WALLOWA PERSONALS

WALLOWA, Ore. (Special).—Ana Harmon moved his wife and children from his farm at Leap to Enterprise the first of the week. He made this move to be near school this winter.

Boy and Dee Gastin spent a few days recently at Cussins Bros. farm near Lostine.

J. O. Anderson and family visited Sunday at Mrs. J. H. Gastin's. Mr. Anderson, who has been working for Ed Glenn, is moving to Wallowa for the winter.

James Weaver and wife, of Enterprise, have been visiting Mrs. Weaver's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Downing.

Foreign fur stock is still good in many of the features and fashions, with only a small amount of snow on the ground. Little feeding is being done.

Sam and G. C. Meek and George Cussins were Wallowa visitors the last of the week.

George O. Downing, a former resident of this county, came in during the past week for a short visit with relatives in this section.

L. V. Lathrop, of Leap, was a business visitor here Thursday.

All dirt roads in this community are quite muddy. However, cars are still being used in all parts of the county.

Oscar Maxwell and Glenn Sherod, of Middle Valley, moved some cattle to Mr. Maxwell's pasture in the hills recently.

A considerable amount of pasture in the hills has not been used this fall because of the shortage of water.

Harrison Bros., of Leap, delivered some turkeys to Lostine Saturday.

Dee Gastin hauled some poles from the Cussins farm to build some feed racks.

Miss Ernestine Harmon, who is attending high school at Enterprise, spent the week-end at her Leap home.

H. D. Bechtel, who lives on the former J. B. Pace farm a few miles east of here, delivered a considerable number of fat hogs here the last of the week.

BUTTONS AS DECORATIONS.—Buttons and button holes along the side seam, reaching right from him to shoulder, is one English dressmaker's way of decorating a simple velvet winter frock. The buttons are the size of a silver American dollar. On one long-sleeved, black velvet frock, antique silver buttons were used while on a navy blue crepe-de-chine the necessary touch of color was obtained by big flat red buttons.

OFFICE CAT
TRADE MARK REG.
By Junius

Before long it will be getting so that a wife can secure divorce on the grounds that her husband was hostile to her gentleman friend.

We honestly believe that the average flapper worries just as much about her old-fashioned mother as her o. f. m. does about her now fangled daughter.

FOILED

When I was young and innocent, I had a girl of my dreams. So I'll tell my tale to prove to you That love ain't what it seems.

I saw her face in an annual— I knew her on the spot. I took the first train out of town And six dozen roses bought.

But oh! the shock when she came to me; When I knelt at her door and She was pretty, all right, but oh my kosh! The poor girl was how-legged.

The newly married man had been piloted into a restaurant by his old friend. He studied the menu for a moment and then roared.

"Let's get out of here," he gasped. "Let's try another place." "What's the matter with this place?" asked his friend in astonishment.

"Man, don't you see what they have at the head of that bill of fare?" answered the benedict. "Home cooking!"

Son—"Dad what does a 'better half' mean?" Dad—"Just what she says."

The tightest guy in the world is one who borrows three cents for stamps so that he won't have to break a nickel.

AT THE THEATERS

"Madame Behave" Adds to Mirth Of a Nation

Al Christie's latest contribution to the mirth of a nation is unique because of the fact that it presents to picture audiences Julian Eltinge and Ann Pennington, two star artists of immense drawing power on the stage, and popular favorites of motion picture fans.

"Madame Behave," as the name might indicate, is a farce in skirts and is widely known as "a cousin to 'Charley's Aunt.'"

The latter by this time has gone down in screen history as one of the biggest comedy triumphs of the decade. It made Syd Chaplin a screen star of the first magnitude.

It may be said incidentally, that "Madame Behave," which features Julian Eltinge, the world-famous woman impersonator, and Ann Pennington, foremost American jazz dancer, at Sherry's, completes a triumvirate of international farces produced by Al Christie.

Incidentally, "Madame Behave," completes a triumvirate of international farces. Whereas "Charley's Aunt" was English by history and tradition, and the second big picture, "Seven Days," a recognized American farce of high standing.

"Madame Behave" was written as a French farce and then Americanized with the addition of those creations of the resourceful gam man which make people roar with laughter.

In addition to the featured players, some of the big laughs are created by a pair of funny chaps played by Lionel Belmore and Jack Duffy. "Eltinge himself is seen in three of every four scenes of the picture in feminine garb.

And for the rest appears in masculine clothing. The comedy is said to be a veritable magazine of laughs and snickers.

Hoot Gibson Fast and Funny At the Star

Want to be entertained? Don't miss "The Texas Streak." Hoot Gibson's latest rip-roaring picture which is providing amusement for the patrons of the Star Theater now.

The picture has few serious moments. With Hoot Gibson in his best comedy mood, "The Texas Streak" is a wacky amusing affair, traveling at a rapid gait, with many novel developments of plot, and much breath-taking riding and battling.

Gibson, posing as a gun-man from Texas, when in reality he is only a confused cowboy from Hollywood, gets himself involved in a feud between a development company exploiting the west and the neighborhood ranchers, who don't want their ranches developed.

He crosses the ranchers with many carefully staged bits of heroics, swaggers about the town in his chaps, rented from a movie costume company, and carries off his deception without recognition or detection until the war has come to an end and he announces his real identity of his own will.

Blanche Mehaffey, as the feminine lead, makes a lovely contrast to the rugged masculine members of the cast, and gives a splendid performance.

Ben Turpin, funnier than ever, will be seen in the other feature of the program. This new Mack Sennett comedy called "A Harcom Knight," finds the ubiquitous Ben in the throes of several love affairs that go on once more to prove that he is the screen's greatest lover.

Ben is a maker of love than whom there is no whomer and his portrayal of a romantic role in this comedy is said to reach new heights of screen hilarity.

Menjou Stars In "Ace of Cads" At Arcade

"The King of Main Street," "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter," "A Social Celebrity" and now— "The Ace of Cads." Every one of them a long time coming but each well worth waiting for. Why? Because of Adolphe Menjou, king of sophisticated comedy and newly appointed "Ace of Cads."

Adapted by Forrest Halsey from Michael Arlen's story, "The Ace of Cads" is showing at the Arcade Theater today and Saturday. The picture is noteworthy because—

It serves as Luther Reed's first directorial assignment. Paramount is lucky to have recognized this "comer" before any of its competitors.

Performances of all the players, Alice Joyce, Norman Trevor, Philip Strange and Suzanne Fleming included, are far above par. Miss Fleming, said to have been discovered by Menjou himself, joins the ranks of Zeigfield girls on their way to screen eminence.

The story as it has been handled, is a thing of absorbing interest. Colorful to an extreme, the action covers a period from 1896 to the present year. Scenes take place against backgrounds provided by Paris, London, the World War and an English Guards regiment.

Briefly, "The Ace of Cads" was a man who had one great love. The passage of time, the frailty of human nature or the horror of poverty could not kill it. Imagine this if you will, and then think of Menjou as the lover. Superb—that's the word!
