MENUS

By Sister Mary
BREAKFAST—Halves of grapefruit, cereal, thin cream, crisp broiled bacon, potato omelet, whole wheat pop-overs, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Scalloped finnan-haddock, graham bread, Chinese cabbage with Thousand Island dressing, lemon jelly with whipped cream, milk, tea.

DINNER—Veal stew, steamed kale in lemon butter, fruit salad, cheese straws, whole wheat rolls, milk, coffee.

Since rice is included in the veal stew no other "starchy vegetable" is suggested. The fruit salad served with cheese straws takes the place of a dessert although a light custard dessert of some sort may be added if wanted. The meat course is rather light so if more protein calories are needed the custard will make up the deficiency.

Scalloped Finnan-Haddock
One pound finnan-haddock, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 1/2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 2 cups boiled macaroni.

Let fish stand in cold water for one hour. Drain and pour over boiling water to cover. Simmer 20 minutes and remove skin and bones. Divide fish into large flakes. Melt butter and stir in flour. When perfectly smooth add tomatoes which have been rubbed through a sieve to remove seeds. Cook, stirring constantly until mixture boils. Put a layer of macaroni in a buttered baking dish, add a layer of fish and pour over part of tomato sauce. Continue layer for layer of macaroni, fish and sauce until all is used. Sprinkle top with coarse crumbs, dot with bits of butter and put into a hot oven to brown and become very hot. Serve from the baking dish. (Copyright, 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

The Garden

HEAD LETTUCE SECRET IS TO START IT INDOORS EARLY

While the consumption of head lettuce the year around has increased more rapidly than that of any other common garden vegetable, the success of home gardeners in raising good head lettuce has not multiplied anywhere nearly as rapidly. Many have given up the attempt and left head lettuce to the professional gardener.

To produce lettuces that form good heads (a real vegetable gardening accomplishment) try the little Mignonette, a variety that many gardeners find will head when they have no luck with anything else. Iceberg, also known as New York or Wonderland, is another like variety which many gardeners like, but Mignonette is the surest.

There are two types of head lettuce, the butterheads and the crisp heads. Both varieties named are of the crisp head sort and they usually are easier to grow than the butterheads. Of the latter the well known early variety, Big Boston, is recommended for amateurs.

The secret of making lettuce produce good heads is rapid growth with cool and cool weather. Hot weather is the greatest handicap to the lettuce grower, as it makes the plants go to seed instead of heading. Plants must be ready to go into the ground as soon as it can be worked. Head lettuce must be started indoors a month in advance at least, so that the seedlings have three or four true leaves by the time they are transplanted to the open.

Snip the ends of these leaves off about half their length when transplanting and set six to eight inches apart.

The soil must be rich, well tilled and moisture retentive. See that the lettuce at all times have a plentiful supply of moisture. If they are caught by a dry spell and growth is checked, away go your heads and you will find them running up to seed. Constant cultivation to maintain a dust mulch is essential, and a light nitrate of soda dressing when heads start to form often does the trick.

Road Oiling Plan Has Opposition in North State

OLYMPIA, Feb. 12 (Special)—The plan to oil more than 600 miles of dirt highway in Eastern Washington is not meeting with favor among legislators, and the indications are that the program will be greatly reduced. Even legislators from the East Side, generally favorable to Governor Hartley and Highway Engineer Hoover, are inclined to balk at an extensive program of oiling.

In his message to the legislature, Hartley advised oiling of more than 625 miles. This recommendation was based on plans of Hoover, who, upon urging by the Automobile club of Washington, made a personal inspection of oiled roads in Eastern Oregon and decided that it would be good business to oil dirt roads on the East Side. Hoover found that the oil treatment was not satisfactory for the dirt highways west of the Cascades.

Therefore, the Hoover road budget, totaling $24,484,000, carried nearly $1,500,000 for oiling. But the house roads committee tactfully decided that oil treatment was too much of an experiment, the members generally agreed to cut the oiling program by about $1,000,000. They felt that it would be better to divert the $1,000,000 into permanent construction. But the committee decided to favor the Hartley-Hoover budget of $24,484,000, which is in conflict with the senate committee's decision to cut the Hartley-Hoover budget by $20,000,000, the amount of the visible income.

This move in the house roads committee may cause trouble in dividing the $1,000,000. It is, in effect, a move by the house members to have "something to say" about the road program. They wanted to agree with Hartley, but yet have a finger in the pie. So by reducing the oil program, they would have $1,000,000 in jargon around. But so many of the East Side legislators are moving to get a slice of the $1,000,000 that it is likely they will have a merry wrangle among themselves.

WILL ROGERS IN TROUBLE

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.—They are talking of recalling Mayor Will Rogers for invisible government, because he's been away from California since inaugurated. An indignation meeting has been held. Perhaps the recall movement is due to the fact that Will has been visiting for Florida and advertising that state.

LUMBERMAN GIVES ART TO MINNEAPOLIS

Fifty years of effort to provide Minneapolis with an art collection or world renown will culminate this spring for T. R. Walker, pioneer north-west lumberman.

Housed in a $200,000 gallery nearing completion, his $5,000,000 collection of paintings and rare art objects will then be presented to the city.

Walker, who is 87, has figured in public welfare in Minneapolis for sixty years. He acquired wealth through lumbering activities which began at Paris, Ill., when he was 19.

NO MODERNISM IN FIRST MATISSE WORK

The first canvas ever painted by Henri Matisse, French protagonist of modernism, was exposed to the American public for the first time at the Duderstadt Gallery, New York. It is a still of old books, candle, holder and table cover and is about two feet square, containing no hint of future divagations from the Beaux Arts methods, surrounding it were abstract paintings that, with strange color arrangements and non-representative form, revealed what is spoken of as Matisse's progress.

Dr. Johnson undertook to learn the Dutch language only a few years before his death; the Marquis de Saint Aulaire began to write poetry at 73; Chaucer wrote Canterbury Tales between the ages of fifty-four and sixty-one; Ludovico Monaldesco wrote the memoirs of his times at 115; and Benvenuto Cellini wrote his autobiography at 58.
