Limehouse Lives On Arcade Screen In "Twinkletoes"

Colleen Moore brings to life one of Thomas Burke's famous Lime house characters, "Twinkletoes," in John McCormick's latest production for First National, which opened a three-day run at the Arcade theater today. The little star has abandoned her dark Dutch bob and donned golden curls in order to visualize correctly the Burke heroine for those who see "Twinkletoes."

Other Burke characters are depicted by Kenneth Harlan (who plays opposite Miss Moore), Gladys Brockwell, Warner Oland, Tully Marshall, Julanne Johnston and John Philip Kolb.

The background of the story is that world famous waterfront slum, the London Limehouse district, where the derelicts of the earth from city and ocean meet in narrow, crooked streets that run down to the great city's wharves.

The story is tense, but spiced with sparkling comedy, and it has a happy, satisfying ending that rounds out an excellent evening's entertainment for the whole family.

The momentous question, "Should Husbands Marry?" is faithfully answered in Mack Sennett's new comedy of that name which will be another feature of the bill. Alice Day is cast in the stellar role, while other players include Eddie Quillan, Louise Carver and Barney Hellum.

"Broadway Lady" At Sherrys Today Only

"A Broadway Lady," Evelyn Brent's most recent, and if the critics are correct her most colorful starring vehicle, comes to the Sherry theater for today only. Directed for F. B. O. by Wesley Ruggles, and splendidly enacted by Miss Brent and a well balanced supporting cast, this production deals with Broadway theatrical life and has for its central character a very unconventional chorus lady, who nightly flashes her sparkling personality across the footlights of the Big Lane's most popular musical comedy. The picture takes Miss Brent out of the familiar crook roles to which she has so often and so successfully been assigned, and yet keeps her in a dramatic, dynamic part which she plays with distinction. Theodore Von Eltz is excellent in the part of Bob Westbrook, the young society man, and Ernest Hilliard gives a fine performance as Martyn Edwards.

comedy, "Howdy, Judge."

LOS ANGELES—William De Mille, motion picture producer, and Mrs. De Mille have agreed to disagree. It is explained that their separation is permanent but perfectly amiable.

If an artist were to paint a picture of a person learning to skate, we suppose it would require a great many sittings.

Milton Sills Delights Star Audience

Milton Sills, popular First National star, has scored another tenstrike with "The Silent Lover," his latest release, which will be shown at the Star theater tonight for the last time.

In the role of a dissipated young diplomat who almost ruins himself in Paris, and then finds himself again in the gruelling service of the French Foreign Legion, the hero of "The Sea Hawk" and countless other success contributes another splendid characterization to the "immortals" of screenland.

The supporting cast includes Natalie Kingston, Arthur Edmund Carew, William V. Mong, Viola Dana, Claude King, Charlie Murray, Arthur Stone, Alma Bennett, Montague Love, and others.

Movie Sidelights

By the Associated Press

Someone hurled a wine glass in an erstwhile peaceful French cafe. It crashed on the head of a patron. A shower of "glassware" followed. It was Bebe Daniels in the Paramount studio, playing the part of a French waitress fighting off admirers. Three gross of tumblers, goblets and wine glasses made of melted and molded rock candy were shattered.

So long has it been since the art of hoisting a wine glass in this country was common practice, that Eric von Stroheim recently took 29,000 feet of film for a single closeup of a man drinking a glass of wine before he obtained the effect wanted.

Von Stroheim accused the actor of getting a vicarious thrill from the wine hoisting.

"Often a widow but never a bride, is the movie fate of Carmel Myers. When Miss Myers attended the film wedding of Norma Shearer and Lew Cody in "The Demi-Bride," she remarked that she had been a widow, wife and divorcee, in the pictures, but never had worn a wedding veil in her screen career.

Believing the Torrence family has done its bit in comedy and should turn its attention to more serious roles, David Torrence, character comedian, offers his young son, Ian, in the role of a French soldier in an historical western.

The camera man is a sun-gazer. When outdoors he peers through a blue glass at the sun, clouds and across fields, and in the studio he looks across sets in the same way, to study light values.

Aged Man's Body Is Washed Ashore

ROSEBURG, Jan. 10 (AP)—The body of an unidentified man has been found on the banks of the South Umpqua river about four miles below Roseburg. The man had evidently been dead for a considerable time and was washed up in to the bushes beside the river during the high water and was left there as the river level dropped. No papers or marks of identification were found. There were no evidences of foul play. Coroner Ritter took charge of the body. The man was apparently about 60 years old, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches tall, weight about 165 pounds. He was very bald and had white whiskers. The body had been in the water so long that the features were unrecognizable.
