CONVALESCENT CENTERS WOULD RECLAIM THOUSANDS

By Harry E. Mock, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

Member Gorgas Memorial Inst. The establishment of convalescent centers where hospital patients may go to complete their recovery from illness or non fatal accidents would be the means of reclaiming many thousands of human wrecks annually in the United States.

Because there are more than one million disabling accidents, of varying lengths of time, occurring in industrial plants each year, the time is sure to come when enlightened communities will provide facilities for the final rehabilitation of each patient.

The United States at present lacks thousands of hospital beds. Discharge is often necessary to make room for acute cases of illness or accident, and the patient goes to his home to make recovery without proper medical supervision despite the fact that many chronic or disabling conditions may be forestalled through adequate care during the period of convalescence.

With the facilities provided by convalescent centers thousands of people destined to become crippled could be restored to society as real producers. It is safe to say that if Chicago had such a center instead of the 200 or 300 scattered convalescent beds it has, at least 5,000 so-called permanently disabled patients could be reclaimed. All cities are behind in the number of beds needed for such cases, to an equal or even greater extent. New York City also lacks proper facilities for convalescent patients and is in need of such beds at the present time.

Such reclamation work is of great importance to the community since nearly 75 per cent of clarity work is the result of disease and accidents. Inasmuch as the patient's future is often determined during the period of convalescence, that is, whether he becomes a dependent cripple or a handicapped or an independent producer, or a cured person, the value of the work that could be performed in convalescent centers cannot be overestimated.

In such centers there should be complete therapeutic equipment to treat the great variety of bone and joint injuries. There should be vocational education workshops and other rehabilitation measures. Healing the burn, but leaving the fingers or other joints deformed and stiff, is not a cure. Responsibility does not end in the heart case with re-establishing compensation. We must guard against the patient drifting back to the care of his physician because, through ignorance, he does

AT THE THEATERS

"Flaming Forests" At Star Is Full of Suspense

In "The Flaming Forest," which opened yesterday at the Star theater for a three day run, Cosmo-politan has turned out one of the best pictures of the year.

The story, which is interpreted by one of the largest and most important casts of the year, is packed with suspense from the opening scene until the final fade-out but at the same time there is a sufficiency of comedy to relieve the many tense and dramatic situations.

The screen story is by Waldemar Young from the famous novel of the same name by James Oliver Curwood, and like most thrilling stories from the pen of that fantastic author, deals with the organization of the Northwest Mounted Police at one of the most critical periods in the history of the Dominion of Canada.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the work of Antonio Moreno and Renée Adoree, who head an all-star cast of seventeen well known players.

Wedding March In Jazz Time At Sherrys

When Dick and Gloria were married, they sang the same tune—a light-hearted jazz tune—and she could not understand why he refused to go right on singing. She did not realize that her extravagant whims gave him no time to play, and so she found another young man to supply the jazz her frivolous nature demanded. Her faithful husband slaved while she danced gaily from one party to another until in one awful moment she saw the folly which was ruining their happiness. It took a thrilling shipwreck to make her appreciate Dick's loyalty and love, and to repent with as much fervor as she had previously devoted to her search for pleasure.

Such is the story of "The Jazz Bride," the highly diverting Warners picture which opened yesterday at the Sherry theater with Matt Moore and Marie Prevost starred in the roles of the bride and groom. It was adapted to the screen by Charles Logue from "The Flapper Wife," the novel of Beatrice Burton. Miss Prevost and Mr. Moore give perfect performance in this comedy drama which almost develops into a domestic tragedy, and the direction of Herman Raymaker lifts the production out of the ordinary run of screen entertainment.

John Patrick is excellent as the handsome idler who escorts the young bride while her husband

100 Men Take Part in Fight in Barthelmess Film

"The White Black Sheep," starring Richard Barthelmess at the Arcade theater Saturday only features a glorious free-for-all fight which involves more than one hundred men in a desert town cafe.

In this mad scramble as it was enacted in the studio several men were injured and the set itself practically demolished in an effort to get realism.

The scene takes place in the city of Ketr Saba, Northern Palestine, and serves to introduce Robert Lincoln (played by Richard Barthelmess) to Zella the Greek dancing girl, (played by Patsy Ruth Miller) which is the beginning of one of the most beautiful love stories ever told on the screen.

"The White Black Sheep" is a highly colorful story commencing in an aristocratic London home and ending in the adventurous desert atmosphere of the Near East.

Milk License In Bend, Oregon Is To Be Enforced

BEND, Ore., Jan. 21—A husky infant ordinance, 32 months old yesterday, showed its first sign of life in Bend recently. It has to do with the regulation, production and disposal of milk and cream within the city and provides a penalty for its violation.

The ordinance was introduced before the council May 3, 1924, through the efforts of the Bend Civic league, the same night the council approved the food handlers ordinance which met with no opposition. It was passed by the council and approved by the mayor on May 29, 1924.

"We are going to enforce the dairy ordinance now and if folks don't like it they can have it repealed," said Mayor Fox.

Permits to sell and deliver milk and cream within the city must be obtained under the provisions of the ordinance. The permit is subject to fees, based upon the number of quarts sold per day. The fee ranges from $3 for those selling 10 quarts or less per day to $35 for those selling 100 or more quarts per day. The permits are to be valid for the period of a year but may be revoked by the
