Art Clubs Join In Luncheon And Viewing Exhibit

Once each year the two art clubs of the city, the Painters Art club and the Art Research club, entertain each other, when something unusually good in the way of an art program is given.

Yesterday afternoon the Art Research club was hostess to the members of the Painters club, the affair starting with a luncheon at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. C. M. Humphreys.

Mullerby was the color scheme carried out in the luncheon and in the decoration of the seven small tables, four guests being seated at each table. A four-course luncheon was served.

Immediately following luncheon the guests were taken to the home of the hostess club's president, Mrs. A. T. Hill, where they viewed an unusually fine art exhibition of wood block prints, all by American artists, who rank among the best in the world.

There are 48 prints in the collection, representing 18 artists. Mrs. Hill gave an interesting paper, telling how the prints are made, requiring much patience and skill, a different block being required for every color in the picture. At present these prints are foremost in popularity.

All art lovers of the city will be given an opportunity to see the prints Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon, from 2 until 5 o'clock, when they will be on exhibition in the Neighborhood club rooms in the library building.

COVE (Special).—The Woman's club held their regular semi-monthly meeting at the library on Thursday, Jan. 15, with a good attendance. Plans were made for a rummage sale to be Jan. 28 and Mrs. C. Betsch, Mrs. L. Laird and Mrs. G. Barker were appointed as members of the committee in charge.

Because of the scarcity of public buildings the Woman's club gave the city council permission to use the library as a council chamber.

The subject for the afternoon's program was "How to Beautify Our Town," each one present responding to the roll call with something about the topic. An excellent paper was given by Mrs. G. E. Barker on "The Advantages and Possibilities of a Well Kept Town," which was followed by a discussion.

A marriage took place yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. J. Hensley at 1415 Sixth street, when James Trump, of Promis, and Rhoda Trump, of Wallonia, were united in marriage by the Rev. George A. Pollard, pastor of the First Baptist church. Mr. Trump is district fire warden for Wallonia county. They will make their home at Promis, and left immediately after the ceremony.

Entertains At Bridge Party

Mrs. Lee Hanford entertained at bridge Friday evening at her home on Sixth street when several of the school teachers and other friends were her guests.

The rooms were effectively arranged with bouquets of pink snapdragons. Five tables of bridge were at play. Two high scores were given, Mrs. E. H. Boylin and Miss Ethel Hickford being the winners. The consolation prize went to Miss Caroline Bauman.

After a two-course luncheon had been served Miss Zeida Pearl gave three interesting readings and Little Miss Verma Lee Hanford gave a recitation.

Friday evening was the occasion for a surprise party honoring the birthday anniversary of Charles Lincoln at his residence on Cedar street, given by Mrs. Lincoln and a group of friends.

The evening was spent at cards, following by a two-course luncheon. The table was prettily decorated with yellow tapers and a large wafer lily as a centerpiece. The women's prize was won by Miss Margaret Seeley and the men's prize went to Frank Tuckey. Max Cullen received the consolation prize.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Green, Mr. and Mrs. Earl MacDonough, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tuckey, Miss Margaret Seeley, Max Cullen and Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln.

The teachers of Greenwood school gave a surprise party complimenting Miss Mildred Lovett, who has been a teacher in the school for two years, before she left last Thursday night for Monmouth, Ore., where she will complete her course at the Oregon normal school. She will graduate from the school in June.

Twelve teachers gathered at the home of Miss Lovett's mother, Mrs. D. C. French, on Y avenue, where bridge was played, after which a two-course luncheon was served.

Miss Amy Jacoby made high score at bridge and the consolation prize went to Miss Lovett.

Miss Ruth Garrick is filling the vacancy at Greenwood school caused by Miss Lovett's leaving.

ENTERPRISE (Special).—Mrs. Ben Wethers was hostess at bridge Thursday afternoon at her home on West Main street. Luncheon was at 1 o'clock with covers laid for 12 after which the card games were the diversion.

Mrs. Jordan also entertained a number of her friends at bridge Thursday afternoon. After the games luncheon was served.

MENUS

By Sister Mary. BREAKFAST—Oranges, cereal, thin cream, poached eggs on crisp graham croutons, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Cream of tomato soup, toasted crackers, beef and vegetable salad, whole wheat bread, canned peaches on sponge cake with whipped cream, milk, tea.

DINNER—Pork pot pie, baked sweet potatoes, corn mustard, hearts of celery, apple pie, graham rolls, milk, coffee.

Bread undergoes a distinct chemical change during the process of toasting. We are familiar with the physical change producing a certain crispness and brownness of color, and are prone to place the chief value of toast in these attributes. And the crispness is important since it makes us "chew." But the heat of toasting changes some of the starch into dextrin, which taxes the digestion to a lesser degree than does starch, so the chemical change is responsible for much of the popularity of crisp toast.

Beef and Vegetable Salad. One cup cooked sliced carrots, 1/2 cup sliced cooked turnips, 1/2 cup sliced cold roast beef, 1 cup sliced string beans, shredded lettuce, French dressing, pickled beets.

Make the dressing, using 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon mustard, 2 tablespoons vinegar and 6 tablespoons oil. Cut string beans in small pieces and combine with carrots, turnips and cold meat. Pour dressing over it and let stand in a cold place for one hour. Arrange on a bed of lettuce and garnish with pickled beets cut in fancy shapes. Serve very cold. (Copyright, 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

BERLIN, Jan. 18 (AP).—Divorces may be had for the asking in Germany when the judiciary committee of the Reichstag gets through with modernizing the existing divorce law, which is lenient in its provisions is involved in so much red tape that legal proceedings are both costly and tedious.

Among other things the committee is considering a provision which would compel a woman to support her divorced husband as well as children in case it is proved that the husband is financially incapable and the wife in good circumstances. In any case the support of the children, according to the proposal, would be borne by the most able of the parties in the suit, regardless of which one obtained the divorce.

In general the committee is inclined to allow courts to grant divorces when it is shown that "the actions of either party for any reason made further domestic life unpleasant or unbearable for the other party."

Bobbed Heads A Mistake, British Artist Declares

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP).—Bobbed heads are all a mistake, in the opinion of Sir William Orpen, president of the International Society of Sculptors, Painters and Gravers, and one of Britain's most distinguished artists.

"My conclusion is that women should never have cut their hair," said Sir William, his theory being that women's heads are too badly shaped, and their faces too large.

"Bobbing has had enough," the artist declared, "but shingling is worse—and as for the Eton crop, I feel quite uncomfortable when I have to sit next to it."

Sir William believes shorn hair is merely a passing fad. "It can't last," he asserted, "because it isn't beautiful and exciting enough."

"From an artistic viewpoint short hair is not at all inspiring," the artist said; "the modern shingled woman—at any rate in the indigestible mass—will never inspire a type in art comparable to the Ancient Greek type, for instance."

"Of course there is the rare woman who has a beautifully shined head, and does look wonderful bobbed," Sir William admitted.

CENTENARIAN'S RECIPE. DONINGTON, Eng., (AP).—Mrs. Lucy Hackforth, age 103, whose rosy cheeks are almost wrinkleless, attributes her splendid health to plain food and quiet mode of living.

The diet of the centenarian is simple. It consists chiefly of whole wheat bread, a loaf and a half of which lasts her about a week, butter, milk, baked apples, a few vegetables and occasionally a little bacon.

The holidays are over and we must say the five-day week isn't so bad, after all.

He Can Tell It's H-O

HERE'S many a youngster to whom oatmeal means "H-O". They're quick to tell the difference when they get some other kind. For H-O has a real "toasted" flavor and a firm texture quite its own. Once they know H-O no other oatmeal will do.

New Style H-O cooks quickly. Ready to serve in two to three minutes.

Reading Difficulties in Otherwise Normal Children—By E. Besworth McCreedy, M. D., F. A. C. P., Pittsburg, Member Gorham Memorial Institute

In Johnny's case there is no impairment of word-hearing memory. In fact it is quite acute and has compensated in many ways for the inactivity of the word-reading memory, for his inability to learn how to read. The boy's behavior reactions are natural under the circumstances. His reading difficulties, aggravated by continued nagging and decision in school and curbing solitude at home have served to develop a well defined sense of inferiority, a fear of hurting himself, in any way, in competition with those of his own age who have no such difficulties.

Hence his habits of bullying, of association with younger children not yet of reading age, his effort to gain acclaim by wild tales, his squandering of money upon those who have no money to spend, his hoarding with older and undesirable boys who consider ignorance of books an asset rather than a liability.

The parents are relieved but not yet are their minds fully at ease. Will their boy ever be able to learn to read, will his disposition and habits change, will he ever amount to anything?

The doctor, with a warning as to the fallibility of human judgment, his own included, answers "Yes" to these questions. He warns them, however, that it will not be a quick or an easy matter, but a long hard pull for all concerned.

The first important step to be taken is to bring the boy himself to a full realization of the facts. The doctor will kindly and carefully, in the presence of the parents, if they will promise to allow him the floor throughout the interview, explain to him the reasons for his scholastic difficulties. He will take special pains to impress

Mrs. Burton Advises Women on Motherhood and Companionship

"For several years I was denied the blessing of motherhood," writes Mrs. Margaret Burton, of Kansas City. "I was terribly nervous and subject to periods of terrible suffering and melancholia. Now I am the proud mother of a beautiful little daughter and a true companion and inspiration to my husband. I believe hundreds of other women would like to know the secret of my happiness, and I will gladly reveal it to any married woman who will write me."

Mrs. Burton offers her advice entirely without charge. She has nothing to sell. Letters should be addressed to Mrs. Margaret Burton, 2446 Massachusetts, Kansas City, Mo. Correspondence will be strictly confidential.

CARR'S

A Buying Guide

Before you order dinner at a restaurant, you consult the bill-of-fare. Before you take a long trip by motor-car, you pore over road maps. Before you start out on a shopping trip, you should consult the advertisements in this paper. For the same reasons!

The advertising columns are a buying guide to you in the purchase of everything you need—including amusements! A guide that saves your time and conserves your energy; that saves useless steps and guards against false ones; that puts the s-t-r-e-t-c-h in family budgets.

The advertisements in this paper as so interesting, it is difficult to see how anyone could overlook them . . . fail to profit by them. Just check with yourself and be sure you are reading the advertisements regularly—the big ones and the little ones. It is time well spent . . . always.

Avoid time-wasting, money-wasting detours on the road to merchandise value. Read the advertising "road maps"
