Willie, looking very dejected, was on his way home from school when his appearance attracted the attention of a kind-hearted old lady.

"What's troubling you, my little man?" she asked.

"Dyspepsia and rheumatism," replied Willie.

"Why, that's absurd," remarked the old lady. "How can that be?"

"Teacher kept me in after school because I couldn't spell them," was Willie's dismal answer.

Harry—"How much are your rooms?"

Clerk—"Two dollars and up to six."

AT THE THEATERS

"War Horse" Is Coming To Star Friday

Petition has been sent to Congress to provide some fitting tribute to the American horses which served on the fighting front in France during the World War. This idea of a memorial to the equine heroes originated with Buck Jones, Fox Films horseman star, who wrote the screen drama, "The War Horse," as a film testimonial to the horses he sent to France and later followed to the fighting front when he joined the American cavalry.

"The War Horse" is the picture of the horse's everyday dangers, romances, hardships and daring during service in France as Jones saw it from the dramatic standpoint of a cavalryman, circus rider and actor.

A beautiful Wyoming girl who drives an ambulance in the mud of Flanders adds the touch of romance.

Silver Buck, Buck's famous white horse which has figured in seventeen of his screen dramas, has the title role and co-stars with the famous actor.

Supporting them are Lola Todd, Lloyd Whitlock, James Gordon, Stanley Taylor and Yola D'Avril.

"The War Horse" will have a showing at the Star theater Friday and Saturday.

Fire Fighters Are Heroes Of Picture At Arcade

"The Fire Brigade," now showing at the Arcade theater, might easily be called a picture of highlights, so full of thrills it is.

This production does for the fireman what "The Big Parade" did for the American soldier, and brings before the public in an arresting manner the necessity of fire prevention without at any time becoming a preachment on the subject.

A gripping, dramatic story has been woven against a background of fire and fire-fighters that holds the spectator from beginning to end. The story tells of "Terry O'Neill," descended from a long line of fire-fighters, his initial enthusiasm, his love for the daughter of a wealthy man whom he later discovers to be the head of the whole city government, his disgust at this man's crooked methods, and the consequent quarrel with his sweetheart over her father, his heroism in a spectacular orphanage fire caused through the neglect of the politician, and the final reconciliation with the daughter and his later public recognition for his heroism.

The studio had the expert cooperation of the International Order of Fire Engineers in the making of the picture, and the fire scenes were all staged by the Los Angeles Fire Department under the supervision of Fire Chief Ralph Scott of that city.

"The Fire Brigade" is the first directorial effort of William Nigh for Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer and places him in a similar position to that of King Vidor after he had triumphed with "The Big Parade."

Charles Ray is seen in the role of "Terry O'Neill." Noted for his humanness, the actor has excelled himself in the delineation of this character. It is one that allows for considerable comedy, yet depends principally upon drama for its appeal.

May McAvoy is seen opposite Ray as "Helen Corwin", daughter of the politician, and not only has photographed to the finest advantage, but brings a wealth of charm and understanding to her part.

Tom O'Brien, remembered for his role as "Bull" in "The Big Parade," plays Ray's big brother in this picture, and though he dies all too soon in the story, leaves a lasting impression.

Holmes Herbert as the father of the heroine, manages to make himself thoroughly despicable, with his love for his daughter the one redeeming feature.

An elaborate costume ball, photographed in technicolor, brings a surprising note of beauty to the film.

A large percentage of the profits derived from the showing of "The Fire Brigade" are to be given to the International Order of Fire Engineers for their work in the cause of fire prevention, and another portion will go to various fire and sick benefits maintained by fire department locals.

"Honeymoon Express" Is Tenderly Human

"The Honeymoon Express," the Warner picture now at the Sherry theater, is a lively though tenderly human story of American family life. It portrays, also, the havoc which too much money may wreak on the lives of its possessors. The Lambert home is a house divided against itself. Willard Louis plays the ludicrously voluptuous husband and father who is being eagerly ensnared by a pretty gold-digger, Jane Winton. Irene Rich is the mother, who, after self-effacing years finds herself neglected by all but her younger daughter, Jean, Helen Costello.

Virginia Lee Corbin does Rocky, the willful older daughter, who is being sought for her money, by a young rotter, John Patrick. Lance, Harold Goodwin, the son of the family, is losing clients and courage through dissipation. Margaret Lambert suddenly becomes aware of her position in the household and sets about righting it.

Taking her younger daughter she goes out into the world, effects a rejuvenation both personal and spiritual, wins position and love, and the devotion of her misguided children. Her husband begs to be taken back but unavailingly. There are many intriguing conflicts in the picture, much to make one sit up and take notice. Irene Rich plays with sincerity and conviction; Willard Louis is at his funniest and most ingratiating, and all the members of the cast seen peculiarly attuned to the mood of the piece.

Comedy showing "The Polo Bear."
