The girl with perfect limbs doesn't need a family tree to get along on.

"When I'm a man—" began Bobbie, after a stormy interview with his father.

"What will you do?" asked his mother.

"I'll name my boy after papa—and, oh! how I'll spank him!"

Hi—You're a dear, sweet girl, Anna.

She—My name's Ruth.

"Anna love you with all my heart!"

Add similes: As pathetic as an efficiency expert looking for a job.

Heyward Brown states that as a child of five he spent three summers on a Massachusetts farm, and we suppose about the third summer he spent as a child of five he decided it was really better to be getting along in years a little.

Juliet: "Are you the printer?" Romeo: "Yes, how do you like my type?"

Great minds run in the same channel. So do small catfish.

AN ODE TO YE BEAUTY SHOPPE She went into ye beauty shoppe. Her hair—like snow—was white. But when she left this lovely place Her locks were dark—as night.

SECTION II Her wrinkles had been rolled away. Her eyes were bright like stars. Her cheeks were fair as any youth There were no warts or scars.

THIRD DIVISION But when she tried to play the part Of maid of sweet sixteen, Old Rheumatix had done his tricks And stabbed her in the spleen. O. M. Gosh.

Never kid the judge. The day of the Court Jester is past.

Zane Grey Film, At Star, Shot In the Sierras

Lakes that breathe, canyons with triple echoes, twelve-pronged deer with charmed lives and herds of wild horses—these are some of the fascinating features of the California Sierras country, photographed by Director John Waters' motion picture company in making Paramount's "Man of the Forest" from Zane Grey's novel, which is now being shown at the Star theater.

At one point, eleven thousand feet above sea level from which several shots were taken, thirteen mountain lakes are visible, within a radius of twenty-five miles. They might be dubbed Chromatic, or Spectrum Lakes, because they are variously called Red, Purple and Blue Lake. At sunrise and sunset they take on the colors for which they are named. One of them rises and falls as it were breathing and scientists are searching for scientific or glacial influences to explain the phenomenon.

On these meadows, high up to the hills, roam great herds of wild horses, which are being systematically converted. They are driven to lowland corrals, loaded into cars and sent to the coast.

This is the sort of wild country that forms a background for Zane Grey's thriller, Jack Holt is co-featured with Georgia Hale and El Brendel.

The origin of the anathema attached to the number, thirteen, has been traced to Scandinavian mythology, wherein there were twelve demigods until Loki, the slinker, intruded himself, making the unlucky thirteenth.

The Prince of Wales has seen six performances of "Blackbirds," American negro revue, featuring Florence Mills.

In the light of recent discoveries by polar expeditions the picture is particularly timely, for it reveals that mysterious zone north of the Arctic Circle with striking realism. The value of the narrative is assured by the fact that Curwood, adventurer and writer, was responsible for it.
