MELLON OPPOSED TO RELIEF BILL

Letter Made Public as House Is Considering Future Course

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP)—Continuing an intensive fight, house farm leaders were hopeful today that before night the point would be reached where a vote would be in order to substitute the McNary-Haugen bill as passed by the senate for its companion measure which for nearly a week has been debated in the house.

A letter by Secretary Mellon setting forth difficulties foreseen by the treasury department in carrying out the equalization fee provision of the bill came in for discussion early at the capitol, and leaders freely admitted that whether a vote on substitution was reached today or carried over until tomorrow depended largely upon the time consumed in discussing this communication.

Both supporters and opponents will look to the vote on substitution as furnishing some light on the strength of the bill, but it has been pointed out that although a number of members, including house party leaders, have announced they will support this move they have made no announcement of their position on final passage.

Substitution is sought in the hope the bill can be passed in the same form as approved by the senate, so that it can go directly to the president and avert the tedious legislative journey through conference with the other body.

Secretary Mellon's letter is the second in as many years in which he has indicated his hostility to the bill on the eve of its coming up for a vote in the house.

Paint Is As Necessary As Insurance

Paint not only makes your house or building look better but it makes it last longer when a good quality is applied.

You may apply paint for pride's sake but it's just as important that it be done for the wood's sake.

And of course you may be able to get reasonably good appearance with cheap paint—but you can't get the best appearance and the best preservation at the same time unless you insist on Lowe Bros. quality.

For a great many years we have been supplying Lowe Bros. paints. And for a great many years it has proved itself the most economical in long wear, in easy application.

We will be glad to submit prices on Lowe Bros. products whether you want to paint a dog kennel or a big house.

The Power of Values

Emphasized Here By Quality

Holding the Public Good Will

Our opinion is that a Value that is good today will also be good tomorrow and every day.

If an article, for example, is worth $4.98, that is a just price to sell it for. To reduce the price would be to admit that it was not properly priced in the beginning. We never have two prices for the same article. However, we do continuously keep our prices as low as is consistent with current market conditions and re-placement costs. We never name comparative prices.

Here you receive the same fair consideration every day which means that your Dollar always buys 100 cents' worth—no less, no more! And that 100 cents' worth is measured in the most liberal way possible.

Operating without spasmodic "sales" or other unnecessary price-changing methods, selling for cash only and giving the customer the full benefit of the far-reaching buying power of this countrywide institution, we have found it possible not only to win the good will of the public but to continue to hold it.

PEOPLE TO DECIDE

EUGENE, Ore., Feb. 15 (AP)—Controversy among members of the Eugene board of education over the proposed reelection of David John Jones as superintendent of city schools took a new turn last evening at an executive session of the board. The board members voted to put the matter of reelection of Jones up to a vote of the people of Eugene at a special election on Saturday, Feb. 26.

John D. Rockefeller made eight holes of golf in 45, according to a dispatch from Florida. Two Sunday school teachers verified it. We don't know whether they got dimes or not.
