THREE-POWER CONFERENCE BEGINS TODAY

Delegates from U. S., Japan and Great Britain Meet in Geneva

GIBSON PROPOSES TONNAGE LIMITS

Presents Explanation of Gratitude from President; Reads Coolidge's Message to Delegates

GENEVA, June 20 (AP)—Great Britain today reopened questions settled at the Washington naval limitation conference of 1922. Addressing the 3-power conference called by President Coolidge, the first lord of the admiralty, W. C. Bridgeman, recommended reduction of future displacements from 35,000 tons displacement to "something under 20,000" and their main armament of 16-inch to 13.5-inch guns; restriction of aircraft carriers from 27,000 to 25,000 tons; their armament from 8-inch to 6-inch guns, and finally reduction of future cruisers from 10,000 to 7,500 tons, with armament of 6-inch instead of 5.5-inch guns.

He also advocated limiting the size of individual submarines to 1,200 tons, increasing the life of warships to 26 years instead of 20, and waiving rights of the powers under the replacement of the 1922 agreement upon at the Washington conference.

The first American reaction to these proposals was that it would be difficult to reconsider the Washington treaty provisions at the Geneva conference, which is limited to but three of the Washington signatories—the United States, Great Britain and Japan—with France and Italy represented only by "observers."

GENEVA, June 20 (AP)—Extension of the 5-5-3 principle of naval strength to cruisers, destroyers and submarines of the United States, Great Britain and Japan, was proposed today at the 3-power naval limitation conference by the American delegation.

Opening the conference called by President Coolidge, Ambassador Hugh Gibson, the chairman, proposed that cruisers be limited to tonnage of 250,000 or 300,000 tons for the United States and Great Britain and 150,000 to 180,000 tons for Japan.

Destroyer tonnage would be restricted to 200,000 or 250,000 tons for the two largest powers and to 120,000 to 150,000 for Japan. Maximum tonnage for American and British submarines would be 80,000 to 100,000 tons with 35,000 to 50,000 tons fixed for Japan.

Gibson presented his proposal after a brief address in which he presented an explanation of gratitude to the powers from President Coolidge and declared that "the United States is prepared to accept a general program providing for as low a tonnage" as acceptable to the other powers. He expressed regret that France and Italy were not active participants in the conference and urged Japan and Great Britain, who with the United States use the powers "which now lead in naval armaments" to assume "all responsibility for initiating further naval limitation." "If we were not prepared to limit," he said, "we could not expect others to do so."

It was understood that under the Gibson proposal the United States would be obliged to scrap 42,000 tons of cruisers and destroyers, mostly of the latter class, and 90,000 tons of submarines.
