"I've been sued for breach of promise."
"How come?"
"I signalled I was going to turn a corner and then didn't."

"Always and everlastingly late," snapped wifey as hubby came home late for supper. "Why, you were late at church the day we were married."
"Yes, my dear," he replied bitterly, "but not late enough."

I rushed breathlessly into Neighbor Brown's apartment. "Brown," I panted, "your wife just eloped with the saxophone player who lives next door."
(Pause) "You don't seem excited."
"No, there's no reason to be. We stood the saxophone groaning as long as we could. This morning the wife and I tossed to see who should get rid of him. She lost."

There's nothing that will go to the head quicker after being swallowed than flattery.

"Doesn't this boat tip a great deal?" asked a timid young woman of the steward.

"The vessel, ma'am," said the steward, "is trying to set a good example to the passengers."

"Uncle," you boys of today want too much. Do you know what I was getting when I married your aunt?"
"Yes," and I bet she didn't, either."

AT THE THEATERS

Baseball Comedy On Way To Arcade Theater

"Take out the big bum!" "Kill the umpire!" "Come on, kid, knock a homer!" "There goes the old ball game!" These, and all the other expressions which make baseball the game it is, are included in Wallace Beery's current Paramount starring comedy, "Casey at the Bat," which arrives at the Arcade theater Thursday for a three-day run. Beery, perhaps the actor to have made most progress during the past twelve months, due to his remarkable performances in "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now" and "Old Ironsides," enacts the small down junk man who suddenly finds himself catapulted to fame and fortune when a big league league baseball scout signs him to a Giant contract.

Imagine if you will (it isn't difficult) Beery as the hero of America, the Babe Ruth of 1901. Picture the laughs as Wallace hits a home run with one hand while holding a stein of beer in the other. Think of the roars that'll be forthcoming from the stands on the stage of the old Casino theater and makes a personal appearance, with the "original" Fioradora Sextette. Then comes a trip to Coney Island and you'll wonder what the wild wags are saying. "A morning in bed, duped into believing he's very ill and finally—the big game!"

Ford Sterling enacts Beery's Columbus by "discovering" him. Zasu Pitts is the Controville belle and Sterling Holloway, Beery's villainous manager. Monte Brice directed this Hector Turnbull production.

DOG IS STAR IN PICTURE AT THE STAR

If you want to see a beautiful dog in action and at the same time enjoy one of the best melodramatic movie thrillers seen in these parts in some time, go to the Star theater, where Sandow, described as "the world's greatest dog," is appearing in "Code of the North-west." Sandow is a remarkable police dog who makes you forget that you are looking at a movie instead of seeing actual events in the lives of a group of men and women in the North Woods.

The scenic backgrounds in which the gripping plot is portrayed are exceptionally beautiful, and to all of this there is added a story of a Northwest Mounted Police man hunt in a human drama that hits almost every emotional highlight, as well as affording the opportunity for a word of action and thrills.

Also showing on the same program is the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture "The Little Journey," featuring Claire Windsor, William Haines and Harry Carey. This pleasing little picture is full of real humor and drama and is adapted from the story by Rachel Crothers.

This double feature bill will be shown at the Star theater tonight for the last time.

ARTS COMPETITION SET FOR OLYMPIAD

A MASTER PLAN—The Dutch Olympic committee is organizing an international art competition for the five arts of music, literature, painting and sculpture, which is to be completed during the Olympic games in 1928. The director of the municipal museum here has accepted the presidency of a special committee.

Wm. Penn—5 cents—A Good Cigar

"Queen O' Diamonds" At Sherrys Tonight

A courageous girl's fight to lift an embryo playright, whom she loves to the heights; a dramatic slice of show girl life just off the Great White Alley of New York; a roaring tale of crooks and hijackers who ply their trade to the tune of jazz bands and popping corsets from the vividly colorful background against which is drawn the surging drama of "Queen O' Diamonds," in which Evelyn Brent comes again to the Sherry theater.

A rapid-fire story from the pen of Fred Kennedy Myton, who has written many of this star's most successful vehicles, presents the charming and dynamic little actress in the sort of role in which she has endeavored herself to hundreds of thousands of cinema fans. She is a chorus girl fighting against a drab fate in the Roaring Forties of New York—the hub of the world's theatrical life. She meets and falls in love with a young writer of the stage. The boy has great promise but without the encouragement of the girl and her fight to help him win, he is lost. Woven dramatically in the threads of thousands of cinema fans, she is a chorus girl fighting against a drab fate in the Roaring Forties of New York—the hub of the world's theatrical life.
