ROAD BONDS ARE FAVORED BY FARMERS

Sentiment of Rural Districts Expressed at Luncheon Here

LA GRANDE URGED TO SUPPORT PLAN

Agriculturists Look to This City; Pleas Made by District Representatives.

At a joint meeting of farmers of Union county with the chamber of commerce today at noon, explanations were made and cordially received by the representatives of the rural districts as to their stand in favor of the $398,000 road bond issue which will be on the ballot June 28.

From the sentiment expressed today, the county outside of La Grande is strongly in favor of the bond issue. Practically every visitor declared that his district was heavily in favor of the bonds and all felt that the question of whether the bonds will pass is up to the voters of La Grande.

Seeks La Grande Support

"We supported you when you asked us to vote bonds for new roads several years ago and now we are asking you to support us," ens representative declared.

E. H. Miles, of the Catherine creek district east of Union, declared that the road needs in his part of the country were vitally important and that about 12 families will benefit from the road to the summit. The other side will open up the entire Park territory with subsequent increase of travel to Union and La Grande from these districts.

Tom Johnson, of North Cove, declared that his district, too, is greatly in need of good roads. "We feel we're entitled to a graveled road this summer," he said, adding that it is like being in a penitentiary during the winter months because present roads are then impassable.

Mr. Shaw, of the south end of the valley, declared that it is important that the road bonds pass and said that the entire county should unite to "help one another."

Increase La Grande Business

Bert Oliver, who lives north of Summerville, stated that the interest there in the proposed roads is extremely keen. He declared that completion of the road program will result in a much heavier trade to La Grande because it will remove the necessity of ordering from mail order houses during months when the roads are impassable.

Walter Hill, and Mr. Miller, both of the Cricket Flat country, asserted that Elgin and the nearby districts are heartily in favor of the bond issue. "We're helping to pay for your roads and we want you to help pay for ours," Mr. Hill said. Mr. Miller was first opposed to the roads, he said, but when he found the farmers were in favor

WASTE BASKET MATERIAL

When a business man spends money in order to send you an advertising message, his money is a dead loss as far as you are concerned if you fail to read his ad. If the medium he uses does not arouse your interest and you toss it in the waste basket, the message fails its mission.

Because of its news and because of its timeliness The Observer enjoys your constant, every-day interest as a reader. You expect and want to find advertising messages there because it's your contact with the business firms of the community. The guaranteed, paid circulation of The Observer is proof positive of the wide extent of this reader-interest. And that, in turn, is the advertiser's only guarantee of his money being a result-getting investment.

A Merchandising Service"

Observer Adds Valley Editor To News Staff

Miss Mabel E. Morton, Experienced Newspaperwoman, Comes to La Grande.

A new Observer staff position, that of valley news editor, has been created starting this week and Miss Mabel E. Morton, who comes here from Raymond, Wash., arrived in La Grande yesterday to take up the work of this position.

Miss Morton, who is a newspaper woman of many years experience, will have charge of the news and correspondence of the Grande Ronde and Wallowa valleys and in addition to supervising and working with The Observer's representatives in various communities in these two counties, she will personally cover the smaller towns and farms in the agricultural districts getting news.

New Service in Oregon

This added news service, which will be, when organized and developed, unique among Oregon daily newspapers, has been planned for the past two years and is started with the idea that farms and outlying districts should have the same coverage that the city has and The Observer hopes and expects that this will become a very valuable and interesting addition to its present service.

Miss Morton, who was news editor for Mr. Appleby, Observer publisher, on an Iowa newspaper for four years, is specially well fitted for this particular type of work. During the past two years she has been in the school system at Raymond, Wash., and prior to that time had valuable experience on Iowa newspapers and was formerly with the publishing house in Cleveland, Ohio. She is a graduate of Cornell college, of Cornell, Iowa, and most of her newspaper experience has been in agricultural communities where she has had contact and experience to write interest-

Local Bankers Attend Meeting At Gearhart, Ore.

The State Bankers association convention held at Gearhart Friday and Saturday was the best attended gathering of the organization ever held, reports H. E. Coolidge of the La Grande National bank, who has returned to his home here after attending the meeting.

Many important matters in regard to banks were taken up, including the tax question, which is now being brought before the courts. The bankers do not wish to avoid any part of the tax they should pay, Mr. Coolidge says, but under the present system they are paying much more than competitive organizations. The law suit was filed in an effort to put the banks on an even basis with these organizations, and it is hoped that a decision will be made by the first of November.

Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University of Oregon, was the speaker at the banquet held Friday evening. Entertainment was furnished for the women attending the convention during the two days.

The general feeling of the bankers attending the meeting was optimistic about the future in Oregon, Mr. Coolidge reports. L. H. Bramwell, of the United States National bank here, also attended the meeting.

Expect 3000 At Convention Here

The complete program for the American Legion state convention to be held here July 21, 22 and 23, was outlined yesterday afternoon when the convention commission met with the state commander, Arthur Murphy, and state adjutant, Carl Moser, at Legion hall. The purpose of the meeting was to arrange the convention program so that the entertainment features, being planned by the local post, would fit in with the departament business.

In regard to the attendance at the convention the state commander stated that La Grande could expect between 2500 and 3000 legionnaires and their wives.

Before the meeting adjourned each of the committee chairmen made a report to Commander Murphy. The party, which consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Murphy and Mr. Moser, left last night on train No. 23 for Portland.

STOCK SHOW, COUNTY FAIR CONSOLIDATE

Action Taken at Joint Meet in La Grande Yesterday

UNION READY TO RECEIVE CROWDS

Directors Declare Outlook for Nineteenth Annual Show, Opening Tomorrow, Promising.

The nineteenth annual Union Livestock show will open its gates to the Eastern Oregon and Northwest public tomorrow, formally at the beginning of the afternoon racing, sports and judging program which will be held at the stock show grounds.

Directors are enthusiastic as to the numbers of livestock exhibits this year, many coming from Idaho and points outside of Union and Wallowa counties.

An important step was taken in La Grande yesterday when representatives of the Eight Fair association and the Union Livestock Show association met, and after some discussion, consolidated the stock show and the county fair.

No More County Fairs

All the efforts of the organizations will now be devoted to making the stock show a success. The consolidation takes effect immediately, which means that there will be no more county fairs in this county.

The meeting was held at the county court offices. No change in dates of the stock show in the future are contemplated but it is said that directors are contemplating changing the name of the show to the Eastern Oregon Livestock show.

The streets of Union are now decorated and the town is eagerly awaiting the opening date. The weather outlook is doubtful but it is hoped that fair weather will result.

Children's Day Tomorrow

Yesterday a number of stock show boosters placed bills in all nearby towns, announcing that tomorrow will be observed as children's day. All children less than 14 years of age will be admitted free.

Thursday will be La Grande day and reserved seat tickets for Thursday are now on sale at Black's Drugs. The business houses of this city will be closed from 12 until 6 o'clock thus permitting all

Advisability Of Special Session To Be Discussed

WASHINGTON, June 7. (AP)—President Coolidge will confer with Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, tomorrow on the advisability of calling congress in session a little before the regular convening in December to take up flood relief and flood control legislation.

While the president sees no necessity for a special session in the basis of investigations made so far into the flood situation, he understands that some senate leaders believe that an early session would give them a better opportunity to dispose of a large amount of business facing congress. It was recalled of the white house that congressional leaders usually like to quit early on election years.

So far as legislation is concerned, Mr. Coolidge believes it will take years to carry out the flood prevention program. If called it is believed the special session would be probably for the middle of October or the first of November.

ENDEAVORING TO IDENTIFY BODY OF MAN

SAN FRANCISCO June 7 (AP)—As an inquest was held police here today were endeavoring to learn more about the identity of the well-dressed young man whose body was found on the beach and who was believed to be Calvin Grant of Northwestern Utah.

Slashes on the neck and head gave ground to the belief that the man may have been murdered and his body thrown into the bay. The body was badly decomposed. Cards in the clothing were the only clues on which the officers could work.

One card bore the name of Henry Birchmashaw, Park City, Utah. The latter wired police he believed the dead man to be Grant, a former employe of the Silver Coalition Mines company of Utah. He said Grant left Utah two weeks ago for California where he intended joining the navy.

Other papers found on the body include envelopes from Medford and Grants Pass, Ore., and a card bearing the name "Joe Dampsey, Pasco, Wash."

The name sent had the label of Schwartz of Cincinnati.

The article tells of his and his father's history. Mr. Currey has owned a number of weekly newspapers in Eastern Oregon, including papers in Vale, La Grande, Baker, Ontario and elsewhere.

PHANTOM BANDIT ELUDES OFFICERS

Matthew Kimes, Modern Jesse James, Escapes in Wooded Area

PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 7 (AP) — Matthew Kimes, young bandit sheriffs credited with the ambition to "show up" Jesse James, today apparently was a step nearer his goal as posses all but abandoned hope of finding him in a thick wood near here into which he disappeared yesterday under heavy fire.

Convicted of murder and with rewards totaling thousands of dollars offered for him "dead or alive," Kimes was immediately recognized when he parked his automobile here. Deputy sheriffs grabbed rifles in the hope of ending his career, but he drove for a mile with bullets striking his motor car, before he abandoned it to commandeer another.

Uses Human Shield

The machine he chose was driven by Red Carter, a rancher. Using Carter for a shield, Kimes forced officers to withhold their fire until he could eject the rancher from the machine. When the bullets struck too close the bandit left the car and disappeared in the woods. A three-hour search with bloodhounds was unsuccessful and the posses withdrew to points of vantage to resume today.

Guards also were maintained at banks here, partly because of a recent threat purported to have come from Kimes, including a letter to a newspaper warning officers to expect "three more jobs" in 30 days. The letter stated the young bandit would make "Jesse James look like a Sunday school teacher."

Score of Robberies

These reports, coupled with the record of the Kimes gang, showing nearly a score of bank robberies in the last year, caused apprehension, and several agencies, including the Oklahoma Bankers'

Soviet Minister Killed Today By Russian Student

WARSAW, Poland, June 7 (AP)—The soviet minister to Poland, M. Wojkoff was assassinated at Warsaw central railway station today by Borys Kowarda, a young Russian student.

(M. Wojkoff is declared by the London Evening News to have been "Pierre Voykoff," who, the paper says, signed the death warrant of Czar Nicholas and the Russian family.)

The minister had gone to the station to meet A. P. Rosengols, former charge d'affaires in London, en route to Moscow after leaving London, because of the recent breaking of diplomatic relations between England and the soviet.

During the train stop of an hour here M. Wojkoff and Rosengols had coffee and then walked up and down the platform. A minute before the train was scheduled to leave young Kowarda approached and, drawing a revolver, fired six shots.

Although mortally wounded in the breast, M. Wojkoff had the strength to draw his pistol, but collapsed before he could use it. The minister was caught by a policeman as he was sagging to the platform.

The assassin a 19-year-old student in Vilna high school, surrendered his revolver, saying: "I killed Wojkoff."

The stricken minister was hurried to a hospital, where he died.

Asks Candidates Clear Their St... on Prohibition

REGARDS LIQUOR ISSUE IMPORTA...

Discusses Question in A... dress to Tusculum Col... lege Students at Commencement Exercises.

GREENVILLE, Tenn., June 7 (AP)—A challenge to political leaders of all parties to make known their stand on prohibition was sounded here today by William G. McAdoo, unsuccessful candidate for the democratic presidential nomination in 1924, with a warning that efforts to nullify the eighteenth amendment is part of a movement menacing the foundations of popular government.

Addressing the students of Tusculum college at commencement exercises the former treasury secretary declared the prohibition question presents a vital issue that responsible statesmanship cannot ignore and called for courageous leadership such as Andrew Jackson might display.

Vital Issue

"Prohibition is a practical issue of the most vital kind in which the whole country is intensely interested and upon which it is looking eagerly for courageous leadership," he said. "The question is interwoven with some of the deepest and most challenging tendencies now at work in American life and which it is the imperative duty of responsible statesmanship to combat.

"The attack on the eighteenth amendment is but a part of a great movement which menaces all that is most American in our institutions. It is the fighting front of a conflict that is deeper than the liquor question. The conflict is shall the constitution be nullified or shall it be enforced?

"But the liquor question itself is a question that political leadership cannot ignore. The American people, by writing the eighteenth amendment into the constitution registered the conviction that the welfare of the nation demanded that they should be protected from exploitation by a traffic that took toll from millions of innocent persons, women and children for the most part, who were sacrificed to its financial greed.

Wets Making Headway

"The liquor interests naturally resisted and their resistance has grown to the point where they have succeeded in inducing certain states to nullify the constitution and now are pressing forward to gain control of the federal government itself in order to paralyze prohibition enforcement.

"If free government means anything, it means precisely that issues of this kind should form the basis of party contests and popular decisions.

"The avowed object of preventing a party decision upon the prohibition question is to gain votes that would otherwise be lost.

"The need for courageous leadership is peculiarly imperative today because under the surface of the political apathy and material prosperity in the country, developments of grave nature are in progress which, if not impressed upon the public mind may menace the perpetuation of American traditions and our very future as a free people.

"The last few years have witnessed a widespread revival and resurgence of corrupt machine politics. As the attention of the people become more and more engrossed in their private affairs, their vigilance has relaxed and the old political machines which have held many of our cities in their grip since the days of boss tweed in New York and the gas house ring in Philadelphia have taken advantage of the opportunity to renew their power.

Charges Corruption

"In two national campaigns they have disrupted and paralyzed one of our great political parties. The signs of their activity are all about us. They are apparent in the startling corruption and frauds which have marked the senatorial campaigns and elections in several states. They are apparent in the effort of great municipal bosses to set themselves up as
