy which will be another feature of the bill. Madeline Hurlock, Danny O'Shea, Marvin Lobach and Loulie Carver are also in the cast of what is described as being a "wow" of a comedy.

POLICE SUSPECTED
