It is getting warm enough to stir the life in portulaca and cardinal climber seed which won't move until the temperature suits them. Plant them now.

Start piling up weeds and lawn clippings for a compost heap. The new chemical reagents on the market will convert it into humus by fall.

Get in gladiolus bulbs every ten days to provide a continuous procession of bloom from these gorgeous bulbs during the summer.

Start cabbage seed for early fall crop now. Put in a few late cauliflower seed at the same time.

HEALTH

GOOD HEALTH OR POOR HEALTH--WHICH? By H. A. Ingalls, M. D., Roswell, N. M.

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Just how long the quotation "An ounce of prevention, worth a pound of cure" has been before the American public I do not know, so deeply buried is it in antiquity.

During the Revolutionary war, when the campaign against Quebec was inaugurated, the advice of the medical officer was disregarded, instead of having five thousand of fliers and men fit for the fray, a few more than five hundred were in physical condition, with the result that the brilliantly planned campaign, from the military view-point, was a miserable failure.

During the Spanish-American war the United States had the only strictly volunteer army ever gathered for active campaign in a national emergency. No grant was the number of volunteers offering their services that medical officers on recruiting duty were able to reject applicants for defects of minor magnitude.

It was perhaps the finest body of men from the physical viewpoint that ever served our flag. Due to disregard of knowledge of preventive medicine that splendid body of men, within a short space of time, had deteriorated into perhaps the worst aggregation of physical weaklings ever assembled in the name of an army.

During the World War under the direction of General Gorgas for whom this foundation was named, recognition was given to the prevention of disease. Smallpox, typhoid fever, dysentery, cholera, malaria, and other diseases that devastated the armies of the past were absent.

That which may be accomplished in armies also may be accomplished in civilian life. There is one vital difference, however, which is responsible for much of our sickness today; in civilian life it is impossible to legislate or force people to receive the care of scientific medicine and it is in the army--one of the reasons our boys were so much better during the World War than they were before entering the army.

Were it possible to induce the whole civil population of the United States to submit to a yearly health examination, and were the advice followed, the span of life would increase. People would live in health, far beyond the average age of 28 today. And in addition fully one-third of the casual sickness would be eliminated.

The Gorgas Memorial and the medical profession know these things to be true and, with the cooperation of this newspaper, are bringing the facts to your attention so that you may do your part to live longer and happier.

We can lend a horse to water but we can't make him drink. So it is with health where the individual is concerned. We can only offer the facts and let him make his own decision. It's up to you!

Celestial telescopes are the most pop-eyed of gold-fish. Their shoe-button eyes look up--and only up. So they see only the food that floats. All that sinks is lost to them forever.
Don't be a celestial telescope when you read your newspaper. Get all the news--not just headlined items you can skim off the surface. Get it all--read the advertising too!
Advertising is vital, pocketbook news. It tells you what is new, what is good and where your money will go further. It helps you check values, compare prices and make certain you are getting just what you want. It shows you how to spend your money wisely--and that is the finest kind of economy.
If you skip the advertisements you miss half the news.
