The Junior Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church celebrated the 46th birthday anniversary of Christian Endeavor Saturday afternoon when Mrs. A. S. Anderson and Miss Hilda Anderson entertained the Junior C. E. members at a birthday party in the basement of the church.

Christian Endeavor was first organized Feb. 2, 1881 in Portland, Me.

Thirty-five children were present for the party Saturday. The children were grouped according to the months in which their birthdays are and games in connection with each month of the year were played.

The rooms were decorated in the Christian Endeavor colors, blue and white. A large birthday cake with 46 candles was also a part of the decoration.

Following the games Mrs. Anderson and Miss Anderson served refreshments.

Bridge Luncheon Saturday Event

Members of the F. S. club were guests at an attractive bridge luncheon Saturday when Mrs. Ernest Landry was hostess at the Tiffin.

Luncheon was served at 1:30 o'clock, the guests being seated at one long table, which was decorated with baskets of sweet peas in the pastel colors. Valentine place cards were used.

Following luncheon three tables of bridge were formed. Mrs. C. E. Wade made high score among the club members and Mrs. Everett Keown received the second prize.

NAME OF QUEEN MARY SCRATCHED ON WINDOW

Queen Mary, with fond recollections of her girlhood, has written her name with a diamond on a window pane of a Tudor farmhouse in the little old village of Walpole St. Peter which makes no effort to keep up with the times and for years has been gradually slipping backward.

The house is known as the Dovecote farm, a sixteenth century building restored by the Rev. H. C. Staveley, curate at Sandringham from 1902 to 1906, and for years a friend of the Royal family. The window is in the rector's study, a room very much admired by the queen during a recent visit. Dovecote farm is opposite the ancient Church of St. Peter.

As far as the public is aware this is the first time Queen Mary has ever done anything of the kind although the practice of writing on glass was repeatedly adopted in earlier times.

A dining saloon to seat fifty persons at a time, rooms for dances and games, promenade and smoke-room are among the wonders of the R. L. Dilcock, a British airship which is being built for use on the Indian air-route.

MENUS

By Sister Mary
BREAKFAST — Cereal cooked with chopped figs, thin cream, country sausage, chilled apple sauce, raised buckwheat pancakes, strap, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON — Casserole of vegetables, cabbage and peanut salad, whole wheat bread, caramel custard, milk, tea.

DINNER — Broiled porterhouse steak, French fried potatoes, baked onions, grapefruit and cabbage salad, bran rolls, canned peaches, crisp chocolate cookies, milk, coffee.

If children under school age are served the dinner salad a little care must be taken in preparing their serving. Mince cabbage very finely and sprinkle with the juice alone of the grapefruit. Adults, of course, are served sections of the fruit with the cabbage and a French dressing is poured over the whole.

The onions are baked in their husks. Rub off any mud that may cling to them, place on an old pan and bake in a hot oven about fifty minutes. To serve open each onion at the top by pulling back the layers and drop a square of butter in the center.

Cabbage-Peanut Salad
Two and one-half cups finely chopped cabbage, 1 cup chopped peanuts, 1 cup chopped celery, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, grated rind one lemon, boiled dressing. Add lemon juice and rind to 2 cups cold water. Let cabbage and celery stand for an hour in the water. Drain and dry on cheese cloth or a towel. Add peanuts and serve on a cabbage leaf with boiled dressing.

OVEREATING—A VICE OF NATIONS!

By E. E. Morrison, M. D. Great Bend, Kan.

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute
The vice of overeating has been a common one since the beginning of recorded time. Babylonian and Assyrian cuneiform inscriptions and Egyptian hieroglyphics reveal the efforts of the ancient practitioners of medicine to overcome the results of gluttony. Biblical reference to intemperance in eating is frequent. The Epicurean school founded in Athens and transplanted to Rome is yet well known. Overeating is not now a vice of the individual. It is a vice of nations.

The advertising columns of our newspapers and magazines are filled with descriptions of foods that "taste better" than other foods. The markets are loaded with food, each appealing to the appetite. Housewives are placing on file new recipes and are making a lifetime study of the art of tempting the appetite of their families. The result of all these temptations is that almost everyone after he has eaten what is necessary to sustain his physical makeup, eats about as much more because it tastes well, just as men drink alcohol because they like it. The results of this overload of food are disastrous. The processes whereby food is converted into bone, muscle, skin, brain, tissue, and thought are disturbed and unbalanced.

A frequent result is an abnormal formation of fat. Fat has often been regarded as the mark of good health. However, the converse is true. It is well known that the fat man's expectancy is much less than that of the man of normal proportions. Life insurance companies will not insure persons who are very much overweight. The normal heart is competent to maintain a normal blood current in all parts of a normal body. A normal individual who adds an overweight to his body, adds an overload to his heart. The heart that is overloaded for a long period of time breaks down.

Another possibility that is dangerous to the fat person is that of diabetes. Nearly all people who have this disease are overweight. Medical science has made remarkable progress in the prevention of disease and is ready to teach you how to avoid heart disease, Bright's disease, diabetes, apoplexy, and many other diseases that result from overeating and improper food. Begin by learning the importance of a balanced ration, and practice the same sort of common sense used by a good farmer when he measures the grain to feed his horses, cows and pigs. It is sad, of course, to relate that this same farmer does not use as much judgment in feeding himself as he uses in feeding his animals.

Army mules kicked $6 to death last year, while only eight were killed in commercial aviation. Why not send the mules to Nicaragua?

Spring must have been in a generous mood when she designed the new apparel, for to many dresses and wraps she has given not only one but two and sometimes three tones of colors.

Altogether this is a tempting array of smart modes just brimming over with uncommon details that awaits your inspection and selection.

SPRING

Your favorite season is scheduled to make its entry in another month. But it is not necessary to sit back resignedly waiting for March to make its appearance before you may acquire some of that delicious spring feeling. You can get it in new clothes, new spring clothes that are already here! The fashion story for spring is almost though not quite complete in these new frocks and wraps on display. These first garments have dozens of style notes you will recognize as brand new.

INVOKES PADLOCKS ON HAUNTS OF WETS

"Nemesis of the bootlegger" is a term often applied to Miss Mary D. Bailey, assistant United States attorney for the northern district of Illinois. Scores of cabarets, cafes and other places charged with illegally dispensing liquor have been closed through her activities.

Miss Bailey was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1920 and her practice of law has been general. In her federal post she has specialized in liquor injunction proceedings.

PATRON OF MUSIC
NEW YORK—Clarence H. McCoy, father-in-law of Irving Berlin, is an enthusiastic patron of music. He arranged for broadcasting of two concerts by the Philharmonic orchestra conducted by Arturo Toscanini and later entertained the maestro at a reception. Songs by Elizabeth Rethberg, Louise Homer and Richard Crooks, given during the concerts, were cut off the air. One reason assigned is that the singer's masters asked more money if their voices were to be broadcast.

SHUN WILES OF SEX, WOMAN OFFICIAL SAYS

Don't carry flapperism or clinging vine tactics into public life, Miss Isabel Larwill, Michigan's new commissioner of labor and industry, advises those of her sex who have an urge for politics. Miss Larwill, second woman labor commissioner in the country, says women must succeed in affairs of state by intelligence and not by using feminine wiles to play on chivalry for performance. She has been in politics for many years.

FIRST PICTURE OF CHINESE RIOTERS' WORK

Distraction wrought recently by coolie mobs in the British concession at Hankow, China, is pictured here. The photo is the first from the scene of the Chinese anti-foreign outbreaks to reach the United States. Hankow, on the Yangtze river, is the capital of the Cantonese military faction in China. Following the wrecking of a railroad burning of the buildings pictured here, all British shops in Hankow were closed. England started rushing warships and troops to China to prevent further such disturbances.

CREAM + OF + TARTAR

Yes they look alike

yet one of them is a third larger than the other. Some baking powder tins are like that. The Schilling Baking Powder tin is a third larger than some others. It contains a full pound. Some others do not. Always look on the label for the weight when you buy cream-of-tartar baking powder — don't trust appearances.
