OFFICE CAT

By Junius

It's always the fellows who haven't anything to say, and didn't expect to be called on, who make the long speeches.

Agent—"Don't you want your office furniture insured against theft?"

Manager—"Yes, all except the clock. Everybody watches that."

OLD-FASHIONED WEATHER

First it rained, and then it blew. Then it rained and then it snowed. And then it rained, blew, hailed, snowed, froze, and then it blew.

Women who "never had a thing to wear" are now wearing it.

Politicians probably console themselves with the belief that they are statesmen not yet arrived.

There isn't much joy for the kids in the home where mother is trying to reduce her weight and father his expenses.

CHANGED TONE

It is not a weighty matter, but it has a different tone. When you try to talk so clearly and doesn't to the telephone.

"Mind doesn't show her age, do you think she does?"

"Why no? If you mean that she doesn't point it out in the family Bible."

"Do you want to say that you sleep on the sleeping porch all winter long?"

"Yes, all winter long," replied the frail-looking woman.

"But isn't it frightfully cold?"

"Cold" said the lady with a shiver. "Indeed it is cold; why, the Smith took out my appendix last winter it was chopped."

"Boss" will teach you to take out snoring with a child."

"Stars" Boy? "I wish you would see. I couldn't make 'em turn myself."

Rubby—"Does the cook try to make food go as far as possible?"

Wife—"Yes, indeed. Some of it goes all the way from our house to hers."

In a hotel you can get all the comforts of home except the comforting feeling that nobody can hear you quarrel.

AT THE THEATERS

Last Showing Of Picture At Sherrys Tonight

Many interesting situations hold the attention in Warner Brothers' "Why Girls Go Back Home," which opened yesterday at the Sherry theater. The new version of the old theme has been given unique and entertaining treatment by director James Flood.

The story deals with a beautiful small-town girl who becomes infatuated with a matinee idol who spurns her after she has followed him to New York. Finding that he has tricked her, she enters the chorus of a show that can see the handwriting on the wall and soon puts the show in good.

It is her announcement of her engagement to the famous Dudley and the resulting publicity which has put her show on its feet and brought her success, but which does not bring her the actor's love.

To retaliate for his indifference she invites him to a reception by her home, and when he shows signs of succumbing her pretensions of love, she humiliates him before her guests that he leaves the party. When she repeats the next day, she sends him a note asking him to forgive her. He learns that she is homebound, and takes the same train to accompany her home to Winsville to marry her.

Fatay Ruth Miller as the girl, and John Lloyd, the widely-known matinee idol, bring their perfect in their characterizations.

Myrna Loy, as a flapperish, humorous chorine; Jane Minton as an actress; and George O'Hara as the country sweetheart are splendid.

Director Flood has handled the story and cast to perfection. "Why Girls Go Back Home" is the reason why you should miss going to the Sherry theater.

"Gandy showing "Why Girls Go Back Home."

Men Only Show At Star Theater Tonight

The Star theater will open its doors tonight for men only while the sensational film drama "Are You Fit To Marry?" will be shown. This production offers unusual entertainment. The story centers around the most delicate issues of life and tells the whole untarnished truth, leaving nothing to the imagination. The talk by the well known James Lawrence Brooks, S. S. noted writer and lecturer is something that every man will be a member and his starting exhibit of actual cases which he presents at each appearance is positively the most sensational adventure ever offered to the public.

and he reports that the Black Marble and Lime company is getting to the front and that it has commenced to burn the lime and will soon be running full blast.

Too many women are killing their husbands, say the police. This movement should be curtailed a little, to be successful.

Athletic Bebe Holds Forth In "Senorita"

Bebe Daniels with a mousetache! The mousetache Bebe whose family has always been so characteristic a feature of her screen portrayals, is wearing a mousetache, and wearing it affectively and with the utmost savoir faire.

No, our Bebe has not turned suddenly into a comedy actress, but in her latest romantic comedy, "Senorita" which is showing at the Arcade theater today and Tuesday, she does have for the first time since "Wild, Wild Woman," in the role of a boy in the role of a dashing, swaggering, swashbuckling cavalero of South America.

Here is a Bebe who opens up new and interesting vistas; a Bebe who rides who shoots who fences who and does breath-taking stunts with the ease of a Fairbanks and the man-halence of a Tom Mix.

But Bebe does not lose femininity, despite her mousetache. She is still the fascinating Bebe. The mousetache is but a part of the disguise that she assumes when she visits her father's ancestral home in South America to learn that her grandfather had always conceived her to be a boy, and that for him to learn otherwise at that late date would just about break his proud heart. And so Senorita, Princess becomes Senorita Francisco with great lapses into the feminine role—when her grandfather isn't looking.

"Senorita" is a joyous, romantic comedy-drama in which Bebe Daniels is seen at one of the best roles of her screen career. It is refreshingly human and vital. The story, an original screen play by John McLaughlin, is one of the finest she has ever had.

Supporting Miss Daniels is an exceptionally strong cast.

If you want to see a refreshingly different Bebe Daniels; if you want to be entertained with clean wholesome comedy, spiced with the charm of romance, then by all means see Bebe Daniels in "Senorita." You will like it.

"What An Excuse" is the comedy showing.
