AT THE THEATERS

Vaudeville At Arcade Sunday; Also Picture

An exceptional vaudeville is promised at the Arcade theater on Sunday.

A kind of music, novelty, comedy, singing and dancing headed by Sax and King in their offering of "Songs and Stories" will be presented. There is plenty of snappy patter in this act together with some exceptionally catchy songs and a few dancing efforts that are assuredly pleasing to the eye. Blair, Phillips and Murphy in "Two Ducks and A Queen" offer a comedy act with songs that blend harmoniously.

There is a great deal of comedy involved with the proper spirit to make the act full of pep and dash. Cole and Coy, a youthful couple whose ability as inter-liners comes highly recommended and known from coast to coast, will surely become favorites when and wherever they appear. La Fille, "The Scandalous Violator" plays a genuine Joseph Quinlan violin and handles his wonderful instrument in a manner seldom heard in vaudeville, doing fancy and Irish violin playing. Tommy and Sylvia in "Dances of Beauty and Grace" are two torchbearers whose footwork is remarkably true and their steps intricate. There are also many beautiful costumes.

The feature picture, "The Little Rascals," will also be shown.

Florence Vidor At Star Theater Sunday, Monday

Florence Vidor "The grand doctress of the screen" comes to the Star Theater Sunday and Monday in her latest Paramount picture "The World at Her Feet." For making the royal path she treaded in Hollywood's "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter" Miss Vidor has now taken up the robes of a harlot. As the lady lawyer who forgets her husband while becoming immersed in legal ethics the act is said to be more lively than she has ever before. Those who saw "The Pope Must Sing" "You Never Know Woman" and "A Road to Love," will find this hard to believe but, to borrow an old phrase, seeing is believing.

"The World at Her Feet" concerns itself with Jane Randall and her husband. Sudden wealth prompts Richard to retire from the firm in favor of a life of leisure. Jane continues working
