GENUINE BARRINGTONS—Blessed is he whose recreation is his work, whose aim is to succeed. Blessed is the man who knows the best interests of his country and in whose soul there is no guile. Psalm 112: 2.

Too bad the Mississippi couldn't have emptied that water into the Great Lakes.

People spend all winter complaining about the lack of sunshine, then spend all summer dodging sunshine. This summer it looks like we'll have more complaining than dodging.

President Coolidge selects, from the scores of beautiful summer homes placed at his disposal, a residence at Colorado Springs. It stands almost at the foot of Pike's Peak, with towering mountains all around, deeply wooded, comfortably equipped, and famous for its eagles. It is fine for the president, and fine for the country, to have him break precedent and go so far west for the summer. It helps president and country to know each other better, to their mutual advantage. One of these times a president should go all the way, summering on the Pacific coast. It is about as easy to run the country from one part of it as another.

OPEN IMMIGRANT DOORS

The immigration department is taking note of the fact that, while the United States has closed its sea doors pretty tightly against immigration, it has left its land doors open. There is no rigid limitation on the entrance of our neighboring Canadians and Mexicans.

This, as an immigration official observes, has been letting in about 50,000 Mexicans a year, and 100,000 Canadians. He is not worrying particularly about those Canadians, who make good citizens and mix easily with our people. But he is concerned about the Mexicans, who are far harder to assimilate. They are mostly unskilled laborers, and they are steadily flowing northward and eastward, reaching at present as far as Pennsylvania. They are said to be "brought up by the trainload by corporations desiring cheap labor."

That menace, if menace it be, is doubtless greater than the official represents it, because his figures evidently cover only the Mexicans who have come regularly through ports of entry and been listed. It is generally believed that hundreds of thousands have been crossing over into the states without any such formality. If Mexico were put on a quota basis like other countries, it would admit less than 2000 a year. There would probably be no quarrel about that, although the Southwest seems to need such laborers.

Similar limitation would bring the Canadian entrants down to 20,000. That, the immigration authorities suggest, would be a favor to Canada, which wants to keep her people at home. But there are two sides to the question. Canada is proud, and might not like to have her people barred out. Her citizens are also extremely desirable and this country will do well to let Canadians continue to come in at a rapid rate if they so choose.

ENGLISHMEN OUST SOVIET FROM LONDON

He referred to a recent demonstration in front of the British embassy at Washington, charging that it could be expected with instructions received from Russia.

He declared that in the face of warnings the soviet government and their agents continued the agitation on which complaint was made, and added:

"The government cannot longer take the responsibility of maintaining diplomatic relations, which are conducted and so abused, are not an instrument of peace, but a continued source of irritation and danger."

FIRST GUN OF WAR?

NEW YORK, May 27 (AP)—The exciting situation in all world political circles and widely disseminated through the press is that Great Britain is embroiled upon a war of intervention, of which avoidance of relations with the soviet union is the first gun.

The next step is expected to be the passage of an effort toward a financial and economic blockade calculated to weaken the soviet union to such an extent that it can be attacked with impunity.

Joseph, organ of the federal central executive committee of the soviet, declares England's hope of leading other nations against Russia can only end in disaster for England and her allies, since the soviet, during the three years in which the repressive program was being prepared, has gained a strength which today enables her to defy her enemies.

"Most Dangerous Enemy"

Prava, organ of the central executive committee of the communist party, terms a nation of the break of relations by the British house of commons as "the last act in the series of provocative acts."

"At a time when the English masses are being sufficed with white papers and all sorts of criminal detestable tales," it adds, "England stands revealed as the most dangerous enemy of European peace."

Parliamentary approval of the British cabinet's decision to break relations caused little surprise, the action being regarded as a foregone conclusion.

DOES NOT MEAN WAR

LONDON, May 27 (AP)—President Baldwin made the emphatic declaration today that the breaking of diplomatic relations with Moscow "does not mean or imply war against Russia."

Addressing a mass meeting of women unionists in Albert Hall, the premier said:

"The rupture of diplomatic relations does not mean or imply war against Russia. It means what it appears to mean—that we do not intend to have any further political dealings with Moscow, but we are wholly in favor of the pursuit of legitimate trade between the two countries."

The premier said he welcomed the opportunity of repeating that the step taken by the government was "solely because we found that their (the soviet) interference in our domestic affairs was intolerable and because we found that in every part of the world their agents invariably engaged in hostile or unfriendly proceedings against us."

A GRAVE MENACE

PARIS, May 27 (AP)—Minister of the interior, Albert Sarraut, told the chamber of deputies today that the activity of the communist party in France and abroad constitutes a grave menace to the national interest.

NEW STATE LAWS TO TAKE EFFECT SATURDAY MORN

permanently done with state aid in the department.

Important Act

The most important act affecting this department, that making operation under the workmen's compensation act compulsory for public employees in hazardous occupations will not be effective until Jan. 1. From this act the city of Portland, state and port commission are exempted.

One of the measures that strikes the government with more power is the act making the members of the public service commission appointive instead of elective.

Most interesting from the public point of view among new traffic laws is the one changing the maximum speed on highways from 20 to 25 miles an hour.

To Place Stop Signs

The state highway department announces that it will immediately place stop signs at the intersections of lateral roads with primary state highways. This is in accord with a new law requiring cars entering the primary highways from the laterals to come to a full stop.

An amendment to the automobile light law permits the use of 22 candle power bulbs in each device as meet the tests of the federal bureau of standards. Also spotlights are made movable.

Among the only new acts directly affecting the state highway department is one that relieves applicants from participating financially in the construction of arterial and subgrade crossings and from contributing to highway maintenance.

New Commission

An important change becomes effective in the state engineering department. A reclamation commission is created and the old state irrigation and drainage securities commission and the department land board are abolished. The state engineer becomes appointive by the reclamation commission instead of by the governor. The commission will consist of the state engineer, the secretary of state and the state treasurer. The engineer will be the secretary.

HEALTH

TUBERCULOSIS AND SUNSHINE

By Hilbert F. Day, M. D.

Another German Memorial Institute for Tuberculosis and Sunshine. The treatment of tuberculosis affections by means of air and sun-bath is one of the most promising methods. This form of treatment is called Heliotherapy and for several centuries it has been known to cause cures, but was not systematically used until Dr. Reiter, of Switzerland, started to write about it and through his appointment treatment of children became an authority.

Heliotherapy, or light treatment, accelerates the systematic exposure of the body to the sun in order to secure a disinfection or tanning of the skin. It is when the pigmentation of practically the entire body has taken place that the best therapeutic results from the warm rays can be obtained.

Dr. Reiter's work and that of those who have followed him, has proved that the sun's rays stimulate the blood supply to the part exposed, thereby increasing the growth of healthy tissue, improving metabolism, and increasing diuresis. We know that plants and animals kept from the sun do not grow as well as those that are exposed to it, and you also know that sunlight is a powerful agent and cannot be used judiciously. Anybody using the light treatment must be considered separately, for it takes a different amount of exposure to pigment individual patients.

As a rule, the poorer the general health of the patient, the greater the reaction to sunlight and, therefore, in patients who are particularly weak, great headache, dizziness, fatigue, nausea, or vomiting indicates that too much exposure is being given. The danger signs which precede such conditions are skin which does not perspire in warm weather or burns readily or the reverse and gooseflesh, or indications of chilling. These signs, therefore, must be watched and avoided.

The results are shown in a healthy skin, which feels soft and pliable and properly tanned. With it goes an improvement in the muscular tone and an increase in the coloring matter in the blood, a gain in weight and in general physical and mental well being.

Successful Heliotherapy should be preceded by a thorough physical examination by a physician. Treatment should be begun with a gradual acclimatization to fresh air and then graded exposure to the sun. This is done on a definite schedule with the patient reclining, beginning first with the feet and legs so as to determine tolerance to sunlight before exposing the trunk.

As a general rule, sun cure cannot be given immediately before or after a meal and should not be longer than three hours a day at the maximum and then in divided doses. A total daily exposure of six or eight hours of the body is not more than one and a half hours.

The treatment is particularly applicable to what is called surgical tuberculosis, that is tuberculosis of the spine or other bones.
