AT THE THEATERS

"Gorilla Hunt" Showing At Sherrys

"Gorilla Hunt," which opened last night at the Sherry theater, is a picture that is going to cause a lot of comment both among hunters and scientists. It is a true thriller with nothing synthetic about the thrills. There is no question of doubling here, and a forty-foot python, or a charging elephant, are infinitely more thrilling than any man made episode. From a scientific point of view it is going to provide food for thought, and many scientists that have scoffed at evolution, will think seriously before they continue their sneers.

"The picture discloses that the elusive man-like thing Gorilla, the very existence of which had until now been doubted, is almost human in his habits and thoughts. In fact the picture shows that there are tribes in Africa that are still little above that standard in development, and a good many of the thousands who will enjoy this picture will rather admit descent from the mighty patriarchs, that like the adult male in the picture, will give their lives for their family, than admit kinship with the misshapen humans that live in the Cannibal and pygmie belts of the Biva country. Whether the audiences have scientific learnings or not they cannot fail to be interested and thrilled by the sincerity of the picture, and it is evident from the care that has made each detail so clear and real, that the man to whom the Belgian government trusted the expedition was a master at his trade.

Comedy showing "Blow Down."

Corinne Griffith, always one of the most dependable of all screen stars, be it in a dramatic or comedy vehicle, again scores in "Three Hours," the First National picture, which opened at the Star theater yesterday for a two-day run.

Of a decidedly melodramatic tinge, "Three Hours" gives to Miss Griffith, perhaps, one of the greatest opportunities that she has had in a long time for the portrayal of a tensely dramatic role of fine emotional quality. Her part in this picture is as tragic as the characterizations in previous humorous films.

Her role is that of a society matron, who is the victim of circumstantial evidence, and the wrath of an insanely jealous husband. Ostracized by society, she is forced to the extremes of poverty.

By no means, however, is the picture without its lighter moments. There is a finely-woven romance running throughout the film and the repressed manner in which this has been handled is a commentary on the perfect direction of James Flood and the fine work of the various players.

Hobart Bosworth gives an excellent performance in his role of the jealous husband. The elements of the drama in this part is reminiscent in many ways of his memorable work in "The Sea Wolf" and "Behind the Door." The romantic phases of the film are in the talented hands of John Bowers and Paul Ellis, while credit should also go to Ann Schaefer, and to Mary Louise Miller, who plays the part of the baby.

"Three Hours" will close its run at the Star theater, tonight.

Society Life Is Shown In Arcade Film

A poignant drama, set in surroundings that spell joy, revelry, and the pleasures of the idle rich—this is the paradox in "Women Love Diamonds," the remarkable new Edmund Goulding romance playing at the Arcade theater, today only.

It is set in fashionable apartments and millionaires' estates; it shows the outward joy of the life of the idle rich—and then—what a tragedy!

Pauline Starke scores a triumph in the new picture, in the role of a girl facing the most terrible problem that ever fell to the lot of a woman.

Owen Moore plays the hero of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama, injecting his whimsical humor and human portrayal into a difficult acting part as the chauffeur-lover in the strange tangle of human destinies. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and Lionel Barrymore are two other bright spots in the constellation of celebrities in the new picture.

Cissy Fitzgerald as the mother and Gwen Lee as the fashionable daughter have remarkably fine roles that they handle with rare skill, and George Cooper's comedy relief is side-splitting. Dorothy Phillips, Constance Howard and Carol Wines are other clever artists in the dramatic story.

The settings and costumes are gorgeous—almost spectacular.

PERSONALS

LADD CANYON (Special)—W. O. Sherwood, who has been very ill since early in February, underwent an operation at Hot Lake sanatorium early last week and is now improving.

Farmers of this vicinity have been working early and late to get their grain seeded. They are now nearing completion.

Dr. J. H. Ewin was here three days last week from Portland visiting his sons, Sherrill and Henry Ewin.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tilton drove over from their home at Lostine Sunday and spent the day with their daughter, Mrs. Henry Counsell.

Word has been received that Mrs. Dorothy Krouse Howard, of Medford, formerly of this place, is rapidly improving after an appendix operation.

There was no school here last Wednesday because of the illness of the teacher, Mrs Gordon.

A PRAYER

God send us a little home,
To come back to, when we roam.

Low walls, and fluted tiles,
Wide windows, a view for miles.

Red firelight and deep chairs,
Small white beds up stairs.

Great talk in little nooks,
Dim colors, rows of books.

One picture on each wall,
Not many things at all.

God send us a little ground,
Tall trees standing round.

Homely flowers in brown sod,
Overhead, Thy stars, O God.

Our home, and all we know,
God bless, when the winds blow.
