Col. Lindbergh Content Aboard U. S. S. Memphis

U. S. S. MEMPHIS, By Wireless to The Associated Press, June 7 (AP)—Commander Charles A. Lindbergh is having such a good time on his "private" warship that he wouldn't mind a bit if the cruise were to continue a few days longer except that the arrangements have been made for his reception at Washington and elsewhere.

Unless the Memphis encounters exceptionally bad weather, Vice-Admiral Herring is sure the distinguished passenger will be able to step ashore at Washington on a scheduled time for the greetings of President Coolidge and other officials of his government. Through the night the cruiser continued to make up for the time lost Sunday when strong headwinds were met. The admiral hopes to reach the Virginia coast early Friday evening, and this would give ample time for a leisurely journey up the Potomac.

Colonel Lindbergh when not resting is deeply engrossed in the innumerable details that have developed from his notable flight.

Immediately he learned that the trans-Atlantic plane Columbia had landed on German soil he dispatched a radio message to Clarence B. Chamberlin, the Columbia's pilot, congratulating him. To the newspaper correspondents aboard the Memphis he remarked: "It was a very fine piece of work and another feather in the cap of aviators. Feats such as the Columbia's all have a tendency to aid in the development of aviation throughout the world."

While the world cheers Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh for his hop across the Atlantic, an unsung hero in Los Angeles is having more of a thrill out of it than most of us. He is William H. Bowles, who designed and built the Ryan monoplane that carried Lindbergh across. This picture was taken when Bowles was told Lindbergh had reached his destination.

Can't Be Hurt

Here's how Carman boxers prevent injuries during training periods for fights—they wear the most elaborate headgear ever assembled. It is thickly padded and is constructed that the skin is never touched, not even by random shots of the sparring mate.

AWAITS PRISON UNDISMAYED

Undismayed, Miss Charlotte Anita Whitney, well-to-do California club woman, waits in her cottage at the state reformatory, Cal., for the formal order sending her to San Quentin prison, following the action of the supreme court in upholding her conviction of violating California's criminal syndicate law. She is shown here at her desk.

Farm Pointers

Marked improvement in hay marketing is reported from municipalities in which uniform Federal standards are being applied.

Longleaf pine is a particularly valuable tree for farm Woodlands in many sections of the South because of its capacity to grow in the poorest and deepest sandy types of land. It will grow on the driest sandy soils as well as on wet lands and with its dual products of timber and turpentine, often may convert such lands from an economic liability into an asset.

Diarrhoea, the scourge, the most common disease of calves, is the result of disturbances of the digestive organs and may be caused by irregular feeding, overfeeding, sudden change of feed, spoiled feed, dirty milk, dirty milk pails or teat boxes, and damp, dirty udders. As soon as udders are discovered, the affected calf should be separated from the udders and the pen disinfected. Feed should be immediately reduced at least one-half and steps taken to eliminate the above named conditions.

Pigs may be taught to eat at the age of two months. Ground oats, wheat bran and corn meal are good feeds. This should be supplemented with good pasture and bright, clean running hay. The pig may be taught to eat with its dam or by the use of a "creeper." Weaning ordinarily is accomplished at the age of five or six months.

An average of 200 cubic feet of wood is used yearly by every citizen and child in the United States, records of the forest service show.

Never throw the carcasses of fowls that died of tuberculosis where chickens can pick at them. There is much greater danger of tubercular infection if chickens eat than from any other source. Neither should the carcasses be thrown to hogs, as they are susceptible to avian tuberculosis. Either burn or bury at a good depth all such diseased carcasses.

WOMAN FAINTER SAYS U. S. ART SCHOOLS BEST

PARIS—American art schools are better than French, and American art students should perfect their technique on the home side of the Atlantic before studying abroad, in the opinion of Frances Lea, one of the Americans exhibiting at the spring salon here. Her work has been hung at important Paris exhibitions before. The canvas at the National Society of Fine Arts shows her two daughters playing violin and cello.

In private life Frances Lea is the wife of Stuart Moroney, a Paris journalist. Her family have been book publishers in Philadelphia for a century.

Frances Lea laughs at the theory that artists cannot have their work admitted to the spring salon without influence. She also scoffs at the idea that women's work is more favored than men's at this year's salon. She does her painting at her home at La Vallonne, overlooking the Marne.

WHAT KLINGE MEANS

NEW YORK—Through the country the name of Klinge will go like a hot iron. It is forecast by Dr. Karl Lewinski, German consul general. The name of the town of Kola where Chamberlain and Levine were bogged means ring as a bell.

You'd delight Blanche Ring if you offered her a Lucky Strike She'd say to you:

Blanche Ring, popular comedienne and noted star of the stage.

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

"It's toasted"
 Your Throat Protection

When in New York you are cordially invited to see how Lucky Strikes are made at our exhibit, corner Broadway and 45th Street.
