WEBFOOTS 'TAKE' SOUTHERN TEAMS

University of Oregon Returns from South With Nine Victories

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Ore., Jan. 8 (Special)—The Oregon basketball team returned to the campus today from a barnstorming tour of California during which nine victories were taken from representative southern opponents.

Oregon's veteran trio of hoop luminaries have scintillated in the southland. Roy Okerberg, Al Westerson, and Jerry Gunther are the trinity which has accounted for most of the heavy scoring of the Webfoots.

Westerson and Gunther made the first all-coast hoop five picked by J. Fred Bohler, the official selector, last spring, and Okerberg was named on the second quintet.

The super-versatility squad which has been working in Eugene during the absence of the regulars will join the varsity, and the combined aggregation will work toward the Pacific university game which will open the home season Jan. 15.

Shadow Lawn Heap Of Ashes Today

WEST LONG BRANCH, N. J., Jan. 8 (AP)—A huge heap of smoldering timber remained today at Shadow Lawn, show place of New Jersey, and summer white house during the administration of President Wilson.

Fire last night, believed caused by short circuit in the lighting system, in addition to razing the beautiful mansion swept clear of shrubbery much of the 26 surrounding acres.

The owner, Hubert T. Parson, president of the F. W. Woolworth company, who has made a custom of spending week ends at the estate, was delayed in New York by business last night. The loss was estimated at $1,000,000.

THREE VETS ARE COURT THREAT

BASEBALL CZAR TO ACT MONDAY

Commissioner Landis, After Hearing Gandil, Promises Judgment

CHICAGO, Jan. 8 (AP)—Arnold (Chick) Gandil, sun-bronzed baseball outlaw from the white open spaces, has exploded in the ranks of organized baseball the ammunition he has kept dry for ten years.

Eye blazing, and with men aggressively defiant, Gandil sent his stare straight at two dozen odd players, or former players, who were jammed inside the smokelocked suite of the commissioner.

SHUING as referee was the white-haired commissioner, $5,000 a year custodian of baseball's integrity. The man who today contemplates the testimony of more than 40 witnesses, Landis snapped the hearing to a sudden close last night with this ten-word pronouncement:

"I'll dispose of this matter Monday morning at 10 o'clock."

These things will Landis ponder: Detailed testimony of Ribberg, former White Sox shortstop and Chick Gandil, former Sox first baseman, (both banished from baseball in 1920 following the 1919 world series scandal) that a pool was collected by the White Sox and paid to certain Detroit pitchers for "laying down" in a four game series that Chicago might win and tighten its hold on first place in the American league.

Denials of contributing to any pool to be used for buying games, but admission of contributing to a pool to reward Detroit pitchers for good work against Boston in a later series. These denials came from every man accused by Ribberg and Gandil who testified.

The statement of Bill James, a Tiger pitcher in 1917 that he received $125 from Gandil and distributed it to certain Tiger batters in a pool as a token of White Sox appreciation for their work in beating Boston.

Testimony by Ribberg that the Sox in 1919 "sloughed" a series to Detroit to aid the Tigers in their fight for third place in the league standing.

The hearing's close found accusations and accused unanimous on one thing—Ty Cobb's innocence of ever having taken part in a crooked ball game. Cobb had wired the commissioner to ask everyone present "whether anybody knew if Cobb got any of the Sox pool, and whether anybody knew if Cobb ever played a crooked game." The chorused tribute was prompt, with Ribberg and Gandil voicing their endorsement of the "jewel of Georgia" with the rest.

UNION PERSONALS

UNION (Special)—Mrs. Shell Moore, of Wallawa, sister of Mrs. John Wortman, arrived at Union Wednesday evening, called by the death of Mrs. Wortman.

Mrs. Ella Shaw, Miss Lois White, Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. S. E. Miller were among the Union people shopping in La Grande Wednesday.

John Miller, of Union, who was seriously injured several days ago while working on the section near Telocaset, is to be taken from St. Elizabeth's hospital in Portland as soon as his condition allows his removal.

The warehouse building belonging to Mrs. R. A. Fursel located back of the new Central Railway of Oregon depot, has been sold to Earl Baird, owner of the muskrat farm near Union. Workmen are wrecking the building and the lumber will be used for buildings on the Baird farm.

George Durar, of Woodland, Wash., arrived in Union Thursday, called by the death of his sister, Mrs. John Wortman.

John Dean, of Cove, was a Union visitor Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hutchinson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Halsey are the parents of an eight-pound baby daughter, born to them here Jan. 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy, of Medical Springs, were called to Union during the past week by the illness and death of their father, Vivian Kennedy.

Mrs. J. W. Kennedy, Mrs. R. A. Wilkerson, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Chandler and Charles Chandler, all of La Grande, were at Union Thursday for the funeral of Vivian Kennedy.

John Durar, of Mellin, Wisc., will arrive here soon to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. John Wortman, who died Wednesday at the Grande Ronde hospital.

Mrs. Beech, of North Union, who has been in ill health for some time, was taken to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Spencer, in La Grande, last week.

Miss Alice Marquardt, county health nurse, was a Union visitor Wednesday.

MEDICAL CODE OUT OF DATE, MEDICS AVER

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 8 (AP)—The medical code in Oregon is declared by physicians to be considerably out of date, for it was enacted 32 years ago and legislation will be introduced at this session of the legislature to revise it. Proposed changes were endorsed here last night at a meeting of physicians of Marion and Polk counties.

It is claimed there are two main defects in the existing act. The first is the absence of an up-to-date definition of the modern practice of medicine, and the second is the absence of funds to enforce the law. As a result, it is claimed the practice of medicine in Oregon is not well regulated.

The definition of medical practice has been revised, in amendments to be offered this session so that it is in keeping with methods used in modern scientific medicine. It is proposed to provide funds for the enforcement of the law by the annual registration of licensed physicians with a fee of $5 each. The latter provision has recently been introduced into many state medical laws.

The proposed amendments do not affect the status of any persons who are already licensed by the state to practice such forms of healing as dentistry, osteopathy, chiropractic, veterinary medicine, optometry, chiropody, and the cosmetic profession.

HOSPITAL SITE IS UNEXCELLED

So Says Jamieson Marshall, of New York, Who Favored The Dalles

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 8.—The site chosen for the new Eastern Oregon tuberculosis hospital is unexcelled by any site in the United States, according to Jamieson Marshall, who has left for Denver, Colo. Marshall spent nearly three weeks in Oregon assisting the Oregon board of control in the choice of a site for the new sanatorium. The choice was left by the board of control in the hands of Dr. C. C. Bellinger, superintendent of the present tuberculosis hospital at Salem, and Marshall, architect and institutional advisor for the National Tuberculosis association, Marshall's home is in New York City.

"Not even the Englewood sanatorium in Colorado Springs or the Trudeau sanatorium at Saranac Lake, N. Y., can boast a better location from the stand point of scenery, climate, or accessibility," said Marshall in an interview at the Multnomah hotel Thursday afternoon. "Every convenience is to be had at The Dalles in the way of transportation, water supply, electric current, sanitary facilities, labor supply, recreation and special medical services. A view of unexcelled beauty may be had of the Columbia River. It is especially necessary for an Oregon hospital to be located amid scenes of natural beauty because Oregon patients are accustomed to beautiful scenery."

"SHOW-OR-PLACE" JOEY TURNESA

JOEY TURNESA

HE CROSSED UP THE BOYS HOWEVER WHEN HE CROSSED OPEN. THE ONLY PARADE I'LL EVER LEAD UNLESS IT'S MY FUNERAL. THEY CALL HIM "SHOW-OR-PLACE" BECAUSE HE RUNS A GREAT SECOND.

They call this lad "Show-or-Place" Joey and he's not a race-track fan, jockey, trainer or stable custodian. He is Joey Turnesa, young golf pro who finished the year with the unusual distinction of leading either second or third in the leading major golf events of the season. Hence the nickname—"Show-or-Place" Joey. Golfers are awaiting his 1927 debut into major fields with interest hoping he can crash through into the select circle of first place. He recently won the Sacramento open and is getting tuned up for the big events.

Riveria Squad Downs Central Hoopers 7 to 2

The Riviera quintet bid fair to retain its championship title in intergrade school basketball when they defeated the Central hoopers last night 7-2 in the first game of the season. The gym was filled with peppy rosters from both schools as well as a few interested adults.

Both teams maintained a strong defense during the game, neither breaking through until the second quarter when Faus, of Riviera, looped a basket. Evans made two free throws, giving Central its only scores. McMurray, of Riviera, was high point man of the game, netting three points, while Faus and Evans each contributed two. Riviera retains most of the last year's squad, giving an edge over Central who has practically a new team this year.

Both teams showed that their coaches, Gilbert, at Riviera, and Brown, at Central, were instilling the fundamentals of basketball, and aside from the expected families and wild passers of an early season game, played good ball. Owen Riebelien refereed.

The lineup follows: Central: forwards, Evans and Gekeler; guards, Lyle and Hartman; center, Choate; Riviera: forwards, Faus and Ross; guards, Van Luyven and Anderson; center, McMurray.

MEDFORD DEFEATED

MEDFORD, Ore., Jan. 8 (AP)—The Medford high school basketball team was defeated 19 to 14 last night by the annual team, composed of last year's stars.

CURE FOR BLUE LAWS?

BALTIMORE—As the best way toward repeal of blue laws the arrest of ministers and choir singers is favored by Assistant Attorney General Willis R. Jones. A law of 1723 prohibits labor of any sort on the Sabbath.

and would not be contented with out it." As the time drew near for his departure from Oregon Marshall admitted that the charms of Oregon had taken a powerful hold on him. "I hope to see the day," said Marshall "when I can come to Oregon and stay here the rest of my life."
