"Columbus" Is Showing at Star Two Days

In connection with the showing of "Columbus," the first of the Chronicles of America subjects at the Star theater Thursday and Friday, it is interesting to note that the motive which inspired these productions was the desire to promote good citizenship. It is the belief of Yale university press, producers of the "Chronicles of America" (films released by Pathé), that citizenship is immensely stimulated by a vivid and intelligent interest in the greatness of one's country's past. The thirty-three chronicles of America subjects will embody the high spots, so to speak, in the story of American achievement, from the discovery of the new world down to the close of the Civil War. They will show those phases of our past which explain the significance of our present and inspire faith in our future.

Actual human life contains the greatest of all drama, and when that drama revolves around events of world significance, the peak of dramatic interest is achieved. The life and achievements of Christopher Columbus and the relation he bears to every American citizen adds to the entertainment value of "Columbus," directed by Edwin L. Hollywood, with principal roles enacted by Fred Eric, Dolores Casanelli, Robert Galliard and others. Just how an expert "wrangler" submits an outlaw horse—in thrillingly shown by Ken Maynard in "The Unknown Cavalier," in which this new riding sensation of the screen is starred. It's on the screen at the Star Thursday and Friday.

do the rest," says Marshall Neilan. "But there is nothing quite so convincing as actually looking the part."

Neilan always casts his pictures with that in mind. When it is not possible to find an actor who looks like the character in question, he goes out into new fields and selects one who does.

For "Wild Oats Lane," his new picture which will be presented at the Sherry theater for two days beginning today, he chose three actors who had never appeared on the screen before and put them into important parts, because they looked exactly as he pictured those particular characters. John P. MacWeeney, who plays the Chaplain, is well known on the stage. George Barnum, is a stage director and actor of note. Jerry Miley, who plays the "heavy" has long been interested in pictures, though he never worked under the Kleigs before.

The two leading characters, Viola Dana and Bobby Agnew, are well known to the screen public, they too are cast perfectly, as the boy and girl.

Comedy showing, "Puppy Love Time."

For sheer drama, which will hold you breathless when it's not making a tear come to your eye, see "The Lily," Fox Films mighty picture which is playing at the Arcade theater today and Thursday. It is based on David Belasco's stage success of the same name.

Belle Bennett is starred in "The Lily." She gave a remarkable performance as the mother in "Stella Dallas" and who gives another such performance in "The Lily." She plays the part of a beautiful daughter who has been denied romantic love owing to the tyranny of a greedy, unbending father. When the father jeopardizes another daughter's exquisite love affair, the older daughter (Miss Bennett) steps in and denounces him in a very dramatic scene.

Ian Keith, star of the stage and screen, gives an excellent portrayal of the artist whom the younger sister loves. Reata Hoyt, a stage beauty, plays Christiane, the younger sister, to perfection. Others in the cast include Barry Norton, John St. Polis, Richard Tucker, Gertrude Short, James Marcus, Thomas Ricketts, Vera Lewis, Betty Francisco, Rosa Rudami and Epitaph—Sad was the fate of Walter Whizz, he hugged a girl that wasn't his.

She: "It this the first time that you have ever kissed a girl?" He: "Goah! Am I that crude?"

"I am going to the hospital for an operation tomorrow." "Well, I hope everything comes out all right."

Gladys: "Who was that ugly brute with you?" Grace: "Hush! That's my fiance and I want you to know that beauty is only skin deep."

Gladys: "Well, take the darn thing home and skin him."

Handsome young boss to pretty stenographer: "Got anything doing for Sunday evening, Miss Brown?" Steno. (hopefully): "No, not a thing."

H. Y. B.: "Then try to be at the office earlier Monday morning, please."

A dentist is the only one in the world who can tell a woman to open and close her mouth and get away with it.

One reason why young people don't stay at home nights any more is because they are afraid to be alone in the house.

"Why are you wearing that string on your finger?" "My wife's away and I promised to think of her every day."
