A COOLIDGE SPEECH HEARD AROUND THE WORLD

This is the best picture of congress ever taken. It was made by an NEA Service photographer while President Coolidge was delivering his Washington birthday speech—the speech that was heard around the world. The address was radioed all over the U. S. and broadcast across the Atlantic for re-broadcasting in Europe. The photograph shows the president before the microphone, with the members of the supreme court and cabinet members seated out in front. Chief Justice Taft, ex-president, is prominent among the justices' house and senate met in joint session.

Neighbors Can't Talk About This; They Don't Know

PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 7 (AP)—Neighbors are mentioned in this story for obvious reasons. The couple figured were a man and his wife and a six-month-old baby. The man paid a visit today in Judge Deich of the court of domestic relations. The baby, a little wool blanket, was placed on the council table in the court room. "It" was the subject of much adaptation. The mother told her story. She didn't want the neighbors to know the truth, because, she believed, they would talk too much. "We wanted a baby," she said. "We really decided to adopt one. We thought for a while that we thought we'd just like our own. A doctor friend of ours in the city sent word that he had found the baby we wanted. We found out some that I was going to be a mother. Then I went out to see the baby. It was a baby. I brought home with a baby. My neighbors congratulated me. No one knows to this time that the baby is not our own. The baby went to the approval. "You may adopt it," declared the judge. "And I hope the truth will never be known. "This is my baby," cried the mother. "These don't any of you reveal our secret."
