Shortly after 2 p. m., a strong force of police marched on to Le Bourget field, accompanied by a similar force of mounted republican guards.
Commandant Revoise of the civil aviation field, declared there would be no repetition of the incidents that accompanied Lindbergh's landing.
"Dense fog over all Newfoundland," the flight commander reported at 6:29 o'clock last night. "Getting above it. Have had bad adverse winds. Impossible to navigate. Can hardly see wing tips. Tumbling into another now."
Less than half an hour later, Noville flashed: "No time to miss with code now. This radio is hootie job."
"Working our set constantly," another bulletin said. "Hope messages are arriving. Getting plenty cooperation. Thanks for your help."
It was believed that Noville's reference to code meant he was too busy attending to his instruments to look up his pre-arranged code.

of time and patient discussion. Suggestions that present capital disparity in favor of Great Britain, due to the recent launching of the Nebel and Romney, super battle ships of 22,000 tons each, might be corrected by suitable replacement arrangements, apparently was favorably received in official circles here.

Picks Up Signals

The British navy's radio station at Malin Head, at the northern extremity of Ireland, picked up the America's automatic signals at 2:50 o'clock this morning, Greenwich meantime, or 16:30 p. m. eastern daylight time last night. The last night of the plane was after it passed from the steamer Chatter which reported through

PARIS AWAITS ARRIVAL OF BYRD'S PLANE

Driven with all the skill of its versatile crew, the "America" dived toward its goal, 3,827 miles from its starting point, in New York, shut in for hours by a fog. Commander Byrd expected to reach Paris within 26 hours or about 5 o'clock eastern daylight time tonight. The America passed from sight of land at Bellevue, Newfoundland at 6:42 p. m. last night.
Two continents listened as the giant bird winged its way. White ships at sea and radio stations in North America received Lieutenant George Noville's radio bulletins on the progress of the craft. Ireland heard the staircase messages that indicated the advance of the adventurers.
With the mastery skill that carried him safely over the North Pole Byrd chartered his course against conflicting winds and odds. A message received early today from the commander said that due to fog and low clouds they had sighted neither land nor sea since 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.
As if nature was a coplayer in the dramatic air journey, all the elements prevailed in a great stage that Byrd set out to explore. The course of the "America", at least for the first half of its journey was beset with all the navigation problems Byrd hoped to solve.
Purpose Being Achieved
Less than eight hours after the take off Commander Byrd indicated purposes of the flight were being achieved. "We think we are getting some scientific data," he said in a radio message picked up at Halifax.
From the time the "America" left Roosevelt field at 6:24 o'clock eastern daylight time yesterday morning, the world followed its progress through frequent bulletins broadcast from the craft.
Greetings and cheery reports were at the banner of the Transoceanic company, sponsors of the flight, at Roosevelt field, land stations and many ships at sea. Then came terse bulletins that told of the battle against the fog and winds in the northeastern Atlantic.
"Dense fog over all Newfoundland," the flight commander reported at 6:29 o'clock last night. "Getting above it. Have had bad adverse winds. Impossible to navigate. Can hardly see wing tips. Tumbling into another now."
Less than half an hour later, Noville flashed: "No time to miss with code now. This radio is hootie job."

Walker Defeats Milligan Today

OLYMPIC RINGSIDE, LONDON, June 29. (AP)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, knocked out Tommy Milligan, European champion middleweight, in the tenth round of their 28 round title bout tonight.
Walker after sending Milligan down for counts of seven and nine respectively in the seventh round, scored two more clean knockdowns in the tenth, and the best man was a lonely weaver boxer when he went to his corner, with his face cut and blood showing from his mouth.
A right to the jaw was the deciding blow. Walker started the tenth round with a series of blows to the stomach and then crashed over a hard right to the jaw. Milligan went down for the fifth and last time.

Answer Filed By Southern Pacific

SALFEM, Ore., June 29. (AP)—Contending that any authority used by the Interstate Commerce Commission to compel the Southern Pacific or the Central Pacific lines to build a line across the state would be unconstitutional, the Southern Pacific filed its answer with the state commission today. The answer claims it would be inequitable to taking property without due process of law.

Will Reissue Rates On Grain Shipments

SALFEM, Ore., June 29. (AP)—The Great Southern Railroad company, operating between The Dalles and Prineville, Ore., has notified the public service commission that it will reissue the same reduced rates on grain shipments for the season 1927-1928 that were effective last season. The rate from Dulac to The Dalles, for example, will be reduced from 13 to 10 cents a ton, and from Prineville to The Dalles from 17 to 14 cents.

FATHER CONDUCTED FIRST COURT HERE

I tried to impress upon the little shaver the significance of the incident, I think he will remember it," he said smilingly.
Judge Wilson's pride is well merited for his father was one of the early circuit judges who made his circuit horseback, over treacherous roads, dangerous trails, braving perils from Indians and meeting every danger with the courage that was a part of western builders. Judge Wilson's circuit was a difficult one, taking him from The Dalles, around Canyon City, Baker City, back to La Grande and home via Umatilla. Trips that to the father were perilous and took days and weeks, can now be made by the son in safety and comfort within a few hours.
Visits With Mrs. McDonald
Other interesting facts were brought to light this morning when Mrs. Hattie McDonald, daughter of Judge Joseph Wilson, enjoyed a visit with the judge at recess. Mrs. McDonald explained to the judge that in the early days of court, attorneys in the state were few and that they often traveled and worked together. "Several of these boxers made their homes in La Grande and their children are citizens of this city today," Mrs. McDonald said. "Among them are Judge J. H. Slater (later judge and senator), father of J. D. Slater, of this city, M. Baker, father of Mrs. Aldott, of Perry, and Mr. Ellsworth."
Judge Wilson is well known in Oregon law circles and his family still merits the respect and honor that the first Judge Wilson earned for it. At the time when Judge Wilson became circuit judge, ten years ago, he was the only son ever to succeed his father on the circuit bench of Oregon.
