VENUS NEAR MOON—PORTLAND, Ore., June 7 (AP)—Portlanders who looked into the western heavens last night shortly after 5 o'clock saw an astronomical arrangement that is seldom seen. Cottage cheese ordinarily is made from skim milk. Usually a small amount of sweet or sour cream is added after the cheese is made. It is possible to make the cheese from whole milk or from milk to which cream has been added. However, the fat losses are such that it is more economical to make the cheese without the addition of cream until the product is finished.

LODGE WELCOMES LA GRANDE MEDIC

Dr. W. P. McAdory Given Rousing Reception in Birmingham Visit

A recent issue of a Birmingham newspaper, referring to a visit Dr. W. P. McAdory, of La Grande, made to the Birmingham coordinate lodges of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, says the doctor, a high commander, the visit to his lodge was made during a recent trip in the east and south, from which he returned several days ago.

The newspaper said: "Members of the coordinate lodges of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry were given a very pleasant surprise Wednesday evening when they had as a visitor, Dr. W. P. McAdory, thirty-third degree, a member of the most famous who for the past several years has been located in La Grande, Ore. Dr. McAdory made a very interesting talk to the members of the lodges present, giving his impressions of the far west. He is remembered as one of the most ardent Scottish Rite Masons of the Valley of Birmingham, a ritualist without a superior, a wise student of the teachings of Freemasonry, an executive officer of force and tact, and one of the best loved Masons in Birmingham. His presence last Wednesday evening was a delightful event of an interesting meeting of the lodges."

Accompanying the story was a picture of Dr. McAdory.

LOCAL WOMAN MISSIONARY RAID WITNESS

They were killed by slow detonation, including one Chinese woman.

Some Fighting Line

"We feel as though we went through the war," Miss Sayre said in speaking of her husband at Kail-Fang, in the Hunan province of China. "There were many days that we could hear the guns on the firing lines. One entire night the roar of the cannons and guns was so loud that we were unable to sleep. We thought once we were going to be bombed, as lighting was going on on all sides of us, but we were not. We think it was because we were flying a Red Cross flag, besides being a mission, that we were unharmed."

Many neighboring Chinese found refuge in one mission, although we could not allow them to bring their belongings as we would surely have been robbed. For days no one was allowed on the streets while the winning Chinese army was winning down those of the other side. Soldiers saw that every gate was closed. Shooting was going on all around and at times bullets landed in the mission yard, but no one was wounded.

Faces Gun

Miss Sayre had the experience of looking down the barrel of the gun of one of the Chinese soldiers. Word came to her that the soldiers were digging under one of the school buildings and she went to look out what the noise was, but she had her head out a high window and asked what they were doing and found herself facing a gun. She was ordered to get back in and stay in.

"There was for one month that we received no word from the outside world," Miss Sayre says. During this time the government of the city changed many times, causing a continuous upheaval.

Travel Difficult

The missionaries had considerable trouble in getting from Kail-Fang to Peking, traveling in a box car on a soldier train. It took them three days, when ordinarily it should take only a little over a day. They had nothing to eat or to drink except what they carried with them. There were 20 soldiers in the cars besides several Chinese soldiers. They remained at Peking for some time, hoping to be able to return to their missions, but were unable to.

Miss Sayre left Peking May 5, stopping at Koro, Japan, on a stop-over trip. A part of 24 Methodist missionaries remained in China and are at Peking, a coast summer resort, hoping to be able to take up their work again in the meantime the mission at Hoonan is being carried on by the Chinese. It was necessary

Loses Appeal

Miss Charlotte Anita Whitney, Oakland, Calif., clubwoman, sentenced to one to 14 years for violating the criminal syndicalism law of California, has lost her case in the United States supreme court. The court upheld the constitutionality of the law "making membership in a radical group criminal, though in this case the defendant opposed the majority's proposed violent methods."

That the girls' school be disbanded, but the boys' school is still functioning.

Not Entirely Pessimistic

Miss Sayre is not altogether pessimistic over the Chinese trouble. She believes that all is not lost, and that there will be some good come of it; that it will help to unite the Chinese and wake them up to what they can do. At present they are being hoodwinked by Russia, she says, but it is her opinion that that of other interventionaries that the Chinese are independent enough to not be ruled by Russia.

Miss Sayre brought home with her a collection of Chinese curios, also a few things from Japan and Korea, which are causing much interest.

TO PRESENT PLAY

The Relief Society of the Latter-Day Saints' church will present a play "Elizabeth's Young Man" in the tabernacle, this evening at 8 o'clock. The play is being given in connection with theazaar being held this afternoon.

To clean a small machine-made rug at home, place it on a table or other flat surface of convenient height. Scrub it with a heavy lather of mild soap and water, using either a brush or sponge. As soon as one section is scrubbed clean, rinse it thoroughly with water changed as often as it becomes discolored. This is a thorough method, but it may cause the rug to shrink or change color. Do not try it on a thick rug. Valuable rugs are better sent to a professional cleaner.

West Is Warned Again Concerning Highway Scheme

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7 (AP)—The Examiner says the state corporation commission has again warned the "Pacific Coast Seaside Highway, Inc." not to sell memberships and has threatened to ask prosecution of the organization if violations of membership have been sold since a previous prohibiting order was issued Feb. 7.

The newspaper says chapters of emigrants from the Oregon line to Mexico have been bombarding the corporation commission with resolutions concerning the highway organization and Cornelius Conway, vice president, whose apprehension was ordered yesterday by the United States attorney here.

Conway is at liberty on $2500 bail after indictment on a charge of causing the state to default in connection with the International Association of Optimists' club.
