AGGIES, OREGON TO MEET FRIDAY

Varsity and Rook Quintets to Clash in Corvallis Doubleheader

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Feb. 10.—Plenty of athletic competition is in store for the Oregon Aggies this week end. The varsity and rook basketball teams meet University of Oregon in a double header here Friday and the rooks play a return game in Eugene Saturday. The Oranmen take on the Multnomah club swimmers in Portland Saturday night.

The Aggies victory over the Congress from Washington state places them in third place in conference standings having won two and lost one and at the same time puts the Oranmen in line for conference honors as all teams have lost at least one game so far this season.

Wetfoots Favored
University of Oregon is hoped to win the coming battle by a large margin according to many critics, but this advance propaganda seems to have no effect on the Aggie engineers who consider themselves equal to the occasion and ready to spring a surprise.

The Oregon frosh-Aggie rook contest which is a preliminary to the varsity game is expected to be the usual thriller. Comparative hope would give the Orange yearlings a slight edge. Both teams have played Columbia university Franklin high and Salem high. The Aggie rooks had no trouble in defeating Columbia in both games played, whereas the frosh lost one to the Irishmen. The Orange yearlings made a better showing in their conquest of Franklin than did the frosh. Both teams lost to Salem high school.

The Aggie natators who decisively defeated University of Oregon last week are expected to give the Multnomah club splashes a real test when they meet in the club tank Saturday.

OATMEAL FURNISHES SIDE-LINE TO WRITING

As a sideline to literature, Miss Selma Lagerlof, called Sweden's queen of letters, has launched on the grocery market of Sweden a new kind of oatmeal, grown on her ancestral estate, Marbacka, in Vornland, where she now lives as a landed proprietor. Her purpose has been to find use for her crops, which consist mostly of oats, and to give employment to the young people of the neighborhood who otherwise would have to seek work in factory towns or migrate to the United States.

Washington Farm Outlook Is Good

WALLA WALLA, Feb. 10.—The farm outlook for the state of Washington is better than for the average of the states in the union, in the opinion of R. M. Turner, farm management specialist with the extension service, State College of Washington, here after returning from a conference in Washington, D. C., of farm management specialists from 14 states.

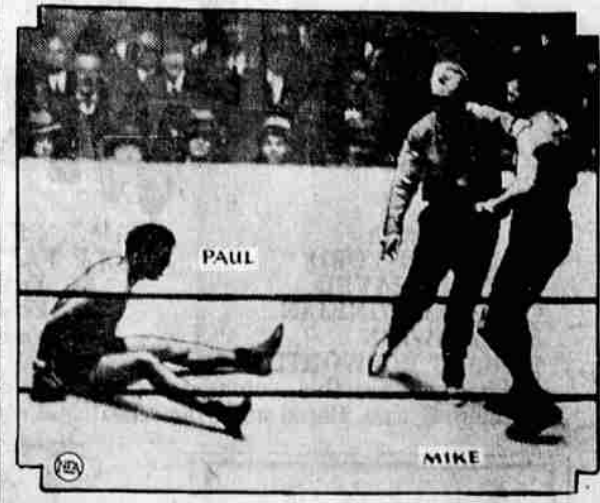

This conference, lasting several days, recently was called for the purpose of informing economists of the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics at the capital, on present conditions on agriculture throughout the nation. It was in contact with the other specialists that Turner learned that Washington's situation is better appearing than in the majority of states.

On his visit here Turner recently took over the farm management assignment, is making a survey of poultry flocks in which the labor outlook is being figured in the costs of production. Some 125 leading poultrymen all over Washington are cooperating in a survey to last one year. This survey is expected to disclose the value of the poultryman's time and labor in tending his flocks.

ARCHDUCHESS INCOME SUFFERS GREAT DROP

The princely income allowance of the Archduchess Maria Antonia of Parma of $48,000 a year has melted to $500 as a result of worthless Austrian war loans.

When Prince Elias of Bourbon-Parma, brother of the former Empress Zita, showed the court that most of the securities left by Duke Robert of Parma were now valueless, the state allowed him to reduce his mother's allowance to $500.

TEXAN SPORT LOVERS TURN TO NORTH GAMES

While northerners are trooping to Texas resorts for winter golf, Texans are turning to northern sports. Ice hockey teams have been formed in most of the larger Texas cities including Houston, San Antonio, and Dallas, and the players chase the elusive puck on artificial ice rinks. The Houston Bears are considering a northern invasion which would take them to Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and Pittsburgh.

Modern Granary Built by Sherod

WALLOWA, Ore., Feb. 10, (Special).—R. H. Sherod, a farmer of the Middle Valley section, has recently completed the construction of one of the most up-to-date granaries and feed chopping plants in this section of the country. The building is 32x20 feet, with a cement basement, in which self feeding hogs, the grain is conveyed into the building from the outside by means of an elevator, the granary has two sets of bins above and below and grain is run into the chopper by gravity and returned to the upper bins by means of an inside elevator where it can be transferred into the self feeders in the basement through a chute from the bin to the self feeders underneath. This method greatly cuts the labor cost in handling and feeding the grain, and does away with the use of sacks as a means of handling it. The chopper and elevators are operated by electric power motors, which are being installed.

MIKE McTIGUE FINDS PUNCH IN LATER YEARS

Mike McTigue, who has sprung into stardom by a series of knockouts when he was not noted for his punch when he was light heavyweight champion of the world, hopes to punch his way to the top of the real heavyweights although he weighs only 170 pounds. McTigue furnished the pugilistic upset of the season by knocking out Paul Berlenbach. The former champion sees in himself a case of history repeating itself and points to Bob Fitzsimmons as a precedent. McTigue, with no title to safeguard, and an improved right hand has challenged all comers.
