$4,000 LOAN IS ON GRILL TODAY

Aaron Sapiro and Senator Reed Clash Verbally in Libel Suit Trial

DETROIT, Apr. 8 (AP)—Two loans totaling $4,000 from the Los Angeles brokerage firm of West and Zuckerman through Aaron Sapiro to the organization committee of the Idaho Potato Growers exchange were attacked today by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, chief counsel for Henry Ford, as evidence of bad faith and admitted as vulgarly improper by Sapiro, who seeks $100,000 upon its return to him.

Sapiro's Reply Sapiro replied that the loans, one for $2,100 and the other for $1,900 had been requested by the organization committee of the growers and that he acted for them in a proper business capacity. Senator Reed drove at the testimony of bad faith and Sapiro answered hotly. Ten minutes after the session got under way they were glancing at each other.

Upon demand of Sapiro's counsel, William Henry Gallagher, Senator Reed's spokesman in "bad faith" was written and the jury told to disregard it. Sapiro testified that it was usual for co-operatives in the process of organizing to require funds, which were repaid upon organization.

The Idaho potato growers might have required $100,000, he said, and he suggested to Charles A. Zuckerman, one of the organizers that the money be borrowed in small amounts from West and Zuckerman who were willing to go out of the potato commission business and instead handle potatoes upon a small commission for the co-operatives.

Reed, according to a telegram introduced as evidence, informed Sapiro he thought it "vulgar" at this time to make a preliminary note to West and Zuckerman; otherwise he would not be made to pay.

"Was it because they were speculators that you did not want the organization being formed?" asked Reed, "and to promote, foster and encourage speculative speculation?" "Yes," Sapiro answered.

"One of the reasons it was formed was to minimize speculation," asked Reed, "and to promote, foster and encourage speculative speculation?" "Yes," Sapiro answered.

"Then he explained that West and Zuckerman were going out of the 'speculation' business as you call it" and going to help the farmers by placing at their disposal the great West and Zuckerman selling organization.
