DIAMOND STARS LIKE FOOTBALL

Many Big Leaguers Made Good on Gridiron Before Playing Ball

By Billy Evans Eddie Collins, the smartest ball player I ever came into contact with...

Without exception, practically every big league collegian frankly admits that at college he far preferred football to baseball...

Views of Collins "Football from the angle of team play calls for more science than baseball..."

"Ty Cobb, with his remarkable hitting eye, great speed, deceptive slide and keen mind, would have been an outstanding star on any ball club..."

"Walter Johnson's ability to win consistently even when with a hopeless tailender is further proof of how a star can assert himself in baseball..."

"Class on the part of the individual player will assert itself in baseball regardless of conditions..."

Managers of World Champions Pass on After a Moment of Fame

ably much needed assistance on the part of their teammates made possible the fame that came their way.

"It is unfortunate, but in football, the glory always goes to the ball fater, although the men in the line and the players forming the interior play an equally important part."

Stiklos me that Eddie's reply will satisfy both sides of the question. As always he was decidedly diplomatic.

Breaks Play Part Breaks play a big part in all sports, but it always strikes me that there are more possibilities for fickle fortune to cast the deciding die than baseball.

A pitcher is not so consistently in the majors must be favored by the breaks. It is not enough that he pitch effectively. His team must give him able support in the field and at the bat and back up on him.

I don't believe I ever observed a better example of the above truth than the experience of Walter Hoyt during the early stages of the 1925 race.

Walter Hoyt, by my way of thinking is a great pitcher. Hoyt has everything that goes to make a star, speed, curves, fine change of pace and a wise noodle.

Yet, despite all his natural ability, looked by an intelligent mind, Walter Hoyt during the first two months of the 1925 season wasn't able to finish a ball game.

Concrete Example In his first 15 attempts that season Hoyt was unable to register a single victory.

Just to illustrate what the breaks mean. In his 12th attempt to get over, it seemed as if he was about to succeed against the St. Louis Browns. With two but in the first half of the ninth, the score stood 3-2 in favor of New York. Hoyt looked a sure winner.

Hoyt fumbled an easy tap that should have been the third out. The next batter hit the first ball for a home run, making the score 4-2. The next man up was hit the first pitch for a homer, two runs were scored and Hoyt was on his back. The Yankees won in 10 innings.

North Carolina Boxers May Win Southern Crown

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Mar. 3 (AP)—The University of North Carolina boxer, one of the strongest college boxing teams in the country this season and is a likely contender for the Southern Conference title.

The Tar Heels have not lost a bout this season, and they have met the strongest teams in the conference. They already have defeated the holders of the conference title, but they will be pitted against the Cavaliers again in the southern conference tourney to be held in Charlottesville, Va., March 4-5.

North Carolina has turned in victories this season over Florida, V. D. L. Georgia, Virginia, Washington and Lee and V. M. L. This closed their regular schedule.

Coch Crayton Rowe, former professional star, developed the heavyweights. The outstanding star is "K. O." Warren, who captained the team for three consecutive seasons. Warren fought his way last spring to the junior national title in the light-heavy and heavyweight classes. Other members are Captain "Ox" Sanford, heavyweight; Carpenter, bantamweight; Meigs, Madison and Shaw, featherweights; Butler, welterweight; and Brown, middleweight.

LONGEST NAME FAILS TO HURT GREAT ARM

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Christian Albert Frederick John Henry Lewis Hetsel, named for six uncles, all of whom were Methodist ministers, carries the longest name in the American association, or for that matter, any other league roster of professional baseball players. He also cites his case as an example of how little chance a baseball player has of escaping a nickname. With six names to choose from the fans rejected them all and valued him "Hetsel." Aside from all this, Hetsel, who as a player-manager will lead the Indiana team on a pennant trail this year has two other outstanding assets. He is an expert pocket billiard player and boasts an impressive throwing arm.

KANSAS WOMAN DOES WRESTLING PROMOTING WICHITA, Kan. — Although wrestling is considered exclusively a man's sport, that does not prevent Mrs. Tom Law of Wichita from being an active participant in promoting matches. Same time ago Mr. Law, who is a wrestling promoter, fell sick in the midst of negotiations for an important bout. Rather than let the match fall through, Mrs. Law took up the reins and handled the affair so smoothly that she gained commendation from many quarters.

Mrs. Law now looks after many details of the bouts and confers with her husband about all the matters he handles. She believes a woman's intuition is valuable in determining whether two given wrestlers would draw a good "home."

California And Oregon Tossers Clash Tonight

EUGENE, Ore., Mar. 3 (AP)—University of Oregon basketball fans are not so confident of a championship, with the eye of battle at hand. University of California opponents came in last evening, took a brief look at Eugene, and went up to McArthur pavilion for a workout. The Californians looked husky and fast, hence the Oregon doubts.

The first game of the Pacific coast intercollegiate conference championship series will start this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The second game will be tomorrow evening, and the third, if a third is necessary, will be Saturday.

Notes: California forward who was left behind because of illness is due in tonight, an hour before the game starts. He may don a suit and mix into the fray, giving California and Oregon their first string lineup complete. Yesterday Coach Billy Hornhart of the Webfoots was crying that he had a group of cripples on his hands, but before the practice session was over the team looked as good as ever and the crying had abated.

McTigue, Sharkey Fight This Evening

NEW YORK, Mar. 3 (AP)—Mike McTigue and Jack Sharkey, meet in a 15-round battle at Madison Square Garden tonight in sort of a semi-final in Tex Rickard's heavyweight "diamond" tournament. The winner is destined to meet Jimmy Maloney for the right to face champion Gene Tunney next September.

Fight experts, who were 90 per cent wrong in predicting the outcome of the Maloney-Delaney battle, hedged about tonight's bout. Although Sharkey ranked a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting, and in scaling the pounds had a weight advantage of approximately 20 pounds, forecasters used a flock of "ifs."

TWO OREGON MEN ON STAR QUINTET

Okerberg and Westergren Get Call—Graap, O. A. C., Is Honored

Table listing the 1927 All-Northwest Basketball Team members, including names and their respective schools or teams.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Mar. 3—Two men from University of Oregon and one each from Washington, Idaho, and O. A. C. were picked as the choice of the northwest basketball officials, who saw all conference teams in action this season and officiated for all teams except O. A. C. Washington placed two on the second team while Montana, Oregon, and O. A. C. placed one each.

Schuss of Washington is one of the best shots in the conference," said Coleman in commenting on his selection. "I appoint him captain as he is a clever heady player who has proved he can handle a team well. He sizes up the situation and has the confidence of his team."

"Miller of Idaho was undoubtedly one of the outstanding players of the season. He was the star of the Idaho team for the last three years. He would make a good running mate to Schuss."

Okerberg Outstanding "Okerberg of Oregon has been one of the outstanding centers in the west for some time. He is a good shot, cool and collected all the time."

Westergren of Oregon is the ball-hawk of the conference. He handles himself nicely. Is a hard man to guard and a constant threat.

Graap of the Oregon Aggie is a clever dribbler and very deceptive. Always cool under fire and undoubtedly was instrumental in whatever honors O. A. C. won."

WHEN MALONEY BEAT DELANEY

This telephoto picture, taken by NEA staff photographers at Madison Square Garden, New York, shows one of the lively moments in the Jimmy Maloney-Jack Delaney fight, the biggest scrap since the Seagull-Capendall exhibition of Dempsey and Tunney. Delaney, the light heavyweight champion, entered the ring 31 pounds lighter than Maloney and this concession proved too much of a handicap. The bulky Maloney, who weighed in at 183, took every round and won the fight by a decision. This picture shows Maloney (left) and Delaney slugging at each other's head in the first round. The referee at the right is Louis Mazzotta. Delaney's title was not affected by the decision because of the disparity in weights.

"We that live to please must please to live" ... so spoke Samuel Johnson when he opened a London theater some century and a half ago. Today it is even truer of the people who advertise to you. Whether merchants or manufacturers—whether they advertise hats or harness, powder puffs or plows—the permanent success of every advertiser who uses these pages rests squarely upon his ability to please you. The goods he advertises must be right. They must meet your approval in open comparison. They must please you in utility, design, quality, value and service. If they don't, you won't buy. And if you won't buy, the advertiser can't live. That's why advertised merchandise must be good merchandise—and that's why there is protection, true economy and real satisfaction in reading the advertisements and being guided by them. Advertising guides you to products that please. Read it regularly.
